MAILING DEAD HIGH-UPS

Postal Inspectors Find Evidence Against Stupendous Swindling Scheme—Million of Dollars May Have Been Obtained by Ring.

(Hearst News by Longest Leased Wire.) New York, Nov. 7.—"The most stupendous mailing fraud ever operated in America," according to Chief Postoffice Inspector W. S. Mayer, was brought to a sudden halt today by federal authorities raiding the offices of George W. Emanuel & Co., 576 Fifth avenue, here.

Those arrested were Louis A. Prince and J. Walter Labaree, who is now connected with the Quibdo Gold Dredging company of 64 Broadway. Emanuel narrowly escaped arrest by taking flight for Mexico a half hour before the raid was made.

Lat tonight Cranston Thomas, supposed to be one of the moving spirits in the concern, was taken at his home in Brooklyn. The operations of the men now under arrest are believed to form a vast swindling game, the meshes of which extend over the entire country, Mexico and part of South America.

Millions of dollars are believed to have already been secured by this galaxy of talent while the modest goal at which they aimed was $500,000 from the pockets of the public. "The Mississippi Bubble," of John Law is only the faintest parallel in comparison with it, said Postoffice Inspector Elmer L. Kincaid, who conducted the raid. "It is the most daring and got-rich-quick scheme ever unearthed and had it remained unchecked, it would have compared with the Standard Oil in magnitude."

The names of the men involved in the arrests of today include several prominent financiers and two well-known bucket shop operators who have been the object of a police search. A recent extension of the plans of these men included the formation of several mushroom companies, which now will never see the light of day.

The other partner in the "Old Reliable" Mutual Trust company and under the fostering care of George Emanuel & Co. was organized by Louis Prince and J. Walter Labaree. These men were the principals in a bucket shop failure four years ago amounting to nearly $1,500,000. Labaree temporarily disappeared from view.

Prince came into prominence a year ago when his affidavit named him for $100,000 because he had gone back to his wife. He maintained headquarters in the office of George W. Emanuel, recently removed to the Quibdo Gold Dredging company.

This intimate connection of the former couple of finance with the Quibdo company has also caused the police to cause an accounting from that company, its officers, directors, president, J. B. Ellwell, vice-president, and A. E. Manice, treasurer.

The raid of today was most carefully planned, and was the result of an investigation extending over a year. A special trip to Mexico was made by Inspector Frank M. Hamilton to investigate the claims of the Mexican Mutual Trust Co. as to its holdings.

Today a long cipher dispatch was received from Inspector Hamilton by the chief inspector and the word was given by Assistant United States District Attorney Lorr to go ahead. Hundreds of checks and thousands of letters from customers were found in the offices of the concern, the books of which were found to be filled with the names of the people who were in a heavy steel safe, the keys of which the prisoners claimed could not be found in the trading parties by the Mexican Trust Company of Mexico in their plan of operation was one of the most elaborate ever conceived.

In the first place, there are no trust companies in Mexico under the law. In the second place, they took for the name of their property that of a well-known Mexican mine, the Dos Estrellas. But for their purpose moved it, on paper from one portion of the country to another.

In the third place, a person by the name of Lorenzo B. Speyer, doing a banking business in a shady character in Mexico, was "discovered" by the promoters, and their glowing prospectus was being traded upon the New York market by the Astor and early Spanish explorers.

So far excellent. The prospectus rolled in a stream, and the promoters sent their subscription in by telegraph and special delivery. The dividends were paid and the additional gifts manifested in several cases. The breaking point of the enterprising Mexican Trust Company came when it was discovered that the bonanza which was paying so fabulous returns consisted of a hole in the ground about 50 feet deep and worked by two men. The "big haul" which was of such a marvelous quality was all on the dump, and of the 50 tons excavated not one ounce had ever been shipped.

FINE CLOTHING CAUSES MURDER

Husband Kills Wife Who Loved Dress Too Well—Commits Suicide.

(United Press Leased Wire.) New York, Nov. 7.—Three bullets from the pistol of her husband in their home at 135 East Eleventh street, ended the life tonight of Mrs. Scott, a beautiful woman, whose charms proved fatal to two men. After he had shot her twice through the heart and once through the stomach, her husband, William Starr, blew out his own brains.

At 16, a beautiful cloak model, she met and married David N. Harburger, son of one of New York's coroners. Four years ago young Harburger, driven to distraction, it is said, by his wife's love of fine clothing and of other men's company, died a week before she was two years ago the woman married Scott and six months ago, after many bitter quarrels, caused by her fondness for gay life, they parted. Last night a man named Starr called with an automobile to take Mrs. Scott out for the evening. He was there when Scott's check summoned his wife to the door. The couple remained in the hall talking for a moment, then came four shots. Both died instantly. Starr fled.

Hundreds of checks and thousands of letters from customers were found in the offices of the concern, the books of which were found to be filled with the names of the people who were in a heavy steel safe, the keys of which the prisoners claimed could not be found in the trading parties by the Mexican Trust Company of Mexico in their plan of operation was one of the most elaborate ever conceived.

CHANCELLOR DAY BELAYS TEDDY

Just a Few Good-bye Stingers Before Leaving on His Tour of Globe.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 7.—On the eve of sailing for an eight months tour of the globe, Chancellor James R. Day of Syracuse university came out tonight with a characteristic not unshared with President Roosevelt and W. J. Bryan and bouquets for Rockefeller, Archbold, and the friends of Standard Oil.

"Frowning above the newspaper men that crowded about him aboard the liner Celtic, the outspoken chancellor declared that President Roosevelt was not fit to be at the head of Harvard university."

He said the letters written by John D. Archbold to Senator Foraker and other national legislators, made public during the recent campaign, were perfectly proper. He insisted that any business man had a right to influence legislation, and he added that he had in his possession a great many letters from Mr. Archbold which he would be glad to spread before the public to show what a sterling character Archbold really was.

"I thoroughly believe in the sincerity of Mr. Rockefeller," said the chancellor impressively. "I believe Mr. Rockefeller declared himself honestly. I know of no reason why his sincerity should be called in question. In fact, to call his sincerity in question, and to represent him as indulging in a political trick indicates one of two lamentable conditions in this country."
