PROTECT HENS AND PRESERVE HUNTING

KILLING FEMALE "CHINKS" STOPS SPORT

Portland sportsmen, and in fact upland bird hunters all over the valley, are alarmed at the shortage of Mongolian pheasants, of which there are less now than at any time since the birds were introduced. They are fearful that if the present game laws are not amended for their protection it will not be more than a year before they are exterminated altogether.

There is a general feeling that the decrease is due more to one thing than any other. Farmers and others close to the birds during their breeding season contend that the lack of hens is responsible for the death of birds. They state that every hunter practically who was out in the fields last year and the year previous, carried home two and even three hens to one cock.

The Mongolian cock is a polygamous bird and will not mate with any one hen in a single nest. For this reason there should be more hens than cocks, but just the reverse is true in Oregon. Along at nesting time the male birds commence fighting among themselves and more than one broken-hearted hen has had her home disrupted.

Male Wise Old Bird.

The Mongolian cock is a wise bird, in fact there is no upland bird so quick to scent danger and so clever at getting away. Once he detects a dangerous looking individual he ducks his head and hits for the tall grass and makes a strong effort to escape. The meek looking hen is not so apt at the "getaway" and invariably drops before the hunter's fire.

It is for this reason that the sportsmen all through the valley would throw all the protection possible around the hen. Without her the feathered race will die out in short order.

Very likely at the meeting of the Oregon Fish and Game association Wednesday night this matter will be given the fullest consideration. Locally there is a great desire to save the sport, for it is the keenest that sportsmen have ever met with on the upland.

Members of the game association say they will prepare a petition to the next legislature asking that the lives of female Mongolian pheasants be protected. They would not place a ban on cocks, allowing them to be hunted at will during the open season. They estimate with such a law active the "chinks" will not only be saved from extermination, but they will increase at such a rate that there will be hunting for everybody who desires to go into the field in the next two years.

British Columbia Plan.

This is the plan adopted in British Columbia and it works to perfection. The fact that only the cocks can be killed adds zest to the hunting, for the sportsman finds he must pit all his cleverness against the wily fellow inside the bright plumage. There are thousands of birds in British Columbia and the man who goes into the field never despairs of getting his bag full at the end of the day.

Just the reverse is the rule in the valley this year, the man who gets a full bag being the exception. There have been some charges of birds being killed out of season, but the sportsmen say such losses are insignificant when compared with the greater evil of killing off all the hen birds.

So far as climate and forage are concerned the "chinks" thrive splendidly here. They are nearly as prolific as in their native heath. They produce better even than in British Columbia. For this reason the eastern sportsmen like to come to Oregon for their hunting. Valley sportsmen are fearing the tales they might carry back east with them this year when they come and find that there are no birds to speak of.

ORIENTAL MAGNATE LOSES MANY STARS

BIG LEAGUERS RUNNING AGAINST SNAGS

By Will J. Slattery.

San Francisco, Oct. 3.—Mike Fisher, the windy magnate who controlled so many ball teams in the Pacific Coast league and who is now starring as the leader of the oriental invasion of the Reach All-American ball team next month, is experiencing an awful time collecting his stars. Two months ago Mike had on his staff an aggregation of talent that could win the world's championship in any country on the globe, but since then his troubles have been piling up thick and fast, till at the present time it looks as though the proposed trip will be one of the subjects for the national commission to pass upon at its next meeting.

Hal Chase, the peer of all first basemen, who jumped the New York Americans and joined the Stockton outlaw team of the California State league, is the snag that Mike ran against in his hour of prosperity. When Chase stood right Fisher signed him to make the trip with the others, but as soon as Hal jumped his contract there was a wail from the others, especially the big leaguers, and they all backed out on the grounds that they could not associate with Chase for fear of ruining their baseball standing.

Fisher then went to Chase and tried to double shuffle him, but Hal was for making the trip and Mike had to sweat a couple of quarts of blood before he finally got rid of him. But while this was going on Ovie Overall, Frank Chance and Liefield of Pittsburg announced that it was too late and that Mike would have to get along without them.

