SCISSORS IN KITCHEN.

A Labor Saver in Preparing Vegetables in Making Salads.

If you want to see a pair of scissors put to all sorts of queer uses just watch some young housekeeper getting vegetables ready for dinner or preparing a salad. It is declared that in nine cases our of every ten things can be cut better with the scissors than with a knife.

Especially in the preparing of salads should the kitchen scissors appeal to the housekeeper looking for labor-saving schemes. Dicing celery and apples is a matter of only a moment when done in this way, and a few green peppers may be snipped up in less time than it takes to tell about it.

The easiest way to dice green peppers is to cut off several long slivers the whole length of the pepper. Hold these firmly in one hand and with the scissors slip through the entire bunch. Several stalks of asparagus may be clipped through in the same way.

For hollowing out a tomato previous to stuffing, a pair of scissors enables one to remove practically all the pulp without breaking through the skin. For fruit salads scissors are equally useful, as the fine skin which separates the sections of grape fruit and oranges is easily clipped off in this way.

But fruit and vegetable salads are not the only kind for which the kitchen scissors may be brought into use. Cold boiled chicken and lobster are easily cut into pieces, and, surprising as it may seem to those who haven't tried it, chicken joints and lobster shells are no obstacle when scissors are used.

The hard parts of oysters and clams are neatly removed with a pair of scissors, and slices of cold tongue and ham are often much improved in appearance if, before sending to table, they are trimmed into shape in the same way.

When it comes to preparing cold vegetables for reheating in cream sauce, or for the many popular dishes au gratin, the kitchen scissors are again a blessing. Cold boiled potatoes, cauliflower, asparagus, oyster plant, in fact any and every vegetable, may easily be snipped into pieces of the required size. Doing such work with a pair of scissors is not only much quicker and easier, but the saving of one's hands is important. No woman will believe until she tries for herself how great a labor saver a pair of scissors may prove in her kitchen.

Every year New York city throws into the junk heap enough buildings to accommodate a small city, or a population of 50,000. In the last 10 years there have been torn down enough buildings to house 500,000 persons.

The third gathering of the international electrical congress will be opened at London October 11. The standardization of electrical terms and units will be one of its chief objects.
