WOULD BRING THE WINNER TO COAST

evidence of good faith in the negotiations, the conferees agreed that each side should post $5,000 forfeit money.

Detroit, Oct. 14.—By their fourth victory over the Detroit Tigers the Chicago National League team today gained the baseball championship of the world for the season of 1908.

Fighting from a lowly position in the National race in June, defeating their rivals step by step in all decisive conflicts, the Cubs demonstrated the superiority of their bases to the Tigers by Chance over heavy hitting and straight baseball followed by Jennings' men.

Factors in Winning.
The generalship of Chance and the ability of his men to take advantage of every mistake made by their opponents were great factors in the success of both in the league race and the post-season series.

The Tigers fought desperately against a stronger baseball machine. Partly their defeat was due to the inability in two games of the series of "Wild Bill" Donovan, the terror of American league batters, to hold in check the scientific hitting of the Chicagoans.

Other Games.
Chicago won the opening game at Detroit in a rain storm that hampered both teams, by a score of 10 to 6. Killian started pitching for Detroit but was succeeded by Summers. Ruelbach opened for Chicago, Overall went in but was wild, and Brown finished the game.

Sunday at Chicago was a pitchers' battle between Overall for the Cubs and Donovan for Detroit. Donovan after holding his opponents without a hit, broke in the eighth and six men scored. Detroit got out of a jam.

Monday at Chicago, Detroit reversed the winning and took an 8-3 game from Chicago. Mullin opposing Pfeister and Ruelbach. Yesterday's game at Detroit was lost to the Tigers through their inability to hit Mordecai Brown, who scored the first run of the series. He allowed Detroit four hits and no runs. Chicago scored three runs off Summers, who weakened in the third and was hit freely during the game. The final game again placed Overall and Donovan as the opposing pitchers.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 14.—In a final stand against the onslaughts of the ravenous Cubs, who have taken 10 of the four games played in the world's championship series, Jennings today decided to rely on Donovan to save the Tigers from defeat. There was no great amount of elation at the lat of the Tigers today. The men realized that they faced the crisis of the series and let their loyal supporters do the talking while they prepared for the conflict.

Chance's men figured to make it a fourth game and the championship, and the player-captain decided to let Ovie Overall turn the trick.

First Inning, First Half.
Sheckard's short fly fell into Schaefer's paws, but Crawford stopped short on Evers' liner and it went for a single to center. Schulte slammed one past Coughlin. Chance's drive over O'Leary's head sent Evers home. Crawford caught Steinfield's fly. Coughlin grabbed Hoffman's grounder, touched out Schulte on the line as he passed. One run.

First Inning for Detroit.
McIntyre walked. O'Leary struck out. Crawford dropped a safe one in center. Cobb fanned. The third strike on Rossman was a wild pitch and the batter went to first. Schaefer fanned. No runs. Score: Chicago 1, Detroit 1.
