GERMAN EMPRESS FIFTY YEARS OLD

Domesticity, Not Royalty, Her Chief Concern—Her Simple Life.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Berlin, Oct. 22.—There was a generous display of flags today, not only in Berlin but throughout the empire in recognition of the fiftieth birthday of the Empress Augusta Victoria. There were many other outward and visible signs of the extraordinary popularity enjoyed by the consort of Emperor William. During the day the empress received the foreign diplomats who called to present congratulations in behalf of their respective sovereigns and governments.

A correspondent writing some years ago said that a book explaining "How to Be Happy Though a Queen" would undoubtedly find large sales in all European courts except that of the Empress of Germany. The same might be said with equal truth today. Augusta Victoria is one of the few feminine crowned heads who might truthfully be described as finding as much solid homely contentment in the imperial palaces as any honest workman's wife in her vine-clad cottage.

Strictly Domestic.

There has never been the slightest effort on the part of the empress to lead in the social world. Ever since her marriage her whole object in life has seemed to be the perfect achievement of her domestic duties. In whatever palace she may be stopping, her days are as carefully laid out as are those of the emperor, and from her own waiting maid to the scullions, she keeps an eye on every servant. Unless confined to her bed by illness, the empress is invariably up by 6 every morning, and 8 o'clock finds her pouring the emperor's coffee. This meal their majesties take quite alone. In former years the needs of her children required the greater part of her majesty's time during the forenoon. Now, with the youngest, Princess Victoria Louise, in her seventeenth year, the empress has been relieved of the cares of the nursery. Her mornings are now devoted to household duties. At 10 o'clock the royal housekeepers are received. Lists of dishes for the luncheons and dinner of the day are handed the empress, and at her discretion, always with an eye to her husband's preferences, the menus are chosen. After the menus are selected she considers household bills and then writes her own letters.

The Imperial Family Circle.

Between 11 and 12 the empress usually goes for a drive or a walk with one or more of her stalwart sons, and at 1 the entire family usually meet at luncheon. After luncheon, in a quiet reception toilet, the empress is at home in her drawing-room to callers. No great formality reigns. Women come to pay their respects or open philanthropic schemes, and everyone who seems respectable and anxious to see her majesty is permitted to enter.

At 6 o'clock dinner is announced, and this is the grand meal of the day. The empress then appears in full state toilet and many jewels. The company nearly always is large and brilliant. After dinner there is music and sometimes a quiet game of cards.

The empress as a rule gives little attention to public affairs. Recently she created some surprise by using her influence to prevent a government decree in Prussia favoring cremation, giving her support to the ultra-Protestant denominations who oppose the incineration of human bodies.

A Healthy Family.

"Our whole family has enjoyed good health since we began using Dr. King's New Life Pills, three years ago," says L. A. Bartlet of Rural Route 1, Guilford, Maine. They cleanse and tone the system in a gentle way that does you good. 25c at all druggists.

ELECTRIC POWER OVER SIERRAS

Harriman's Expert Reaches San Francisco, on Tour of Investigation.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

San Francisco, Oct. 22.—W. A. Worthington, assistant to the director of maintenance and operation of the Harriman lines, is conferring with officials of the Southern Pacific system regarding the proposed changes of the motive power to electricity in the Sierras, both to facilitate shipments and reduce the cost of hauling.

Worthington will stay here four days. He has inspected the entire system from Chicago to San Francisco, visiting Portland and other northern cities.

SEARCH IN AMERICA FOR STOLEN PICTURE

(United Press Leased Wire.)

San Francisco, Oct. 22.—The pawnshops of this city are being ransacked by the police at the instance of Austrian Vice-Consul Dr. Otto H. Graff for the recovery of a valuable Van Dyke painting stolen from the art gallery of the Count Von Harrach last August. Word came to the vice-consul yesterday that the head of the royal police department at Vienna requested Dr. Graff to search for the work of art, which is valued at several thousand crowns. The police have traced the painting to the United States and all further trace has been lost.

The painting is that of a child's head and in the lower right-hand corner bears the initials "W. F." and the number 329.

A reward of 1,000 crowns is offered for its return.

MRS. H. WALKER HAS KING'S EAR

Mrs. G. Keppel Knocked Out in Contest for Ruler of the King's Navee.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

London, Oct. 22.—The unofficial change in governmental circles of England is the opening of the "season" of 1908-9 with Mrs. Hall Walker as the new prime ministeress, who has replaced Mrs. George Kepel in the favor of King Edward VII. The change was not noticed until society began returning to town from the continent, the seaside and the moors.

Then the general public began to notice those who sought influence or advancement with royalty were thronging Mrs. Walker's magnificent town house.

The social position of prime ministeress is one of the most important in the kingdom. Through the influence of the premieress over the king she is able to hold potent political sway.

With the change of social government come the details of a politico-social campaign that preceded the revolution.

In a struggle for the mastery of the navy, the post of lord of the admiralty, Sir John Fisher faced Admiral Lord Charles Beresford. Mrs. Keppel espoused Beresford's cause and Mrs. Walker, as opposition leader, aided Sir John.

The king admired Lord Beresford, but liked Sir John better. By her efforts in Lord Beresford's behalf Mrs. Keppel annoyed the king and so Mrs. Walker is the king's favorite now.

In the meantime Mrs. Keppel is seeking a new issue on which to win the king and believes she has hit upon a solution of her troubles.

The husband of Mrs. Walker is a millionaire and seeks the peerage. Mrs. Keppel doubts if King Edward would care to confer a seat in the house of lords upon Walker and is hoping that Mrs. Walker will displease royalty by trying too hard to obtain the favor.

SPRINGFIELD NEGRO TO HANG TOMORROW

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 22.—The gallows has been erected and other arrangements made for the execution of Joe James, which will take place in the Sangamon county jail tomorrow morning unless the courts or the state board of pardon interfere. The crime for which James, who is a negro, was convicted was the murder of Clergy A. Ballard early on the morning of July 8 last. James had entered the bedchamber of Ballard's 16-year-old daughter. When discovered by the young woman the negro fled pursued by the father. The two engaged in a scuffle in the yard and Ballard was stabbed to death. The crime occurred shortly before the race war in this city last summer and was largely responsible for the public indignation aroused at that time against the negroes.

It was while James was a prisoner in the county jail that Mrs. Mabel H[illegible] was assaulted by a negro, Jacob [illegible] swept over the city seeking vengeance against the colored race, and James and George Richardson, who was arrested charged with the later assault, were hurriedly taken to Bloomington. Richardson was subsequently exonerated. James remained at Bloomington several weeks and was then returned to this city for trial.

Quarrel; Then Carbolic.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 22.—Only by the prompt action of his wife was William [illegible], 36 years of age, a steamship purser, saved from suicide last evening. His face was badly burned by carbolic acid and so was Mrs. Glenn's arm. Detectives who investigated the case say the couple had a trivial quarrel.

Investigation of the Santiam mines confirms their great value, but a smelter is needed.
