

Extra Special Bargains for Friday and Saturday

On the two last days of the month we will give the best bargains of the month. We will round out October with a regular carnival of bargains. No firm in the city marks its goods so low as we do, so our REGULAR PRICES are as low as special bargains at other stores. But this is not strange to those who understand why.

Others Pay Rent, We Collect Rent On Half Our Own Building — Who Can Sell the Cheapest?

Every article mentioned in this ad is a rare bargain. Anyone familiar with furniture prices will readily recognize this. YOU CAN'T EQUAL IT IN CHICAGO, EVEN.

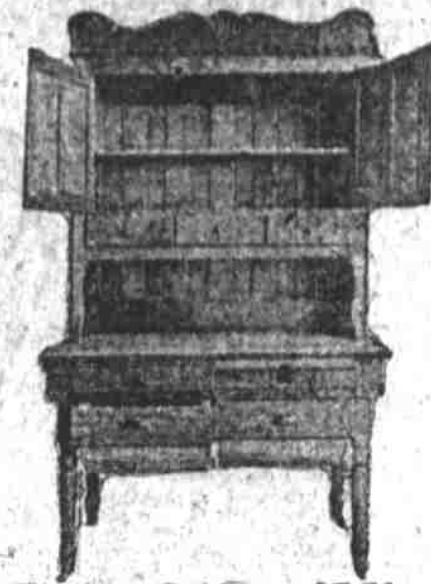

Dresser Specials

- $12.50 Golden Oak $9.40
- $15.00 Golden Oak $11.25
- $18.00 Golden Oak $13.50
- $26.50 Quartered Oak $19.90

Chiffonier Specials

- $12.00 Golden Oak $9.00
- $17.00 Golden Oak $12.75
- $19.00 Golden Oak $14.25
- $20.00 Trina Oak $15.00

Big Special on Kitchen Furniture

Kitchen Treasure $2.50

One Cabinet or Treasure to a customer; cash only; special this week only.

Kitchen Cabinets $5.50

CARPETS RUGS

Extra Special on Room-Size Rugs

- 9x12 Brussels Rugs, mitered corners..... $7.95
- 9x12 all-wool Ingrain Rugs..... $7.95
- 9x12 Pro-Brussels all-wool Rugs..... $8.95
- 9x12 Kashmere Rugs; look like Body Brussels; use both sides; special..... $11.00
- Small Velvet Rugs, 27x54 inches..... $1.15

Twenty-five per cent reduction this week on these very handsome

Laclede Oak Heaters

Burn coal or wood and make elegant parlor stoves.

$5.40 Heaters, special $4.05

$7.00 Heaters, special $5.25

$8.75 Heaters, special $6.56

Stearns & Foster Mattress Sixty (60) Nights Free Trial

Did you ever hear of such an offer? Sleep on it 60 nights, romp on it with the children, put it to any test you will. At the end of 60 days, we will take it back again and return your money immediately, if your satisfaction is not complete. Just notify us that the mattress has been a disappointment and without question, quibble or argument the mattress will be taken away and your money refunded at once.

THESE MATTRESSES ARE MADE OF PUREST SPRING COTTON AND BY THE WONDERFUL WEB PROCESS.

Special machinery crosses and recrosses the filmy cotton fibers into a continuous web. Forty of these buoyant webs laid one upon another make a layer, and nine of these layers make a Stearns & Foster Mattress. To make such a mattress except by their special machinery would be absolutely impossible. Did you notice their two-page ad in the Saturday Evening Post, October 27?

Prices $10.50, $13.50 and $16

TELEPHONE ORDERS NOT TAKEN ON SPECIALS. TERMS CASH. ONLY ONE OF EACH ARTICLE TO EACH PERSON. NONE TO DEALERS.

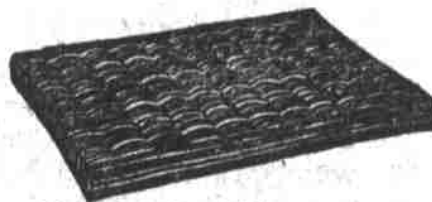

Mrs. Pott's Sad Irons at 85c Set

Did you ever buy a set of Mrs. Pott's Sad Irons for less than $1.25? If so, you got a bargain; if not, you are going to enjoy that privilege. This week we will sell one set to each person—not delivered—at a special price of

85 Cents

Hall Hatrack and Umbrella Stand, Special....

Stands 5 feet 6 inches high and is just the thing you need for the office or home during the rainy season.

One to a Customer

Cotton Top Mattress Special $1.90

81-85-85 CORNER GRAND AVE. E. STARK

MORGAN HITCHLEY FURNITURE CO.

