

STANDPATTERS PLAY IN FARCE

Head of Manufacturers' Association Roasts the Ways and Means "Hearings."

(United Press Leased Wire.)
St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 27.—A criticism of the methods of the tariff investigators on the congressional ways and means committee was issued yesterday by James W. Van Cleave, president of the National Association of Manufacturers. The statement, pointing out the fallings of the congressional inquirers, says in part:
"Several strange things connect themselves with these hearings. It is told that only about 100 out of 250,000 heads of factories in the country received notice to appear before the committee. In most cases the notice they received was too short to allow them to present carefully prepared statements, although all of them have the privilege of submitting briefs at any time prior to December. The hearings, which will close on December 4, will have covered only about three weeks in the aggregate."
"Mr. Payne's easy confidence in being able to bring a reluctant tariff schedule to the country must mean that he has provided for a satisfactory plan for the outside. I am strengthened in this belief by the fact that he knows that Germany, as a preliminary to his latest revision, created a committee of 32 experts and they gave five years of investigation to the subject, many of them visiting every country on the globe."
"Germany was applying business principles to what is preeminently a business subject. The men who are running the big corporation called the United States know that the trade laws of the universe are being changed and they are preparing for their gratification."

SPECIAL EFFORTS FOR NAVY YARDS

Rivers and Harbors and Sub-treasury Are Also on Hayes' List.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
San Jose, Cal., Nov. 27.—I shall return to Washington determined to do all in my power, in cooperation with my colleagues from the coast states, to secure attention to the growing demands of the section. I am particularly interested in the coming legislative session he had the following to say:
"Many measures of vital importance to the entire coast will come up when congress again convenes. Our navy yards are one question which concerns us deeply. The whole country is aware of the necessity of improving the navy yards on this coast and getting them in shape to handle a battleship fleet. As to Mare Island, the navy department has announced an appropriation of $1,700,000 for improvements there, and of course we will use every effort to secure that amount of money for California."
"As to Bremerton navy yard, I am prepared to cooperate with the members from Washington to secure any appropriations that may be needed to bring it up to par with the other yards. It is a condition where it can take care of its share of a fleet that may be sent to the Pacific either in war or peace."
"I am also interested in securing an appropriation, whenever the next public building bill is framed and passed, for a new building for the navy department in San Francisco, the site having been provided for at the last session."
"Whatever the executive department recommends to continue the fortification and improvement of Pearl Harbor we shall strive to get and I have no doubt we will be successful."
"We hope to get a large appropriation for the improvement of the Sacramento river whenever the next rivers and harbors bill passes the house. I shall cooperate with the members from Oregon and Washington to secure necessary appropriations for the dredging of the mouth of the Columbia."

TRACTION MAGNATE EMULATES BURBANK

(United Press Leased Wire.)
New York, Nov. 27.—Henry E. Huntington, the multi-millionaire who controls the traction system of Los Angeles and southern California, announced today his purpose to retire from active business in February, 1910, at which time he will have attained his sixtieth birthday.
He proposes to spend the last years of his life on his beautiful country place near Los Angeles, experimenting in horticulture in the hope of discovering new fruits which can be successfully grown in the southern part of the state.
Huntington has been a busy man for 42 years, ever since he was 17 years of age. He has built up a great system of electric roads in Southern California and is a millionaire many times over. He says his long years of toil should end, and when 1910 comes, he says, his retirement will be genuine. He believes he is entitled to "some rest and playtime."
Huntington has perfect confidence that the men whom he has been training to succeed him will be able to carry on his work competently.

DISTRICT FORESTERS TO RELIEVE WORK

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
North Yakima, Wash., Nov. 27.—The appointment of district foresters to relieve the work of the national forester at Washington has just been announced to the United States land office in this city. The district forester for this district, which includes the national forests of Oregon, Washington and Alaska, will have his headquarters at Portland.
Hereafter, any person having business which has heretofore been transacted direct with Washington will take the matter up with the district forester at Portland. Local business will be transacted with the supervisor of the local forest. This change is important in that it will expedite business, and the long delays that have been experienced will be done away with to a large extent. There are 22 national forests in the Sixth district, which is the district under consideration.

BOURSE PRICES SHOW WAR FEAR

"Pulse of Eastern Europe" Sinks Despite Official Assurances.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
London, Nov. 27.—War in the Balkan provinces is near, according to those familiar with conditions in the near east, and the newspapers are commenting on the situation. The failure of negotiations between Russia and Austria is regarded as a certain indication of a conflict and it is believed that Russia sees in Austria's stand a determination on the part of the Austro-Hungarians to attack the Slavs. Turkey, Serbia and Montenegro are believed in diplomatic circles to have closed a defensive pact. How far Russia is interested in the move is not known, but there have been persistent rumors that the great Slav nation has promised the confederate Balkan states every support possible short of acts that might involve the czar in war with Franz Josef. The Vienna bourse, the pulse of eastern Europe, is showing the signs of war by the dropping of stock values. Many of the prices are below the level reached during the panic that followed the announcement of the serious illness of Emperor Franz Josef. Contradictory rumors are circulating at Vienna regarding the attitude of Russia and the possibility of Turkey being able to check the boycott of Austrian goods that has resulted from the agitations of the young Turks.
Four newspapers have been suppressed and their plants boycotted for printing news of the movements of Austrian troops. The stock exchange has been notified by the government that there is no serious trouble; that upon the outbreak of hostilities the bourse will be notified. This assurance, however, has failed to restore confidence and the prices are falling steadily.

