

JOURNAL FUND PROVIDES A HOME FOR STRICKEN NURSES

The First National Bank of Portland, Or.—Portland, Oct. 1, 1908.—Received of The Oregon Journal, per C. S. Jackson, the sum of one thousand and forty-five dollars ($1,045), collected for the purpose of erecting a cottage for the Oregon Nurses' State association, on the grounds of the Portland Open Air Sanatorium.

It is understood that any surplus remaining after the bills are paid for the erection of this cottage, is to be turned over to the Oregon Nurses' State association.

A. L. MILLS,
President Portland Open Air Sanatorium.

desert a patient so long as he needed her, but who contracted the disease herself, may take the open air treatment now so generally considered one of the best cures of white plague.

At a meeting of the State Medical society last July A. L. Mills, president of the Portland Open Air sanatorium, spoke of the need of the public's cooperation in eradicating tuberculosis. Attention was directed toward the fact that a nurse who becomes infected had nowhere to go for treatment unless she could afford to pay the comparatively high prices necessarily asked by the better class of sanitariums. Several lamentable cases of nurses dying because they had not the money to take the required course of treatment came to light.

The need of a refuge for the nurses was brought before the people of Portland by The Journal, and as usual when a meritorious object is presented, the good people of this city and country did not hesitate to subscribe to the fund. The acknowledgment from Mr. Mills, president of the Open Air sanatorium, and one of the public spirited men most interested in stamping out this dreaded disease, shows that this fund is being used for the erection of the cottage.

The cottage is being built and the state association of nurses will become trustees for the management of its affairs. Nurses wishing to take advantage of the cottage and the treatment that is to be had at the Open Air sanatorium, will apply to the secretary of the state association of nurses and through her the arrangements can be made. This will keep the nurses in touch with those of their profession who are ill.

The Open Air sanatorium is situated on a high point of land almost in the

A refuge for nurses who become tubercular through their faithful labors at the bedside of their patients has been provided by means of the fund raised by The Journal.

No longer will it be true that a nurse stricken by the white plague has no place to go, for the fund of $1,045 subscribed by the readers of The Journal insures the erection of the proposed nurses' cottage on the grounds of the Open Air sanatorium, and here the brave young woman who would not

FATHER OF GUARANTEE DISCUSSES BANKING

John Schuette, president of the Manitowoc (Wisconsin) Savings bank, the father of the bank guarantee plan, is a Republican, though he believes in the Democratic remedy for the banking evils and panics of the country. He is in Portland now with his daughter on a tour of the country, and he is enthusiastic in his advocacy of the guarantee of bank deposits by the general government.

"Fifty years ago I conceived the idea of guaranteeing bank deposits," said Mr. Schuette this morning, "and I have studied it constantly since that time. It is not a visionary scheme, as the guarantee of the banking and the panic questions, and it is bound to come, if not in one way, then in another.

"When I first began to advocate the plan I was hailed by the bankers of the country as an anarchist, now they are beginning to move. The guarantee of bank deposits would solve the panic problem. Panics are caused by fear. Men, during panics, do not want their money, they want to know that it is safe, that they can get it when they ask for it. They fear that the banks will fail and draw out their balances. The banks cannot stand the runs, the drain, upon them and have to close. People become panic-stricken and the institutions are wrecked, not because the management was dishonest, not because the banks were not normally sound, but because fear-stricken people make sudden demands which cannot be met because of their suddenness.

"The bank guarantee plan would solve the panic problem because it would give people confidence in the banks. Every man has confidence in the government. If the government was back of the banks the people would feel secure in the promise of the government to meet their demands. They would consider that their money was safe and would allow it to remain on deposit. There would be no runs, no long lines of depositors in front of the banking institutions, and consequently no failures and no panics.

Make Prosperity Permanent.

"Money that is hoarded now would come out into the banks and into circulation. Business would increase and prosperity would be permanent.