This was quite a crusher for Fisher, but the worst was yet to come. Ty Cobb, his one best bet and the big noise of the trip, had to be heard from. When he did speak, Ty responded with a wail right from the heart and when it reached the ears of Fisher he was ready to jump to Honduras.

It seems that Hughey Jennings, manager of the Detroit Tigers, roared when he learned that Cobb was contemplating the oriental trip and immediately warned Cobb against making it. This probably would have settled the matter then and there had not Mrs. Cobb cut in, but she did. Having been promised the trip by her husband as a honeymoon excursion, she was bent on taking it. Jennings or no Jennings, so the matter rests now with the Tiger manager and the wife of the Tiger star arrayed against each other in combat.

It looks as though Fisher will have to draw mostly from the ranks of the Pacific Coast and State league teams, though he has Jack Bliss of St. Louis and Tom Delehanty and Bill Burns of Washington on his staff. The others who are sure to go are Joe Nealon, Brick Devereaux, Ote Johnson, George Hildebrand, Slats Henley, Nick Williams and possibly Rollie Zeider, though he has been warned by Manager Comiskey of the White Sox, to which team he goes next year, that he must stay at home.

* * *

The present tangle in the Pacific Coast league is no nearer to being straightened out than it was a couple of months ago. The fans in California are all up in the air as regards the circuit for next season and till the meeting of the national commission it would appear that there will be nothing stirring or at least no definite action taken.

The mission of Ewing and Berry in the northwest evidently did not pan out as well as they had expected. McCredie of Portland must have taken a firm stand for the northwest and Dugdale apparently is as hard a man to buck against as ever. We still have the two California clubs, but if what McCredie is quoted as saying goes, Portland will sever its connection with the Coast league and join the Northwestern next season.

The league officials are placed in rather a peculiar and very delicate position. They have officially awarded franchises to the Sacramento people as well as to the southern suburb of Los Angeles, which everybody believes will be Venice. The Northwestern magnates are evidently not satisfied with this arrangement, but what can Ewing and his associates do? It would be impossible for them to revoke the franchises they have already granted. Ed Kripp has already spent some $20,000 on the Sacramento field and the southern people have gone to a great deal of expense in forming their corporation and making ready for the opening of the season.

In the meantime the San Jose team of the State league is doing its best to crush into fast company. Its promoters came to Ewing the other day and offered to put up a bond as large as demanded and also proposed the fitting out of the finest ball team in the west. Now it would appear that the league is suffering from too many clubs instead of too few. All of them cannot break in, that goes for a certainty, so it is up to Ewing to make a good fight for the national commission at its next meeting and secure the Seattle territory, which he claims rightfully belongs to the Coast league because the Seattle people ran out after the recent disaster here.

* * *

The fighting game here has taken an awful slump after the lively doings of just a month ago. Apparently there are but few good matches in sight and the promoters seem to be waiting for something to start before they attempt to get busy with any cards.

Though the first of October is here, Charley Lecart, the man who succeeded Luke Marisch as one of the members of the local fight trust, has not got a card as yet. He made a desperate attempt to match Papke and Sam Langford, the clever Boston middleweight, but Papke sidestepped in jig time and announced that he had drawn the color line years ago, although nobody ever heard of it till the Langford question was popped to him.

Packy McFarland and Battling Nelson are as far away from being matched as ever. The champion is back in Chicago, face to face with the man who aspires to his title, but their recent meetings have brought about nothing and they do not figure to do any good unless one of the men or his representative comes out here and formally closes up a deal with Promoter Jim Coffroth for a 45-round mill.

If the lightweights do get together it is not at all likely that they will do so before New Year's day. Coffroth will hardly take a chance of putting them on Thanksgiving for the reason that Jack Gleason has Papke and Ketchel signed up for Thanksgiving evening in this city. This looks like a great card and Coffroth has learned from past experience that it will not get him anything trying to bunch an attraction of this kind, even though his battle is the more important of the two and is bound to draw the banner crowd. He could make far more money by staging Nelson and McFarland on New Year's day and he is trying to land this match.