MORE MONEY FOR ALBANY COLLEGE

Portland People Will Be Asked to Help Swell Endowment.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Albany, Or., Nov. 27.—President Harry Means Crooks of Albany college is again in search of endowment money for Albany. He has just closed a successful campaign in Linn county, $10,000 being raised.
While in Portland President Crooks had an interview with Dr. R. D. Pearson, the Chicago philanthropist, who has given about $4,000,000 to different Christian colleges in America. Dr. Pearson will not nothing before July 1, 1909, when 12 colleges already on his list must raise certain sums before receiving his personal gifts, which run from $1,000 to $25,000.
Friday afternoon 24 of Portland's business men will meet to perfect plans for the Portland canvass to raise that city's share of the fund. The meeting will be held in the Commercial club rooms.

MONUMENT TO NOTED CONFEDERATE SCOUT

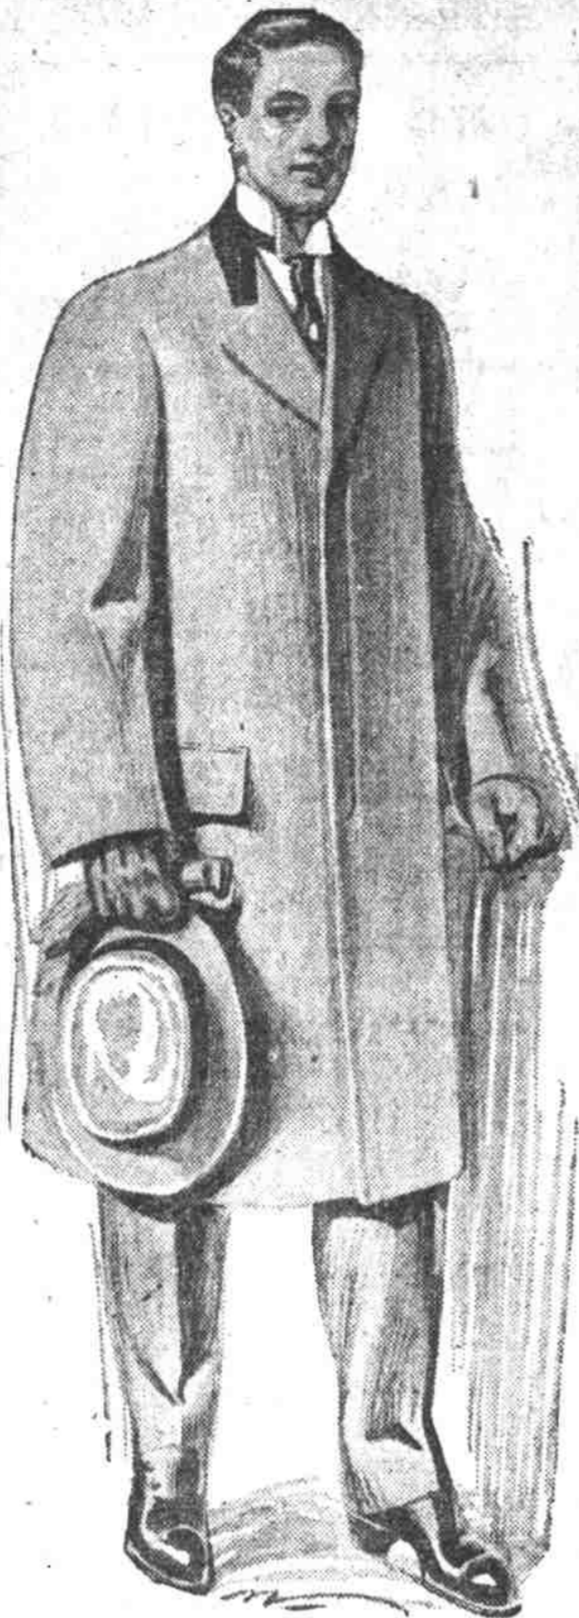

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 27.—Interesting exercises were held today in observance of the forty-fifth anniversary of the execution of Sam Davis, the noted Confederate scout, who was captured in the Federal lines at Pulaski, Tenn., November 22, 1862, with papers giving the field positions of the Federal troops, and hanged as a spy five days later by order of General Dodge.
"Had I a thousand lives, I would lose them all before I would betray my friends," were the words spoken by Davis as he sat on the edge of his coffin, condemned to be executed, after

CALIFORNIA HUNTER SHOT FROM AMBUSH

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Eureka, Cal., Nov. 27.—Details of the mysterious shooting of Bert Porter, blacksmith of McKinleyville, have been received here. The circumstances will lead to a rigid investigation by the county officials. Porter was duckhunting in a lagoon a mile from his home. A party comprising William Pardon, Walter Liscom and Mr. and Mrs. William Rogers of Arcata, who were rowing near by, saw him sitting on the bank with a shotgun in his hand. There was a report of a gun and they saw Porter topple over. When they reached him he was dead, but his own weapon had not been discharged.
A small bullet hole was discovered on the right side of his head. The ball had passed through the brain, and emerged at the forehead. Duckhunters searched the woods in all directions, but no one carrying a rifle was found.