Mr. Schuette was in attendance upon the recent national convention of bankers where he advocated the deposit guarantee plan. The bankers not only turned down his plan, but the proposed postal savings bank plan as well.

"It is the big bankers of the country who are opposing the deposit guaranty plan," said Mr. Schuette. "These banks have profited by panics. In such times the people have sought what they considered the safest banks and have chosen the large ones. These men then will not want the guarantee plan because it will lose them business. It is self-interest with them. I am an old man and I would like to see all depositors put in safety. I am not looking after the business profits, but after the relief that the country needs.

Postal System Coming.

"I believe that the country will have the postal savings bank system, and if it does then the banks will have to provide some means, some plan, for guaranteeing their deposits. The people will have confidence in the government. They will have confidence that the government will stand behind these banks. The other banks will be forced to insure their deposits and this will cost them many times more than the national guarantee plan.

"If the postal savings banks are created there will be approximately 18,000 government banks in the country. These banks would be the strongest, the most competitors with the private banks, and the private banks would have to unite on some measure to meet this competition. The remedy for the bankers themselves then would be to unite and have a deposit guarantee act. This would be a deposit guarantee act.

DIVORCE FIGHT ACROSS SEAS

Hart Inheritance Case May Go to the Federal Supreme Court.

(Hearst News by Longest Leased Wire.)

New York, Oct. 10.—Mrs. Estelle Kitty Hart, who claims a dower right in the $1,000,000 estate of Benjamin Hart, the wealthy American who died in Paris last February, has filed her affidavits of the allegations that she is barred by a divorce decree secured in 1883.

She did not know of the divorce until it was referred to at the trial a few days ago, and declares that she was never served with notice that a divorce suit was pending.

Last week in the surrogate's court, Michael Hart, who lives at the New York Athletic club, created a sensation by offering a decree signed by Justice Michael Donohue in 1883 divorcing Estelle Kitty Hart from the millionaire. The nephew got the bulk of the estate. Hart who founded his fortune by peddling clothing in Virginia. Lived in Paris for twenty-five years and kept a magnificent house in Rue Gaillies. His housekeeper, Mme. Gabrielle Juliette de Brie, was liberally provided for, but an adopted daughter, Isabelle Luchese, was cut off without a cent.

The adopted daughter is now wife of M. Jean Guillemin, a prominent French diplomat. The widow and Mme. Guillemin are contesting the will.

The only visit Hart made to the United States was just previous to the institution of the divorce proceedings. While he was here his wife was in Paris at her husband's residence. She did not know what his purpose was in visiting New York, she says.

"From the time of the decree I have never married and have always claimed to be the wife of Benjamin Hart," Mrs. Hart states.

The affidavit embodying the divorce decree accused Mrs. Hart of misconduct with Count Magellan at Paris, Dieppe, Lyons and other cities in France.

"Great abuse of the question of divorce has long been prevalent," Lawyer Franklin Blen, who appears for the widow, declares in his brief, "and particularly in divorces obtained under orders of publication and service without the state."

He charges Hart with having come to New York for the sole purpose of getting a divorce although under the code of this state he was not entitled to a decree.

Mrs. Hart at the time the New York divorce was obtained had never been to America.

There is so much conflict of the law in the case that it will undoubtedly go to the United States supreme court.

A railroad section hand in North Carolina has patented a tie-tamping machine, practical tests of which have shown that on both old and new roadbeds it will do the work of 50 men.

When a man buys a real good hot water bottle, the first thing he sees is "CAUTION: DO NOT USE WITH BOILING WATER." The "THERMOLITE HOT WATER BOTTLE" is absolutely the only exception, but to the contrary. You are directed by the manufacturers to "BOIL FROM 10 TO 30 MINUTES." Mighty good, else you couldn't do this. Then, too, the "Thermolite" stores heat. Stays hot from 5 to 10 times longer than an ordinary hot water bottle. All druggists sell a 3-quart size for $2.50. OUR PRICE $1.50.
