

WHEN YANKEE AND JAP MET

Then It Was That a Crisis in Affairs Was Reached and Safely Passed—Diplomats to the Bad, and the People Settled It.

By H. Lee Clotworthy, Staff Correspondent of the United Press, with the Battleship Fleet.

Yokohama, Oct. 23.—By Mail to San Francisco.—A nerve-tensing feeling, that anxious and uncertain expectancy as to the reception awaiting the battleship fleet at Yokohama, keyed the entire personnel, from commander-in-chief to apprentice, to the tension suggestive of the quiet, determined air which pervades a fleet about to engage an enemy, from the very moment that the great steel rams of the fighting ships plowed into Japanese waters.

During the trip from Manila, when a monsoon of terrific force hurled tons of whirling water over the struggling ships, from forecastle to quarter deck, and tumbled the great masses of steel from wave to wave as though they were toys; when lifeboat after lifeboat was being carried away, when men were being swept into the lashing sea, officers and men between battered hatches talked about Japan and the delicate relations existing between the two nations. An elaborate entertainment was anticipated, but it was feared there would be that dreaded indefinable something which would keep a chip balanced on the shoulder of everyone participating. Cheers were expected to be heard, but they were expected to be uttered under imperial edict, and to carry about as much friendly sentiment as the croakings of a flock of ravens.

The men who were to be given liberty were to be restricted to special first-class men, a strict order was issued against taking cameras ashore, and rules of conduct were drilled into all those given liberty, and dire punishment promised any trouble maker.

Ashore, Japan was likewise busily engaged in building trouble-barriers. The governor of Kanagawa prefecture, in which Yokohama is situated, issued a "do" and a "don't" edict which was a masterpiece of detail.

A few of the "don'ts" forbade the starting of dog fights in the streets, expectorating at any time, and the taking of sly peeps at an American while bathing.

Strict injunctions were issued against overcharging, and the populace was enjoined from starting at any of Uncle Sam's fighting beauties.

Mooney and Banzel.

The first liberty party landed early in the evening loaded with instructions. At 10 o'clock, when the liberty party crowded on the picturesque landing stages, loaded with sake, bird eggs, raw fish and bananas.

The first liberty party was decorated with those dainty little hair ornaments which Miss Yun-Yun affects, while several of the first liberty party, as evidence of particular esteem, were given in kimono. Pattering along the streets of Yokohama, the doll-like Japanese maidens were posing on their oriental coiffures, with some difficulty the flat bonnets of Uncle Sam's sailor men—and the situation was relieved.

The next day, when the smiling face of Japan was seen, when the free sake commenced to flow, the situation was cured.

Liberties were extended and every sailor was taken in tow by a Japanese girl. The first liberty party was decorated with those dainty little hair ornaments which Miss Yun-Yun affects, while several of the first liberty party, as evidence of particular esteem, were given in kimono. Pattering along the streets of Yokohama, the doll-like Japanese maidens were posing on their oriental coiffures, with some difficulty the flat bonnets of Uncle Sam's sailor men—and the situation was relieved.

HAWLEY'S POSITION ON STATEMENT NO. 1 ASKED

Maple Lane Grange Writes Congressman Demanding to Know Whether He Is or Is Not in Favor of Allowing Legislators to Violate Pledge.

Congressman W. C. Hawley has been brought squarely face to face with Statement No. 1 and a demand has been made upon him that he declare himself unequivocally on the question whether or not the members of the legislature elected under Statement No. 1 shall break their solemn promise to the people of Oregon. The following communication has been sent to Congressman Hawley by Maple Lane Grange:

"Be it resolved by Maple Lane Grange that our secretary be, and is hereby instructed to send the following open letter to Hon. W. C. Hawley at Salem, Or.:

"Hon. W. C. Hawley, representative in congress, Salem, Or.—Dear sir: Fifty-two members of the legislative assembly of Oregon signed the following agreement with the people of Oregon, commonly called Statement No. 1:

"I further state to the people of Oregon as well as to the people of my legislative district, that during my term of office, I will always vote for that candidate for United States senator in congress who has received the highest number of the people's votes for that position at the general election, preceding the election of a senator in congress, without regard to my individual preference."

