

HAVE YOU VISITED WOODBURN? IF NOT, GO AND SEE FOR YOURSELF HOW PROSPEROUS IT IS

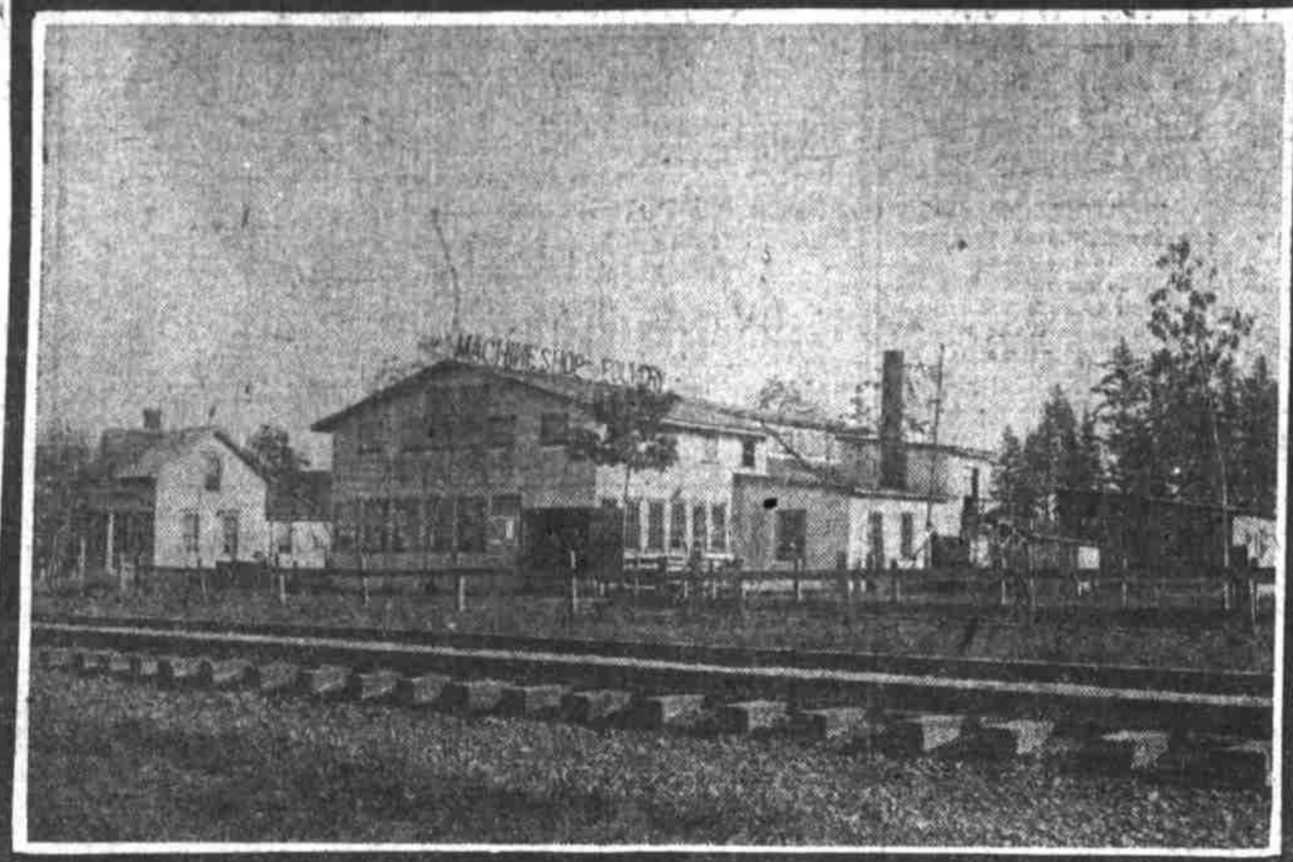

(By A Staff Correspondent.)

Woodburn, Or., Oct. 21.—One cannot study this region long; you cannot spend many days on the streets of Woodburn; you cannot meet and mingle with its people without being impressed with the universal belief in it by the citizens themselves who live there. It crops out in their daily conversation; it shows itself in their actions. The railroad facilities of Woodburn are among the strong factors in bringing to it a class of manufacturers that are desirable and which is a necessity for a wide output of tonnage. During the month of August this thrifty little city received 1,000,000 pounds of freight. The city is surrounded by excellent farming country in every direction, and ships out many carloads of hops, potatoes, beef cattle, wool and hogs. It also ships a large amount of nursery stock as there are three nurseries located near by that have on hand ready for shipment, 1,800,000 trees. They also carry a large stock of ornamental trees, shrubbery and vines. This part of the country is fast becoming a rich dairy section from which many carloads of butter are shipped.

A Land of Plenty.

If the reader will take a trip from Woodburn east for 25 miles, they will be proud of their country and fond of their countrymen. It certainly is a land of plenty. Every home seems to be surrounded with an orchard that yields at least enough fruit for family use. Well-bred stock is seen in many fields, and an air of thrift and prosperity is evident on every hand.

Woodburn is fast becoming a manufacturing center. The Valley Manufacturing company, which makes a specialty of many kinds of handles, is just fitting out for 25,000 handles to be used in building a wharf in Alaska. The city also has a good flouring mill, an ice plant, machine shop and iron foundry, besides several smaller institutions. The schools, churches, electric light and water supply are all a credit to any little city.

Naming of Woodburn.

This city received its name from a party of people traveling through on stage coach, and seeing large amounts of timber burned in cleaning the land, they suggested the name of Woodburn. The city was founded about 33 years ago by J. H. Settlement, and its recent rapid progress has been due in part to the splendid work done by the local Commercial club. The president and secretary of this club are entitled to much credit, also Robert Scott, present mayor.

