Notes From the Labor World

For 10 hours work a day in Japanese shipyards, boilermakers receive 98 cents, calkers 49 cents, punchers 46 cents, screwmakers 47 cents, finishers $1, molders 87 cents, electricians 57 cents, lathe-workers 90 cents, coppersmiths 96 cents, machinists 57 cents, blacksmiths $1.23, iron workers $1.32, and foundrymen $1.02.

The wage troubles between the publishers of San Francisco and their typographers and mailers are attracting the attention of those identified with the printing trades throughout the country. The employers and the union men have been at loggerheads for nearly a year over a bonus of $1 a day which the publishers granted the men just after the earthquake and which the publishers later sought to discontinue.

About 85 per cent of the employes of the cotton mills in Japan are women and girls, and they receive, on an average, 12½ cents a day for 11 hours work. The men average double what the women get. While there are no labor unions in this industry, there is prospect that, before long, such unions will be formed.

A remarkable feature of the recent Wyoming coal miners' strike was that Japanese and Chinese miners and laborers made common cause with their Caucasion fellow-workers. It was probably the first time on record that the orientals and the Americans stood together in a strike, at least in this country.

A comparison of the wages paid in the woolen mills of Italy, France, England and the United States shows that the wage-earners in the woolen industry of the United States receive nearly three times the pay of Italian workers, double that of the French and 70 per cent more than the English.

The importance of iron, steel and tinplate, textiles and silk to the people of Pennsylvania becomes apparent, when it is stated that the wage roll for these industries aggregated last year nearly $145,000,000, distributed among more than 500,000 workers.

The coopers of Edinburgh, Scotland, who are on a strike at the present time, have sent out an appeal to trade unionists the world over, asking them to boycott the beer of the brewers who will not agree to the demands of the strikers.

The various trades in the building industry of Jamaica, West Indies, are organizing into unions, which will be affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, whose agents have assisted in the organization of the unions.

During the past two years the United Brewery Workmen of America have paid out more than $115,000 for strike benefits. Nevertheless the organization is at present in a flourishing condition and growing stronger.
