

ELOPES; JAILED AS HORSE THIEF

Four Months Behind Bars and Still Has Sweet-heart to Win.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
North Yakima, Wash., Nov. 16.—Starting out to elope with the girl of his choice and winding up behind the prison bars, was the experience of Edward E. Edwards. He has languished in jail since last August on the charge of horse stealing, but the romantic side of the story was not given out until today when his trial opened.

Edwards was alleged to have hired a team at Toppenish to drive to Granger and return, but instead of doing this he drove on to Prosser where he claimed that the team was his own. He was arrested there and brought back to North Yakima.

In court today Edwards claimed that he had been working for a man named H. Quackenbush at Granger and fell in love with his daughter. They wanted to get married, but the union was opposed by the girl's parents, and Edwards was driven out and ejected from the farm.

But love laughs at locksmiths and Edwards was not to be denied. It was agreed between him and the girl that they would elope, and it was in making these arrangements that Edwards was discovered.

He went to Toppenish, where he hired the team from Mr. Newell. He made arrangements with Mr. Newell's man at that time to have another team ready for him when he should return, so that he could drive right on to North Yakima. He knew that he might be followed and that it would be well to have a fresh team so that he would lose no time in making the trip.

He drove to Granger, and found the young lady ready for the elopement. But Edwards did not have much money and he decided first to collect some that was due him from a man for whom he had worked. He drove to the place, but found that the man he sought was not there. He was while there on this mission that he was arrested.

When the state had presented its testimony in the case and the defense had told what was intended to be proved, Judge Preble instructed the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty, as it had not been shown that there had been intent to steal.

NO TROUBLE; OPEN DOOR SHUT, THAT'S ALL

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Washington, Nov. 15.—Although President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Root deny there is any friction between the United States and Japan regarding the open door in China, and it is said no request or demand has been made upon Japan, it is understood that diplomatic exchanges of views on this subject have taken place in the last few days.

Ambassador Takahira made several calls on Secretary Root last week and it is authoritatively stated that these conferences concern Japan's policy in Manchuria.

Numerous complaints have been made by American merchants and other foreign merchants in Manchuria that while ostensibly maintaining a policy of noninterference in outside trade, the Japanese officials are secretly favoring their own countrymen.

The result is that trade of American and other foreign merchants has suffered greatly.

To Clean Cane-Seated Chairs

When cane-seated chairs become shabby and the elasticity is gone out of them, they may be restored by turning up the seat and washing the cane work with hot suds made by dissolving a tablespoonful of Gold Dust Washing Powder in a pail of water. Apply the suds with a sponge until the cane is thoroughly soaked and leave in the fresh air until dry. Willow and rush furniture may be cleaned in the same way.

COMES TO KICK BUT KICKS BARS ONLY

"A great big cop hit me in de jaw and I want to know who he is."

With this salutation, E. J. Kelly, 23 years of age, a clerk in a cigar store at Second and Burnside streets, addressed Captain Slover at the station Saturday night.

"I don't know who he is," answered the captain, "he is over 30 men on my relief."

"You do, too," retorted Kelly. "Now I'm not here to be made a fool of; I'm here on business and I want to know what cop is on Third street at 11 o'clock p. m. I mean a. m. 11 o'clock p. m. in the morning. Now I want to know his name, do you understand? I want to find him."

Captain Slover did not know who the bluecoat was and Kelly became angry.

"What's your name?" he demanded. "A. E. Slover," repeated the captain. "Well, I'm going to investigate you tomorrow, but I'd like to see de guy what hit me in de jaw."

"Show this man the fellow who hit him in de jaw," said Captain Slover to Jailer Wallace, who immediately escorted the impudent Kelly to a cell in the corridor, where he spent the night, and decided that he didn't want to see the cop who hit him after all. Captain Slover dismissed him in the morning in order that he might open up the cigar store where he said he was employed.

MISSING CRUISER'S DEATH ACCIDENTAL

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Puyallup, Nov. 15.—The remains of Mel C. Ormes, the timber cruiser, who has been missing from this vicinity since October 22, have been found 600 yards from the house where he had made his headquarters and where he was last seen. A gunshot wound in his right breast showed how the unfortunate man met his death. The wound is a glancing one, and the bullet is supposed to have lodged in his heart. Death was apparently the result of an accident. Ormes, who was in the employ of Scott & Howe, of Tacoma, was a Seattle man, 35 years of age, and resided at 4537 Oregon street, Station G.

October 22 he left his headquarters at the Enger family farm and started to work. Half an hour later he returned and asked for a gun, saying he had seen a bear. The gun was given him, and he left and was never seen again. Not until two weeks had elapsed was any alarm given by the Enger family when his disappearance was made known searching parties were immediately formed. A reward of $200 was offered by his employers.

"WIRELESS" BALKS ATTEMPT TO RAID GAMBLING GAMES

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Lewiston, Idaho, Nov. 15.—The second victory for the reform forces that are seeking social betterment in the city of Lewiston came about today when by a sweeping order of Judge Steels of the district court the slot machines in saloons and cigar stores were ordered seized and confiscated.

The order was placed in the hands of the sheriff, but the wireless telegraph in operation between the courtroom and the downtown districts enabled a mafioso transfer that resulted in little plunder for the officer who made the seizure.

This order, following the one of Monday closing the open gambling, is putting on the lid with a snap in the Gateway city.

RUINOUS FIRE AT TILLAMOOK

Many Business Blocks Destroyed by Early Morning Conflagration.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Tillamook, Or., Nov. 15.—The most disastrous fire in recent years occurred here early Sunday morning. The entire town block and a restaurant were burned to the ground. The fire threatened to destroy the entire town. Numerous buildings caught fire from the partially destroyed opera house two blocks away and a residence four blocks away ignited and was partially destroyed.