"Rome" Copper Tea Kettles 85c

Nickel-plated 14-ounce metal flat bottom; sold regularly by dealers from $1.35 to $1.60; special this week; one to a person, not delivered; at the special price of

85 Cents

This Handsome Nickel-Trimmed Heater at $7.95

Cast top, bottom and front; also cast lined. We have a big assortment of heaters. Low no-rent prices on all of them.

LARGE SUMS TO DEFEAT BRYAN

(Continued from Page One.)

In the matter is that the Bryan forces have been able to meet every play of the opposition and thus far have an even chance in the state, notwithstanding the inspired gambling.

No More Figures.

Republican headquarters are not giving out figures today. They were a week ago, but the leaders seem to have become wary forecasts and have taken to other generalities. Reports from the middle west show several states in doubt, and the Ohio news is not very encouraging. Democratic headquarters regard Walter Wellman's predictions as good news. Wellman takes the Taft end of the argument, of course, but it is plain from his words to his newspaper in Chicago that he is not sure of the election of the Republican ticket. Wellman is a man who usually is very emphatic in his statements when once he has been convinced, but the way tone of his special does not bear out the assumption in Republican quarters that Wellman thinks Taft a sure winner.

Received at Troy.

William J. Bryan was up early today to begin his second day's campaign of upper New York state. He was at Troy in the forenoon. He was apparently as fresh as the day he began the campaign, although yesterday was one of the hardest days that the candidate has been through since he started his tour of New York.

The Bryan reception at Albany last night was one of the features of the campaign in the state. The commonwealth was introduced by David B. Hill, former United States senator from New York. It was the first time in several years that Hill had appeared on a political platform. "They say there will be a panic if Bryan is elected," declared Senator Hill, in going over the campaign situation, "but it will not be a business panic; it will be a panic on the part of the thousands of Federal officeholders and public officials who will have to surrender their places to the victorious party."

Bryan had difficulty in quieting the crowd when he arose to speak. His speech was an exposition of the issues of the national campaign. He laid special stress on the publicity of campaign contributions and Taft's labor record.

Speaks to Workmen.

At Schenectady Bryan spoke to the employees of the locomotive works and the General Electric company. The men stood in a drizzling rain to hear the leader of the Democratic party. Bryan declared that the Democratic party is going to sweep the country with a great victory in this campaign. He declared that he will carry New York state, the middle west and some of the eastern states.

Objectionable to Labor.

Cohoes, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Taft is the most objectionable of human beings to laboring men, declared William J. Bryan in a speech to a big crowd of laboring men here today. The local factories turned out and the men gave the Commissioner a remarkable reception. He discussed the labor problem.

In the Democratic platform and told how the Republican convention had refused the requests of the great laboring element of the country.

Bryan then attacked Roosevelt's attitude, asserting that his letter to Senator Knox was an attempt to depose Samuel Gompers from his place at the head of organized labor. He charged that the president had deliberately tried to mislead the workmen of the country and turn them against those who were working in their behalf.

The attacks on Roosevelt and Taft were loudly cheered and Bryan was given an ovation that lasted several minutes.

In closing his address he assailed Taft's record on the injunction question and asserted that the part taken by Taft while in charge on a bench did more than the work of any other man to promote the use of injunctions in labor disputes.

At the conclusion of his speech the laboring men gathered about Bryan and insisted upon shaking his hands. Bryan then gave a personal triumph for the Nebraskan, and he said he believed it was an indication that the labor vote would be for him almost solidly.

Bryan is delighted with the prospects of the campaign and before leaving he announced the reports received by him indicated that the Democrats were gaining everywhere and that the prospects for a sweeping victory throughout the nation were better than ever before.

WELLMAN NOT SO SURE TAFT WILL WIN OUT

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Chicago, Oct. 28.—Walter Wellman has wired to the Record-Herald from New York as follows:

"Another Bryan scare, running like wildfire through the country, helps Taft and apparently assures his election by a relatively narrow margin.

"The most noteworthy feature of the closing days of the campaign is the flight over the heads of Bryan's success which has suddenly seized upon the country and the effect it is having upon the battle.

"Its first effect has been to provide Republican campaign managers with more money than they ever dreamed of getting hold of. The second effect is to carry a considerable part of the business influence of the country against Bryan in the White House.

"Broadly speaking, the struggle has now become one between the Republican party, with wealth and business as its conductor, and the Democratic party, with organized labor, or part of it, and the unemployed as its chief auxiliary.

Study of Wealth.

"With plenty of money in their coffers and the business world throwing off its indifference and becoming aggressive, leaders of the Taft campaign no longer fear the outcome, despite the probable loss of Ohio and the danger of losing Indiana.