Dr. Roller, the wrestler who was defeated by Frank Gotch last winter, is the latest star to twinkle in the pugilistic sky. He is at present taking the rest cure in far away Honolulu, but the place is not too far distant to keep the doctor from hurling challenges at Tommy Burns, Jack Johnson, Al Kaufman or any other heavyweight who wants his game.

Roller has not had much experience with the mitts, but he claims that he knows enough to give him a start. He will arrive in this city within the next couple of weeks and enter upon his task of tossing challenges. Jesse Woods, the man who will help Mike Fisher engineer the oriental baseball invasion, will look after Roller and try to get him a match.

VANCOUVER PEOPLE ENTER SHOW HORSES

Tone of Competition Much Higher Than Last Year's Splendid Showing.

The Vancouver Hunt club has wired about 20 entries for the Portland horse show and will send some of its crack hunters and jumpers here for their share of the blue ribbons. Among these will be St. Louis, Don Pedro and Gold Crest, all splendid jumpers to be shown by women riders.

The Vancouver horses carried off a number of Seattle trophies, are just fresh from Victoria winnings and are now showing at New Westminster. They make a splendid showing and are a valuable and welcome acquisition to any show ring.

Among those who have made reservations at local hotels for horse show week are J. A. Russell, president of the Vancouver Hunt Club & Horse Show association; F. W. Rounsefell, Winston Smith, T. J. Smith, Mrs. Cecil Smith, Miss Annie N. Smith, Miss Mabel Smith, D. Thomas Tees, judge at the Seattle horse show; E. R. Ricketts, W. S. Holland, T. A. Fee and J. R. Gilbert.

Farrell Enters String.

J. D. Farrell of Seattle also wired his entries at the last moment and the Hunt club is most gratified at the prospect of having his fine string of jumpers, combination horses and ponies. Little Miss Helen Wadsworth Farrell, the 10-year-old daughter of Mr. Farrell, will show her ponies in several classes and is expected to create the same sensation here that she did in the Seattle ring last month. Mr. Farrell's fine tandem pair, Merry Widow and Premier, had the distinction of winning over the famous Sunshine and Belle Brandon in Seattle.

Premier, formerly Sensation King, is one of George Watson's recent importations and is a horse of magnificent conformation and high action, while Merry Widow is one of the handsomest mares on the Pacific coast, having great quality, breeding and action.

Fox Catcher will again enter the Portland ring and clear some of the seven-foot jumps. The Journal recently published a picture of this horse clearing a six-foot bar in Seattle. While Mr. Farrell goes in strong for hunters and jumpers, he has some especially beautiful equipment for the gig and runabout classes and his exhibition promises to be one of the distinctive features of the show.

Froom Gets Peep O'Day.

Dr. A. E. Froom has purchased Peep O'Day, a handsome and very speedy mare which he has long coveted, and will have her here in time for exhibition with the rest of his fine string of pacers. One of the features of Dr. Froom's entries this season will be his two-year-old Josephine, a beautiful black pacing colt which is wonderfully well trained and jumps well. She will be shown against Lady Zombro, also young.

The program has gone to the printers and from now on practice in the ring will be the chief feature of preparation. The Oriental building at the exposition grounds is the scene of great activity and the ring is constantly filled with various classes taking their turns at schooling. J. W. Cruthers is in charge of the building.

FOURTH VICTORY FOR ANGELS OVER SEALS

Briswalter Settles Down After Flurry and Holds Mohlerites Safe.

(Hearst News by Longest Leased Wire.)

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 3.—Los Angeles made away with another game today by a score of 3 to 2, which makes the fourth victory for the Angels over the Seals in the week's series. The biggest crowd since the homecoming of the white-uniformed team was rewarded with a great game.