Fifty Cents a Month

A small bottle of Scott's Emulsion costing fifty cents will last a baby a month—a few drops in its bottle each time it is fed. That's a small outlay for so large a return of health and comfort. Babies that are given quickly respond to its helpful action. It seems to contain just the elements of nourishment a baby needs most.

Ordinary food frequently lacks this nourishment; Scott's Emulsion always supplies it.

DR. DYOTT TALKS ON SOCIALISM

Tells Congregationalists the Ministers Should Study Its Theories.

"Socialism From the Viewpoint of a Minister" was the subject of Rev. Luther R. Dyott, D. D., this afternoon before the Congregational association in the Hession street church. Dr. Dyott spoke in part as follows: "Socialism is a theory of civil polity. It organizes about a grievance and finds its basis in a grievance—real or imaginary—and amid the hazy atmosphere enveloping conditions in our present tense life, it is bold and broad in its aim at the new adjustment and the reconstruction of human society. It would usher in a new order of things. It does not object to an increase of wealth, but believing wealth to be the product of labor, it adopts as its motto 'Every one according to his deeds,' and insists upon a more equal distribution of these products of labor through the public and collective ownership of land and capital, and the public and collective management of all industries. Thus, while not objecting to capital, it does object to private capitalists, and it would substitute for this the nationalization of capital. It would make every-

CATHOLICS IN JOINT PROTEST

Decisive Action to Be Taken Against Proposed Tax Amendment.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) North Yakima, Wash., Oct. 21.—North Yakima Catholics have joined in the general protest against the proposed amendment to the constitution of Washington which will require the taxation of the property of churches, private schools, hospitals, orphanages, Y. M. C. A. and other religious and charitable institutions. Under the constitution at present the matter of taxing this property is left to the discretion of the legislature but in the proposed amendment there is no discretion. Notices have been issued here calling for meetings of all the Catholic voters, after the masses next Sunday, to discuss the matter and decide on a plan of action. Many other church people are joining in the movement, although there are some who favor the amendment. No action will be taken by the North Yakima Ministerial union.

How Much is Your Time Worth?

A dollar a day? Two dollars? Three dollars? How long does it take you to do the week's washing? A whole day? Now, if you could find a soap that would enable you to get through by noon, instead of five in the afternoon, you would use that soap, wouldn't you? There is such a soap. Its name is P. & G. Naphtha Soap. It sells for 5 cents a cake. It would pay you to use it, if it cost you 25 cents—because of the time, labor and fuel it saves. It would pay you to use it, if it cost you 25 cents—because of the time, labor and fuel it saves. But it doesn't cost 25 cents a cake—the price is about the same as that of ordinary laundry soap.

A Bad Exchange.

From the Boston Traveler. Her promise short and terse She kept. But then she went and sang The new ones—which were worse.

body, as a member of a community, a capitalist. In the United States 125,000 families hold $32,800,000,000, while 6,130,000 families are very poor, so poor that to have practically nothing. The Socialist thinks of the horny hands of the laborers as the producers of wealth and the monopolizers of the same. The congestion of wealth by increased and increasing influence. In the mountains of wealth are the valleys of poverty. These valleys are wet with the sweat of those who toil and the tears and blood of those who suffer wrong. So thinks the Socialist, and he ruthlessly and relentlessly attacks everything and everybody in his way. "The Socialists constitute a body of no mean proportions. In Germany, in France, in Belgium, in Austria, in Italy, in Great Britain, in Finland, in Holland, in Switzerland, in Denmark, in the United States, they have been steadily gaining ground by vote, by agitation, by increased and increasing influence. In Austria, Francis Joseph fought side by side with the Social Democrats to force universal suffrage. In Italy, it is said the Socialistic movement was one of the main causes of the nationalization of the railroads. In France, it has made its way into the cabinets. In Belgium, it has compelled the conservatives to insure the unemployed. In England, it is claimed, that it has forced even the king himself to say: 'We are all Socialists now.' "In the United States it has organized bodies in 39 states and it has about 50 periodicals, 23 of which are published in foreign languages, and here it has about 1,000,000 tracts and pamphlets. Now, a body of such proportions and activities is to be reckoned with. Here and abroad it numbers some of the ministers of the gospel among its adherents, and there are those who tell us that Jesus himself was a Socialist, and that we must either Christianize Socialism or Socialize Christianity. Jesus has indeed, social messages. But who should see from the viewpoint of ministers that while Socialism has some good in it, that good is mixed with ill conditions unless the message as well as a message. The inevitable trend of Socialism is toward communism and that ends in anarchy and nihilism. In an age of social unrest, Socialism has no sovereign balm for the wounds it exposes. "Revolution is not a substitute for evolution. The capitalist is just as indispensable to our modern life and prosperity as the laborer. One is not necessary as the other. He who aims a blow at one finally hits both. We cannot have ideal conditions unless the people who create the conditions are ideal. Socialism as seen from the minister's viewpoint needs a correction and a new direction. It needs the leadership of the statesman rather than that of the amateur demagogue. Some of its most formidable foes are within its own ranks. The street corner rantier, who constantly parades his grievance, may excite ill-feelings, but he can never exercise wholesome influence. His words are firebrands, his advocated policies are revolutionaries. We should study Socialism from a just and rational and sympathetic point of view. "Ministers should be members of labor organizations and mix themselves one with the capitalists and laborers and be prepared to arbitrate when necessary. They are called upon to be brothers to all men and insist upon the application of the golden rule instead of the law of the jungle. They should have the rich and the poor together in all our churches and be able to say 'The rich and the poor conditions together and the Lord is the maker of them all.'"
