

MISS CUMMING WEDS; HER SISTER ENGAGED

Mrs. Arnold Perpell, nee Cumming, Charming Young Portland Woman Who Was Married in New York.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) New York, Nov. 24.—A wedding of marked social importance was solemnized at St. Paul's church in Flat Bush Section, Brooklyn, Saturday noon, when Miss Inez Cumming, a Portland girl, daughter of Doctor W. A. Cumming, was wedded to Harold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Perpell, of the aristocratic Marborough road.

The ushers were Edwin Roberts, John Harold Knox, Edward Cameron and William McKee. The bride was gowned in white satin, dirndl style, trimmed with princess lace and cloth of gold and wore a tulle veil with orange blossoms; she carried a bouquet of white roses. Her sister, the bride-maid gown was of pale lavender, with a picture hat to match with pale yellow plumes; she carried yellow roses. The groom's mother was gowned in blue embroidered crepe. The bride's aunt was gowned in black velvet, dirndl style. At the wedding breakfast at the spacious home of Mrs. Jones the interesting announcement was made of the engagement of the bride's sister to Louis L. Leadbetter of Portland. The bride's cake cut at the breakfast contained an old-time ring, thimble, gold piece, and an old-time ceremony was carried out in cutting it.

BIG JIM WORSE THAN ABE RUEF

This the Theory of Ach, With Cross-Examination Based Thereon.

(United Press Leased Wire.) San Francisco, Nov. 24.—With his cross-examination of "Big Jim" Gallagher, the self-styled co-between of Abraham Ruef and the boodling board of supervisors, limited by Judge Lawrence, Attorney Henry Ach endeavored today to show that Gallagher and not Ruef was the corruptor of the supervisory morals. Ach dwelt upon Gallagher's testimony at the first trial of Tracy L. Ford, chief counsel of the United Railroads, to show that Gallagher went to the former Superior Attorney Furey before he was inducted into office as a supervisor and asked Furey to "stand in." He also called up similar testimony given by Gallagher to this effect at the recent preliminary hearing in the police court. Finally Ach compelled Gallagher to admit that although he was a representative of Ruef to the supervisors the board never made him its confidential agent to Ruef. Ach endeavored to bring in bits of Gallagher's testimony before the grand jury in an effort to show that Gallagher frequently reversed his statement. This was not allowed by the court. Ach exhaustively questioned Gallagher regarding alleged conferences with Attorney Furey regarding the framing of a trolley ordinance, in an endeavor to further tangle up the testimony of the witness.

$ FOR $ FROM SHAREHOLDERS

100 Per Cent Assessment on Stock of Defunct La Grande Bank.

La Grande, Or., Nov. 24.—The shareholders of the defunct Farmers & Traders National bank must stand an assessment of 100 per cent on their stock, according to an official notice from the comptroller of the currency. In other words, the shareholders must pay dollar for dollar of the amount of stock which they held in the suspended institution. The capital stock of the bank was $60,000, and as there are less than 25 shareholders, the average assessment will be heavy. J. W. Scriber was one of the heaviest stockholders, and as he is bankrupt, it is only natural to suppose that full payment will not be made on receiver's claims. But, aside from Scriber, it is said that every shareholder is well capable of meeting the assessment, though some of the smaller ones will feel the loss of the money. The announcement is expected to stir up a considerable flurry, but it is only what has been expected all the time. The payments on this assessment must be met December 15.