Andy Briswalter pitched his second game of the week and in the opening innings was a trifle unsteady, but soon settled down to the form in which he made good with Captain Dillon.

Los Angeles scored in the initial time at bat on some clever work by Oakes around the bean bags. Three safe ones off Briswalter's delivery in the second put the Seals a run to the good, when he settled down after this inning until the ninth, when the Seals got two hits and gave the fans a bad scare.

With one run in the first, Los Angeles scored two more in the sixth by clean hitting and was not headed after this. Two swats in the sixth did the scoring work, Brashear's single to center bringing home Oakes and Ellis at a gallop. But three other scattered hits were secured off Henley's delivery.

Kelifer worked behind the bat for San Francisco and handled himself in great style, showing a good form in his throws to second. Score:

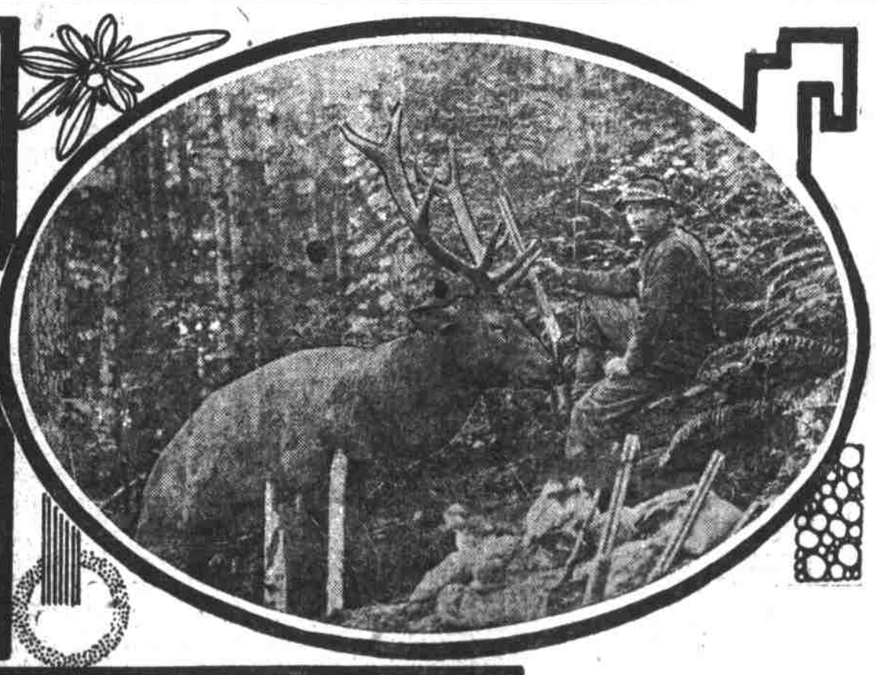
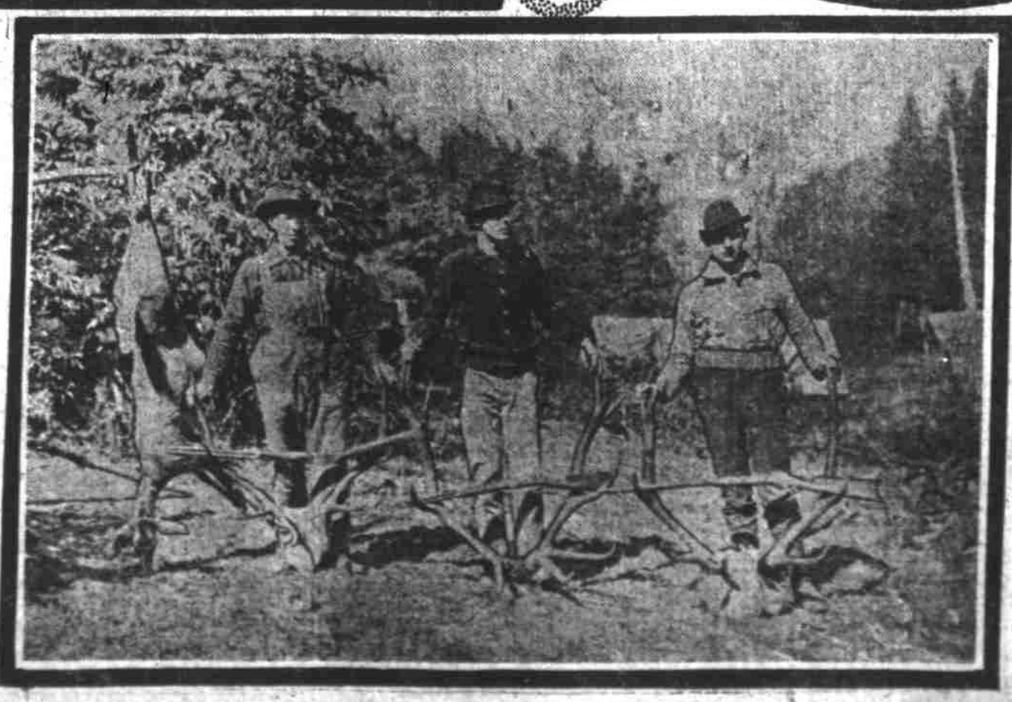
ELK HUNTERS WHO BAGGED THE LIMIT IN LINCOLN COUNTY MOUNTAINS