"An effort is being made by the Daily Oregonian to cause seven or more of these members to break their pledge to the people of this state.

"The Evening Telegram of October 23 says that many of the Republican party leaders are advocating or approving this movement. If you had signed Statement No. 1, and been elected to the legislative assembly, would you break your promise because the people did not choose your party candidate?

"Do you countenance, advise, or approve of the effort being made to induce any of these members to violate their Statement No. 1 agreement?

"This goes to the very foundation of public morals. We believe men who are public servants should be as faithful, honorable and truthful in keeping their promises to the people as they are in private life.

"Knowing your history as an honorable man and teacher of the youth of our state, we expect an immediate, direct and unequivocal answer to our questions which will demonstrate to the people of the state that you have not lost any of the high standard of honor you taught your pupils during all the years when you were a teacher. Fraternally yours,

"W. M. BEARD,
Secretary of Maple Lane Grange, No. 296.
Dated this seventh day of November, 1908. Oregon City, R. P. D. No. 2."

Death Roll of the Northwest

John Graham Cox.
(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Victoria, B. C., Nov. 10.—Captain John Graham Cox, 65 years of age, Lloyd's agent, one of the best known shipping men of the northwest, died yesterday morning at St. Joseph's hospital, following an operation for appendicitis. He was a member of the ship chandlery firm of E. B. Marvin & Co.

He was born in Nova Scotia and went to sea on his father's ships at 10 years of age. He was master and owner of many vessels in his younger days, when for a time he was a trader in South America. Of late years he was engaged in sealing and owned a number of schooners.

He was one of the best posted men on marine law and business matters on the Pacific coast.

Henry Ewert.
(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Albany, Or., Nov. 10.—Henry Ewert, 79 years of age, Albany's pioneer jeweler, died of Bright's disease last night at his home in this city.

Mr. Ewert was born in Germany and came to the United States in 1872, settling in Albany in 1876. He engaged in the jewelry business. He remained at the same stand for over 30 years.

He leaves a wife and the following children: Mrs. L. Parsons of Oakland, Cal.; Mrs. C. H. Parkes of Charleston, Wash.; A. H. Ewert of Ukiah, Cal.; Emil A. Ewert of Roseland, B. C.; and R. H. Ewert of Nelson, B. C.

Mrs. Mary A. Taylor.
Astoria, Or., Nov. 10.—Mrs. Mary A.

Taylor, 89 years of age, mother of Mrs. E. R. Hayes of this city, died yesterday afternoon at the home of her daughter. The deceased had been a resident of Salem, Or., before coming to Astoria. The remains will be taken to Salem for burial Wednesday morning.

Isom Yeager.
(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Eugene, Or., Nov. 10.—Isom Yeager, 79 years of age, a prominent veteran of the civil war, died at his home in Eugene yesterday. He leaves the following children: Mrs. Alice H. Woodden of Portland, Mrs. Amanda M. Liggett of Eugene, W. L. Yeager of Eugene, Mrs. Dorinda R. Crosby of Eugene and Mrs. L. E. Hodges of Eugene.

FOR OLD PEOPLE

After reaching the age of 40 the human system gradually declines in virility and strength and becomes less able each year to combat the ill that naturally beset mankind. It is then the accumulated poisons in the blood make themselves manifest by rheumatic and other aches and pains in the joints, muscles and back.

People should heed these warning twinges and supply the blood an acid solvent and stimulating tonic.

A prescription which has worked wonders for persons of declining physical vigor follows:

"One ounce Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla; one ounce Toris Compound; half pint of high grade whiskey. This to be mixed and used in tablespoonful doses before each meal and at bedtime. The bottle to be well shaken each time."

Although this is a very simple remedy, it will be found exceptionally effective, the good results becoming apparent after the first few doses. The ingredients can be gotten from any well-stocked drug store and easily mixed at home.