NEW YORKERS FLOCK TO WESTERN STOMACHOLOGIST

Cooper No Longer Talks, As He Says Others Now Do It For Him

The immense sale of Cooper's medicine in New York continues to increase. On Monday Cooper's headquarters was packed with people all day waiting to talk with the young man or his assistants. In speaking of his success in New York, Cooper said: "It is this way everywhere I go. As I have said before, the stomach causes most of the ill health of this generation. I am successful because Cooper's New Discovery puts the digestive apparatus in shape, then nature does the rest. I no longer have to make any claims for the medicine. I let others do the talking; this beats anything I could say on the subject. Nine out of 10 here today have been sent by friends who are taking the medicine. More people are now calling to thank me for the relief my treatment has brought them than I have time to talk with. What could I say that would compare with this?" The following is a sample of what people say who, as Cooper stated, are now coming in numbers to thank him: "George Bedell, of No. 37 Marlon street, Brooklyn, when interviewed, said: 'Others have had their say about this Cooper medicine, so I will give mine. I am within one month of 35 years old, and have had chronic gastric indigestion, catarrh of the stomach and extreme constipation for 15 years. During every year of this time I have been consulting physicians and specialists and I have taken enough pills and prescriptions to load a boat. For from seven to nine days at a time I have suffered the torments of purgatory, with no relief. During this time I would be bent double with cramps, could not even take liquid food, and would not get a wink of sleep. When I first heard of Cooper being in New York, I said, 'here's another westerner who has come to get eastern money; well, he gets none of mine.' After a while I heard that many people who were being benefited, and I figured that at least I could do no harm to try it, so one day about a month ago I stumbled in to see him, weak I could hardly stand up. I took the treatment home and at the end of the first week began to see some results. I continued at the end of the third week I felt actually like a dead man brought back to life. 'I have been a great smoker all my life, but of late years I have had to stop. I could no longer relish a smoke, and I had to give up. Now I can smoke with greater enjoyment than for many years, with no evil effects. I can sleep soundly in any position, and do not toss and thrash. In fact, all my complaints have disappeared. I have thanked God every day for the past two weeks, but this man came to New York, I hope he lives long to enjoy his success, for if ever a man deserved it he does.' Cooper's New Discovery, the medicine that astonished New York City, is now on sale at leading drug stores throughout the United States. Ask your druggist for it.

JOHN D. GETS FRANK B. GRILLING

Still Shows Need of Memory Restorer — Reveals the Railway Holdings.

(United Press Leased Wire.) New York, Nov. 24.—John D. Rockefeller faced Frank B. Kellogg today for his final grilling in the government suit to dissolve the Standard Oil company of New Jersey. The oil king was primed for the closing ordeal and seemed well satisfied with his performance on the stand up to date. It is expected that John D. Archbold, vice-president and acting head of the Standard Oil company will be the next witness. He will probably take up the story where John D. left off at the status of development in 1882, and carry the narrative to the present time. Kellogg will use the previous testimony of Archbold before the congressional committee and other bodies in an effort to confuse him. It already has been shown that the memories of Rockefeller and Archbold disagree in regard to several important points. Kellogg today took up the investigation of the system of stock distribution which began in 1882. He asked a number of questions along that line. Rockefeller admitted that he did not own all of the 442,797 shares of Standard stock accredited to him on the records of the corporation in 1889. He could not remember just how much he did own, he said.

Regulating Competitors. Kellogg then shifted to the consideration of the policy of the Standard in regulating the production of competitors. Rockefeller said he knew Schofield, Schurmer and Teagle, the operators of a refinery in Cleveland. Replying to a question, however, he said he remembered no contract with them in 1876 in which they agreed not to handle more than 85,000 barrels of crude oil in the western field. He would arrange this amount so that about 42,000 would be handled each six months. In return for the agreement, as explained by Rockefeller, Schurmer & Teagle firm was guaranteed an increase in receipts of $75,000 yearly, and the Standard of Ohio was to receive the excess of profits up to $60,000. The additional profits were to be divided between Schofield, Schurmer & Teagle and the Standard. Rockefeller said such a contract might have been made, but he did not recall it.

Kellogg called the attention of the witness to an injunction suit asking Schofield to comply with the conditions of the contract. "I think we had some litigation with them, but I can't recall the conditions," said Rockefeller. "When asked if he signed an affidavit setting forth the conditions of the contract, he said: 'If such an affidavit was made, I, as the president of the Standard Oil company, would be the person to sign it.' Their Rockefeller again took refuge behind his failing memory and answered that he could not recall a similar restrictive contract with the Pioneer Oil company, operating a refinery at Cleveland. He said he did not recall other affidavits regarding the Schofield contract. Rockefeller's Railway Holdings. Kellogg questioned the oil king about the connection of the Standard officials with railroad companies and Standard interests. The witness said he could speak only for himself, but admitted that he was a stockholder and bondholder in a number of railroads. "Do you own stock in the Wisconsin Central?" was asked. "I don't own stock, but I may own some bonds," said Rockefeller. He said he also owned a few Pennsylvania railroad bonds. Kellogg then asked: "Could you name the railroads in which you are interested?" he replied, "but I am quite certain that those gentlemen from the stock exchange back the Standard in the back of the courtroom) would think me foolish if I did so. I have no personal objection to naming them, but I do not intend to announce my investments publicly unless ordered to do so, in which case I should."

