F. J. Helliwell failed to get to the jury yesterday afternoon with his suit for $1,000 damages against the Portland Railway, Light & Power company, Judge Cleland granting a motion for nonsuit after the plaintiff's evidence had been submitted. Helliwell is a grocer at Kern Park, and was hit by a car on the platform at that place last February. The case went out of court because several of his witnesses testified that the motorman of the approaching car blew the whistle some distance away from him. Helliwell testified that he did not hear the warning, but his other witnesses established the theory of contributory negligence for the defense.

After the literary hour Scotch cakes and tear were served.

Why did 85 hydrants lie rusting all last summer while thousands of property owners were crying for fire protection and were given to understand that no hydrants were available? This is a question, the agitation of which caused the resignations of three members of the executive board on the fire committee of the executive board. The committee declared its inability to solve the query. At the executive board meeting last evening the new fire committee was ordered to find out why the hydrants were never tested.

A reliable hot water bag and fountain syringe is an indispensable adjunct to every household, but a cheap trashy affair that is liable to leak just when needed, is worse than useless. We guarantee our rubber goods and patrons can depend on reliability when their wants are left with us. Albert Berni, the druggist, 233 Washington.

AWAIT EXPERT'S BRIDGE REPORT

The bridge committee of the executive board which met yesterday afternoon refused to accept the newly completed East Twenty-eighth street bridge in spite of a declaration by City Engineer Taylor that the structure is satisfactory to him.

The mayor and members of the bridge committee had made several trips of inspection to the bridge and they found a large crack in one of the abutments. This did not please the executive board and the mayor says he will wait until an expert can go over the work before he thinks of accepting it.

Construction work was supervised by Assistant City Engineer Hannan, who regards the reinforced concrete span across Sullivan's gulch as strong and substantial and in every way meeting the specifications of the city. The bridge cost $70,000.

SLY CHINESE AND THEIR NEW PLAN

A new scheme to beat old Uncle Samuel has been discovered among the Chinese, federal officials believe. It is for an oriental who has been in this country long enough to secure a certificate of identification to sell his papers to a newly arrived Chinaman for a goodly sum. Then the newcomer struts around proudly as he pleases. But the old-timer—well, he takes the chance of getting caught and being sent back to the land of the poppy.

Eng On is in the county jail, a federal prisoner. Eng is suspected of having sold his certificate of identification. Eng is a Pendleton Chinaman, by occupation a laundryman. When Eng was first arrested he found no difficulty in getting friends to go on his bond. But the government began investigating Eng's case and the bondsmen became scared, thinking that possibly he would skip. So they surrendered their man, fearing that they might get stuck for the money they had put up. Eng On is originally from Chicago, and there he took out his certificate some years ago. Eng wasn't heard of for years afterward.

Not long ago the immigration authorities began making things hot for Eng On. He didn't have his certificate. He applied to Washington for a duplicate of the original. Things became more and more suspicious, and Eng On was eventually arrested. The case is in the hands of Walter H. Evans, assistant United States district attorney. It is believed Eng On made several hundred dollars by selling his certificate to a fellow countryman, who had sneaked into the United States and who was desirous of remaining either by hook, nook or crook.

Four Pages of Color-Comics

The Sunday Morning Journal has introduced a new feature, the four-page color comics section. Heretofore The Sunday Journal has published two four-color pages of comics and two pages in black. Beginning tomorrow the four-page color comics will appear, and from that on.

In addition to the comics, The Sunday Journal has a 12-page magazine, which will contain "An Electric War on Agencies of Death," or Maxim's plans to prolong human life. "Dutchess of the Abruzzi versus the American Princess," an interesting gossip story from Rome relative to the pending marriage of the duke of the Abruzzi to Miss Elkins.

"Passing of Mary and Her Lamb." Up-to-date subjects now pictured in school books.

"Should Men, Not Women, Be Spectacular in Dress?" A study of fine clothes.

"Proposed Deep Waterway Across the State of Michigan." "First Scandinavian Governor Elected," "Has Lovemaking Improved?" and a dozen other clever stories by Sunday Journal staff writers.

An unusually fine sporting section, women's pages and a children's section. News from all parts of the world. Try The Sunday Journal for a month, and you will never be without it thereafter.
