

Four Prominently Mentioned For President Taft's Cabinet

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—To fill his portfolio of state will probably be one of the most delicate undertakings which President-elect William H. Taft has upon his hands. The secretary of state is the leader of the cabinet. He is only two places removed from the presidency in importance. He is the guardian of American international honor. With American interests expanding and developing throughout the world he becomes the messenger and protector of American expansion, and he is the great American governmental missionary of the world. There is no vouchsafing the idea that the present incumbent in the portfolio of state could succeed himself. He is desired. Elihu Root is one of the biggest men the United States has ever developed. He is one of the most successful state secretaries which has ever presided over the state department. Mr. Taft would like nothing better than he should remain in charge. But Mr. Root is not too rugged nor physically strong. He will undoubtedly desire to lay down his burdens when the administration of President Roosevelt ends. In such an event there are three names which rise to the lips of cabinet prophets. Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts would be probably the logical second choice for the position. No one will deny his perfect qualifications as a diplomat and a warm adviser of Taft. He presided over the Taft convention at Chicago. But Lodge is in the United States senate from Massachusetts with a life mortgage and it is doubtful whether he would prefer the temporary honor of the cabinet to the permanent toga of the senate. Immediately, then, Congressman

PRATT SAYS AGGIES ARE SLOW AT GAME

Manager Martin Pratt of the Multnomah club football team, who witnessed the game between Whitman and Oregon Agricultural college in Corvallis yesterday says it was hard luck that lost the game for the Missionaries. Pratt is a student in the name and his opinion is worth something. Both scores made by the Aggies, according to the big manager, who is named in the case of the field goal, says that it might not have been made had not an official been in the way. It was the Aggie third down with three yards to gain. A play was started that ran over the official but Whitman threw the Oregonian back for a loss. The official decided that the play must be made over and on the replay the Corvallis men made yardage, which put them within easy reach of the goal posts. The field goal resulted. The touchdown came after this fashion. Whitman was on her own doorstep with several yards to gain on the third down. A kick was essayed but the ball went wild on the pass. Instead of falling on it for a safety the Whitman punter lost his head and tried to advance the ball by running. He was stopped on the one-yard line and the ball went to the Beavers. It was an easy matter to put it back from the one-yard line. The Aggies failed of goal. Pratt says the Whitman eleven, though light is pretty fast and will give the "Winged M" eleven a hard battle here Saturday afternoon. They have a number of trick plays on tap which may worry the heavier clubmen, but Mart anticipates a victory over the Wain Walla aggregation. Right now, Pratt thinks the Aggies have a shade over the University of Oregon eleven and would probably be able to defeat them. However, he has this fault to find with the Norcross brigade. They were slow, awfully slow, in getting their play started. A variety of formations was not impressive. They had one shift which bothered the Missionaries, a two-man line, adhered mostly to old-style football, but men were in good condition and this may mean the defeat of the "U" in the game November 21.

GRESHAM ATHLETICS READY FOR OPPONENTS

The Gresham Athletics have organized for the season and are prepared to meet any athletic or school team in the state weighing under 155 pounds. The eleven is being coached by Bittner, a former eastern college player, and Ralph Shepherd. In addition to coaching they will carry the played from halfback position. Among the bukies defending the Gresham colors are: Nye, Congdon, Eagan, Sistofohr, Bittner, Mathews, Walker, Wirtz, Thompson, Merrill, Hoss, Dodge, Fieldhouse and Metzger. Manager R. Shepherd is anxious to hear from the manager of the following eleven: Catholic Athletic club, Albina Athletic club, Multnomah, Astoria, Highland Tigers, Crescents and St. James college. Write the manager, in care of Gresham postoffice.

ATELL AND WELSH PREPARE FOR FIGHT

(United Press Lined Wire.) Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 12.—Abe Attell and Freddie Welsh will start active work today for their scheduled 16-round battle before the Jeffries Athletic club Thanksgiving eve. Monte Attell, brother of the feather-weight champion, arrived in Los Angeles Wednesday and went immediately to Jack Doyle's camp at Vernon, where Abe is to train. Freddie Welsh has decided to work at the Venice Athletic club. Freddie has trained for two fights at the seaside resort and has an idea that the weather there agrees with him. Jim Jeffries and his partner, Jack Kipper, have opened a big betting establishment in Los Angeles at the Jeffries Commission house. Sammy Korper, the book-maker, has been placed in charge of the office. Korper will conduct the place at his Spring street resort. Korper reported Wednesday that betting on the Attell-Welsh fight had opened at even odds. Korper also reports a big commission received to place on Billy Papke as to the pugilistic program comes the Wolgast-Bubbles' Robinson ten-round scheduled for Tom McCarty's Grand Junction barn tomorrow night. Wolgast has been made the subject of considerable criticism since his arrival owing to the withdrawal from the Attell match. The little fellow is more than anxious to knock Robinson out and the go should be a "hummer."