Kellogg pressed the point and Rockefeller said: "I have investments of stocks in the Delaware & Lehigh, the Erie and York Central, the Pennsylvania, the Western Maryland, the Missouri Pacific, the Texas Pacific, and the Erie, and I hold one of the first preferences of the Colorado & Southern and a railroad in Mexico, the name of which I cannot recall offhand." "Is it true that you are a heavy owner of stocks and bonds in the leading railroads of the country?" Kellogg asked. "Yes, I should say so," Rockefeller replied. "I have acquired the bonds in the indebtedness of a group of railroads in conjunction with other operators, who are in the habit of borrowing money on good security, and I am interested in the stocks of railroads to a lesser extent." "These stocks and bonds of railroads were purchased purely for investments and they represent my personal choice," Rockefeller added. He declared in response to a question, that other men were more heavily interested in railroads than he. When asked to name them, however, he said he could not. "There must be a great many," he said. "There have been a number of good propositions in stock and bonds that I have not been privileged to invest in."

Kellogg joined in the laugh that followed. Bad Memory in Play Again. Before taking up the railroad phase of the case Kellogg asked if the Standard kept securities in stock and bonds in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio. Rockefeller said that such a state of affairs was not likely. He said his memory was not trustworthy when asked about the relation of the General Industrial & Syndicate company and the Standard Oil company, both of London, which Kellogg said appeared to be interested in the oil business. Rockefeller's Holdings in Railroad Stocks and Bonds, the session was adjourned. Tagging John D. and Archbold. Kellogg asked Rockefeller in the late afternoon yesterday whether the Acme Oil company was organized by the Standard Oil interests. He admitted it was. Kellogg then asked for the testimony of John D. Archbold before the congressional committee in which he said the Acme was organized by or connected with the Standard. In spite of objections, Rockefeller was forced to answer: "Archbold's testimony was correct. While my mind is not perfectly clear on the matter, I should say the Standard owned stock in both companies, but I don't remember that the Standard controlled the Acme then."

Now Purchases Were Made. Kellogg then interrogated Rockefeller concerning the methods of the appropriation of stock certificates of the Standard among fourteen subsidiary companies. The witness unwillingly admitted that the stock of the acquired companies was exchanged for equal values of Standard Oil stock. Kellogg asked where the stock books were, and Rockefeller said he had never been custodian of them. Then the prosecutor asked if Rockefeller would try to get the original stock books and produce them in court. Objection to this was entered by Attorney Milburn. Rockefeller said he would try to get them, but he had not seen them for 30 years. He said the trust agreement was dissolved in 1882, in accordance with the ruling of the supreme court of Ohio, and the certificates were distributed according to a resolution then passed. He said the trustees were officers of the Standard Oil company, and still had some

CROOKED VOTE

WORK ALLEGED

Defeated Shoshone County Candidate Files Charges at Wallace.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Wallace, Idaho, Nov. 24.—"Alleging that no less than 75 of the electors of Mace precinct had their ballots marked for them before they went into the polling booth, and that the election in that point was engineered by men who had heavy bets on a Republican victory, Edwin Geise, defeated Democratic candidate for the office of county assessor of Shoshone county, has filed contest of the election of W. H. Herrick, Republican. Geise seeks to have the whole of Mace precinct thrown out of the county. This precinct gave a Republican majority in the election. Geise in his contest, alleges that the official ballot was taken outside and marked. It was then handed to a voter and cast, while the voter, acting on instructions, received a concealed ballot handed to him by the clerk of election and brought to the polls. The result of the election was that when the ballots were closed and the count began it was found that there was a difference of one vote between the number of ballots and the number of electors recorded as having cast votes, on account of the one ballot acting on instructions outside and that the election judges then allowed one straight Republican vote to be counted. The official count of the election returns gave Herrick a majority of 59.