Following are the losses: Sappington company groceries, $37,000; Tillamook bakery, $8,000; Dr. R. T. Beak, $1,500; Talmage & Johnson, lawyers, $960; Masonic lodge, $500; Reese restaurant, $1,200; Tillamook hotel, $10,000; Clough, druggist, $30; Billy Stevens' billiard hall, $150; G. A. Edmonds, general merchant, $100; By water and smoke, P. F. Brown, shoes; Todd & son, clothing; Sturgeon Millinery company, $100. The fire was discovered at 4:30 a. m. in the rear of the bakery.

The volunteer company responded. The fire is supposed to be given chloroform. The greater part of the loss is covered by insurance.

WOMAN DIES IN DENTIST CHAIR

(United Press Leased Wire.)
San Francisco, Nov. 15.—Mrs. Anna Lindsay, a nurse, succumbed to the effects of chloroform yesterday in the chair of Dr. Louis Graham, a dentist.

According to the statement of Dr. Graham and Dr. W. E. Miller, a physician with offices in the same building, the woman asked to be given chloroform to allay the pain of the extraction of a tooth. She had taken the anesthetic before, the doctors said, and no trouble was feared. She went under the chloroform, and three teeth were extracted. When she began to sink the doctors called in Dr. R. Buell to aid them in the effort to revive the woman.

She died within 15 minutes after the chloroform was administered. It is stated that no charges will be preferred against the doctors.

ACCUSED POSTMASTER COMMITS SUICIDE

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Austin, Tex., Nov. 15.—Dr. Carl Von Tiedemann, the accused postmaster of Cortes, Tex., committed suicide in his cell last night with a revolver. Dr. Von Tiedemann's suicide followed an attack of insanity. He was working in the inspectors were working to locate where he obtained the poison when the shooting took place.

Dr. Von Tiedemann was under arrest charged with embezzling $4,300 from the registered mail while postmaster at Cortes, Tex. He claimed that burglars entered his room and stole the money.

He was in trouble at San Francisco in 1894. He practiced medicine there and was acquitted in the superior court of charges of forgery and falsifying public documents. Subsequently his methods were investigated in connection with the Sullivan estate scandal, in which Attorney John Chariton was sent to the penitentiary.

PROMINENT PASTOR DIES AT EUGENE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Eugene, Or., Nov. 15.—Rev. D. B. Lovelidge, 84 years of age, who until June, 1907, had served as pastor of St. Mary's Episcopal church, Eugene, for 20 years died at his home two miles east of Eugene Saturday. Death was unexpected, he having been apparently well up to a short time before.

Rev. Lovelidge was born near Milford, Conn. He came to Oregon over 20 years ago, first serving as rector of Trinity church, Portland, for a short time, then coming to Eugene, where he had resided since. He owned a fine fruit farm near this city, to which he retired from active ministerial life after resigning the pastorate of the local church.

Three daughters survive, Miss Emily Lovelidge, superintendent of the Good Samaritan hospital, Portland; Misses Ruth and Myra, Eugene.

SPECIAL DELIVERY BOYS TO KEEP JOBS

Boys as special delivery messengers in the postoffice department are to continue.

Some months ago the department officials at Washington sent out an order to the effect that as the boys in the service gradually left it or were promoted their places were to be taken by substitute mail carriers on the list. The extra carriers all over the country didn't like the idea worth a cent and filed numerous objections to the new ruling. The result was that the order was rescinded.

For years the special delivery service has been a stepping stone for boys desiring to enter the postal department. The boys learn the business while serving as messengers and in many instances take the civil service examination when they are of age and are then promoted to positions of carrier or other branches of the department.

From 10 to 15 boys work as messengers at the Portland postoffice. That Uncle Sam intends keeping them busy in this line was not only welcome news to the boys themselves, but to others who enjoy seeing them on the streets in their blue-gray uniforms.

WOMAN IS CARRIED SHRIEKING TO JAIL

The shrieks of an insane woman echoed through the halls of the courthouse this morning while an effort was being made to persuade Mrs. Julia Dolosok to go quietly to jail. She wandered into the county clerk's office, where she was seized and half carried down stairs into jail, fighting desperately and shouting at the top of her voice, "They've got me. They've got me."

Little is known of her except that she is of German birth and has a husband, Frank Dolosok.

Gasoline is said to be a perfect and cheap antiseptic for cleaning and sterilizing surgical instruments.

AT THE THEATRES

"The Man on the Box."

A picture of Ezra Meeker and his ox team and equipment, who recently crossed the continent twice in true pioneer style, retracing the trail over which he migrated in 1852, appears in the November Popular Mechanics. Mr. Meeker is 78 years old and of venerable appearance.

The government is experimenting in San Francisco bay with a buoy three huge wings of corrugated iron, sheeting, which catch the whistles of steam vessels. It is believed it will prove effective in a fog as though the buoy itself furnished the noise.

WATER PLANT IS OWNED BY CITY

Property of Willamette Valley Company Is Transferred to Eugene.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Eugene, Or., Nov. 15.—Eugene now owns its water plant, actual transfer to the city of the Willamette Valley company's plant being made Saturday, when the deed of transfer was made out and recorded. The purchase price is $140,000, and the property transferred to the city includes Skinner's butte, a slightly eminence in the northern part of the city, upon which the two reservoirs are situated. This is one of the finest natural park sites on the coast, and the city will some day beautify the hill.

The date of the transfer of the property was put on the deed as July 1, as that was the date originally agreed upon, the transfer being postponed until the validity of the bonds could be determined in the supreme court. All the profits of the plant from that date go to the city and the city pays for all the improvements made since then.

Mayor Matlock will appoint a commission to operate the plant as soon as authority is granted him to do so by the council.