Tacoma's Golfers.

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 12.—Eight of Tacoma's crack golf players will leave for Portland Friday night to engage in the championship tournament there Saturday. Players from Tacoma, Seattle, Portland, Spokane and Victoria will compete in the event. The golfers who will participate are: Chester Thorne, P. J. Franstell, R. Wheeler, Carl Stebbins, Herbert G. Griggs, H. J. Bremer, Carl Thompson and O. H. Van Millingen.

SHERIFF FILES SUIT ON W. B. CATE'S BOND

An echo of the Hawthorne estate's troubles with W. B. Cate was heard in the circuit court this morning, when suit was filed by Sheriff George I. Hancock of Washington county against Gustave Friewald and J. A. Imbrie to enforce payment of a redelivery bond given by the defendants to Hancock's predecessor in office, John W. Council. Last year Mrs. Rachel L. Hawthorne sued W. B. Cate in Washington county and filed a garnishment for $3,750. The defendants gave a redelivery bond for the amount involved, agreeing to secure the sheriff against loss if the case went against the defendant. In March of the present year the circuit court in Washington county gave judgment for Mrs. Hawthorne for $1,500. Sheriff Hancock says only $539.80 has been paid on the bond, leaving $2,882 due.

PRESENT FROM OLD COLLEGE CHUMS IS FOLLOWED BY BILL

An express package much like those common about Christmas time drifted into the Federal building the other day. It was addressed: "Mr. C. J. Reeve, United States district attorney." It was quite evident that on the inside were the names Burch & Murphy of Chicago. The initials and everything considered it was finally agreed that the present belonged to C. J. Reeve, United States marshal, owing to the similarity of names. So the bundle was unpacked. The cutest little bronze bust of President Roosevelt that one ever saw was revealed. Mr. Reeve was sure that the gift was for him. There was no question about it. In fact, didn't he know Burch & Murphy well? Hadn't he come to school with them years and years ago? Hadn't he been looking for them to send him something nice for a great long time? Sure he had. While John McCourt is district attorney, he didn't have much of a claim on the bronze piece because he couldn't figure out any way how the name "Reeve" might have been mistaken for that of "McCourt." And as Mr. Reeve and Messrs Burch & Murphy, the senders, were old college chums, he let it go at that. Yesterday Mr. Reeve wrote a long letter to the Chicago men telling them of his appreciation of the remembrance they had bestowed upon him. This morning a bill came for the bronze bust. It was for $5. "The party of Burch and the ingratitude of Murphy," Mr. Reeve announced at once. "All the old college traditions of loyalty and all that sort of thing have been busted—been shattered beyond recall." An effort was made to pass the bust—and the bill—along to Mr. McCourt. Mr. McCourt laughed. He said there was nothing doing. Now the marshal is endeavoring to overtake that letter of thanks on its way to Burch & Murphy somewhere between Portland and Chicago.

BIG POLICEMAN FOILS SMALL BOY'S ATTEMPT TO TURN HOBO

An ax, a chicken—dead "cause I carried it so long"—and two jars of fruit with that equipment Willie Meyer, aged 11 and with a marvelously dirty face, started to see the world last night. He got as far as the Union avenue bridge across Sullivan's gulch. When Patrolman Addison found Willie just before 5 o'clock this morning, he was lying by the side of a fire he had built on the bank of the gulch. "I'm going to be a sure-enough hobo," said Willie. The policeman asked him where his parents lived. "At 143 East Third," replied the young tramp as he rose from his improvised couch by the embers. Addison and Willie walked to the house in question. That ended the search for Willie's parents, and he went to jail. This morning the boy told the officers his father and mother manage the Temple lodging house, at First and Taylor streets. He was turned over to the juvenile court, after his face and hands had been given a washing.

TACTICS IN TRIAL OF LAMPHERE (United Press Lined Wire.) Laporte, Ind., Nov. 12.—Deeming that Mrs. Belle Gunness, the mysterious woman of the La Porte murder farm is still alive, Attorney Worden on behalf of Ray Lamphere, Mrs. Gunness' servant has caused subpoenas to be issued for her. The name of Mrs. Gunness stands at the head of the list of witnesses to be summoned for Lamphere, to prove his innocence of the charge of murdering Mrs. Gunness and her three children on April 25, 1903. Subpoenas for Mrs. Gunness have been placed in the hands of deputy sheriffs. The plans of the defense were given a setback when Prosecutor Smith intimated that the state would endeavor to build its case against Lamphere on the murder of the three children of Mrs. Gunness, instead of attempting to prove the death of the widow. CONSUMPTION STATISTICS. Prove that a neglected cold or cough puts the lungs in so bad a condition that consumption seems find a fertile field for fastening on one. Stop the cough just as soon as it appears with Ballard's Horehound Syrup. Soothes the torr and inflamed tissues and makes you well again.
