SOCIETY

The Irvington Tennis clubhouse was the scene of a brilliant social event Thursday evening when Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph A. Marshall gave a reception and dance in honor of their daughter, Miss Vivian Marshall, and their son and his bride, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Fleming Marshall. In the receiving line with the host and hostess and the guests of honor were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wood, parents of the bride. Mrs. Rudolph A. Marshall was handsomely gowned in lilac messaline with trimmings of rich lace and tucked net, made en traine; Mrs. Clifford Marshall wore her wedding gown of white messaline adorned with rare old lace; Miss Marshall wore a dainty white lingerie frock over pink silk with long sashes of pink satin; Mrs. Frank Wood wore a rich apricot-colored messaline gown, en traine.

The Misses Nina and Lila Guthrie and Elmer Young and Cyrus Woodworth received the guests as they arrived and Mrs. W. J. Hofmann and Mrs. Leon Peters escorted them to the receiving line.

The hall was elaborately decorted with greens and the musicians were screened by a bower of fir boughs. Punch was served in the open air gallery and late in the evening refreshments were served. Prasp's orchestra furnished the music.

The Wilder Male chorus was given a pleasant surprise last Wednesday evening at Grace M. E. church. After the regular weekly rehearsal the young men were marched down stairs into the Sunday School room, where an oyster supper had been provided for them by Mrs. L. O. Ralston. Speeches were made by J. K. Gill, W. M. Wilder, G. H. Street and other members of the chorus. This was the first of several entertainments which are projected for this organization during the coming winter. The chorus is now larger than ever before. The chorus will soon give a unique musical service which will consist of hymns of the Southland, which will represent old plantation melodies and will be of unusual importance to all who have an interest in the hymns of the colored people.