"This being a season of forecasts and predictions, managers of both national political parties are earnestly assuring their followers that the battle is won, and are injecting confidence into the weary spellbinders by tables of figures which show just how it is going to happen. Manager Mack's claim for Bryan, given out at headquarters in New York, includes the following:

Claims for Bryan.

The solid south including Maryland and New York, Connecticut, Idaho, Montana, Colorado, Nebraska, Nevada, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, New South Dakota, a total of 301 votes, to Mr. Taft's prospective 182, which is quite generous to Taft, is the belief of Mr. Mack's more radical advisors.

To satisfy these enthusiasts therefore, Mr. Mack is including Wisconsin and Illinois in the list of doubtful states.

Manager Hitchcock, cannot see where Taft is going to lose anything that would tend to give the Democrats a triumph. He is going to lose anything that would tend to give the Democrats a triumph.

Bryan is to visit Chicago for the third time Sunday night, and a big demonstration is being arranged, including a grand parade.

BRYAN IS MAKING ONLY CONDITIONAL LECTURE CONTRACTS

(United Press Leased Wire.) Bellefontaine, Ohio, Oct. 28.—On condition that he will accept in case he is defeated for the presidency, William Jennings Bryan has contracted with the Logan county Chautauque society for a lecture here next August.

COUNCIL ASKS HOW MONEY IS SPENT

(Continued from Page One.) drafted in its place, she turned quickly toward Mr. Baker.

"Yes, Mr. Baker is quite right," said she. "We need a life saving crew. The death rate from tuberculosis in this city is 10 per cent and 7 per cent is considered high. The great majority of deaths from this disease can be traced directly to dirty food, especially to dirty and unclean milk. Not long ago I had occasion to visit a child dying of typhoid fever. I found that the case was traceable to the milk given the child. Three other cases of typhoid, traced directly to impure milk and I know of another death from the same source. Gentlemen, the council, I appeal to you to pass an ordinance guaranteeing the lives of the people against the danger from impure milk."

Danger in Mad Mills.

The dairies of Portland and vicinity are a disgrace to the city, Portland is the only city of its size in the country without a law regulating dairies and providing for a pure milk supply. Dairymen who run clean places have nothing to fear from such legislation.

It was at the conclusion of Mrs. Trumbull's speech that Councilman Baker, probably nettled at her reference to his life-saving crew resolution, called her to task and subjected her to a volley of questions as to how the Associated Charities conducted its affairs, ending by proposing a resolution asking for a report. Mrs. Trumbull in reply to one of these questions said that only three members of the organization received salaries. These, she said, are the secretary, assistant secretary and registrar. Mrs. Trumbull is the registrar.

Mrs. Trumbull admitted, in reply to a question from Councilman Bennett, that she had neglected her official duty in failing to report cases of contagious disease when she had visited the children afflicted with typhoid fever. Councilman Kellner then proposed an amendment to the Baker resolution, calling upon the Associated Charities to report all cases of contagious diseases which it became cognizant to the city council and the health department. This amendment was defeated by a vote of 13 to 5, Baker insisting that it was merely an attempt to cover up the intent of his resolution.

Drops in Baby Home.

During the verbal attack by Councilman Baker, Driscoll, Bennett and others on Mrs. Trumbull, Councilman Vaughn excitedly arose and inquired what the Baby Home did with its money. Nobody could see what connection there was between this institution and the subject in hand, but Mr. Vaughn insisted on probing the Baby Home, too. Mayor Lane rapped for order and the outburst of laughter which had greeted Vaughn's question.

In answering objections of some of the councilmen to his resolution on the ground that it was ridiculous for the city to expect a private society to make a report of money being paid to its own private business, Mr. Baker said he wanted the resolution to go before the council at any time and that he wanted the Associated Charities to refuse the request, or not, as it might see fit. He said he regarded the society as a public institution and considered that the city had a right to inspect its expense and salary accounts. Therefore, he demanded a report to the city from it.

Mrs. Trumbull said the Associated Charities would have its annual report published some time next month, but that she didn't consider the council had any right to demand a statement any more than it would have to expect any other private society to make a report on its affairs.

Enough to Scare Her.

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper, and last spring he came down to Philadelphia to purchase his stock of goods for the summer trade. The goods were shipped immediately and reached his store before he did. Among the lot of cases and packages was a box shipped something like a casket. When Bill saw it he called for a hammer. The driverman leaning her shrill cries, rushed in to see what the trouble was. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to the following inscription on the box:

"Bill" Smith is a Bucks county store-keeper,