Three Portland hunters who had unusual success in bagging big game in the Lincoln county forests, have just returned to Portland with a number of hides, three pairs of elk horns and jerked venison enough to last all winter. They are J. F. Burns, 128 East Twenty-seventh street; D. S. Warnock, 20 East Fifteenth street, and L. Bracey, a merchant on the Sandy road.

The trio took the trail on the first open date of the season, September 15, and paid first attention to getting an elk each, one being the lawful limit. On the third day out they ran into a bunch of 11, Bracey being the lucky man. He knocked down a handsome fellow with unusually large horns. On the fourth day the party caught up with another band of a dozen and both Burns and Warnock brought down a buck.

All three elk were killed near Table mountain, about seven miles from Waldport, on Yaquina bay. They say the elk are feeding farther back in the mountains this year, and that it took them eight days to get in and out. The country was full of hunters, they report, and the 100 or so elk in the county are having a merry time of it keeping out of the way of speeding bullets.

Mr. Burns, who has hunted there for several years, says that elk seem to be growing scarcer, while deer and bear are on the increase. His party killed two deer on the way out, but made no effort to follow up the bear tracks.

They report that several bands of hunters were running elk with dogs and criticised the lack of energy on the part of the game wardens to stop this practice. The Portland men took dogs along with them, but they were used solely in leash for the purpose of assisting in tracking game after it had been wounded.

Fishing in the Table mountain section is good this year, the hunters say, and many fine catches were made.

This Date in Sport Annals.

1880—At New York, in a billiard contest for $1,000 and medal, George F. Slosson defeated Jacob Schaefer, 600 to 438.

1884—At Brooklyn, the Brooklyn and Toledo clubs played ten innings without a run or an error being scored.

1890—The Players' League closed its only championship season, the Boston team winning the pennant, and the Brooklyn, New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Cleveland and Buffalo clubs ranking in the order named.

1899—At Chicago, Benny Yanger knocked out Mike Munger in the third round.

1900—At San Francisco, Abe Attell knocked out Joe Hill in the fourth round.

1905—At Philadelphia, Abe Attell and "Young Erne" fought six rounds; no decision.

Loosely Leads Yelling.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

University of Oregon, Eugene, Oct. 3.—Cary V. Loosely of Klamath Falls was appointed yesterday to the position of yell leader in place of Arthur Van Dusen, who was unable to fill the position this year. Loosely is popular, being captain and center on the basketball team, and last year assisted Van Dusen with the rooters.

The board will soon be in condition to help the rooters and its appearance is looked forward to with great interest.
