

TIGHT DRESS DOOMED TO VANISH

Paris Decees Full Draped Gowns Shall Take Place of Sheath Costumes—Fashionable Fur Will Be the Moleskin.

By Countess de Carli.
(Harris News by Longest Leased Wire.)
Paris, Nov. 28.—Though Paris is the recognized city of the initiative in fashion, it is a recognized fact that it is at the American houses of the Paris colony and the houses where Americans visit that one sees the most beautiful costumes. It is a matter of astonishment here that there has been such an outcry in America against the directors, the "style" and the "haute" costume because here all the American women wear them.

It is whispered, however, that this winter will see an end to the craze for tight clinging dresses, and that next spring we shall be wearing gowns that are draped and full.

But let us talk of furs, and certainly they have never been as beautiful and sumptuous. They are made in all shapes and of all kinds of fur, from the long alpine coats, whose soft supple lines lend to every movement, to the redingotes made of ottoman, lined with ermine, and liberally loaded with magnificent embroideries.

Then we have those beautiful loose sleeveless coats of ermine, which are thrown over the evening dress, and going to the theatre, not to mention those delightful Japanese cloaks in all sorts of fur, made with long sleeves and every luxury of elegance.

Among the novelties this season are the quaint little stoles which are put over the head, the two ends being joined in a sort of muff trimmed with tails.

Each year the price of furs goes up. A skin which has become particularly expensive is the siberian, which has a thick, furry tail, but a tiny body, being so much in demand that a single skin costs $1000. There is, however, one thing in favor of these almost priceless furs—their durability. They last for generations.

A fur which will be very fashionable this winter is the moleskin. I saw Princess Edmond de Polignac in the Rue de la Paix one afternoon wearing a beautiful long coat of moleskin over a more-cold, tailor-made skirt and a tulle blouse of the same shade (these tulle blouses dyed to the shade of the costume are a feature of the season).

Baroness Henri de Rothschild, too, who is always in the height of fashion also wears a moleskin coat in the new director style, long and with large revers, the back cut in a point and the sleeves full and long.

Now as to how the newest toques are made to resemble the bodies of birds with wings spread out, and the head turned to one side, or they are made of an entire fox or marten skin. The skins are curled round a shape and the head and tail meet at one side, preferably the right. The head makes a sort of ornament, and the tail is allowed to droop over the shoulders.

One can also use chains in this way over a larger shape covered with stretched satin or velvet. One I saw yesterday was in this style. The form was a "tail" of male blue satin, trimmed with the tender brown shaded skin of the French marten. The head and tail met at the side and four tails, instead of one floated over the shoulder.

I must not forget to mention muffs, which are as diverse as are the coats. There are the Louis XV muffs, large and that cover the whole of the front of the coat, and when the wearer is sitting look almost a cushion, and very pretty in a delightful possession, as they can be worn in the evening and over any coat, even one of fur.

The fashion of adorning ourselves with fur has gone so far as to invent ornaments for the hair made in this precious material, and at the opera I saw two tall, fair American women with bands of Russian sable clasped together with diamond clasps made in the form of a Greek head.

But alas for comfort as regards our feet this winter. Our dresses are made so long in front that we have to lift them to walk, and therefore we are doomed to fancy shoes. The newest fashions for the daytime is pointed slippers with large fancy buckles and high heels.

In contrast to the full and fluffy way of dressing the hair which has been in vogue for the last few seasons we are now dressing our hair as flat as possible. It is even said that the hair must not be waved, but drawn back straight and flat in the style of the Directoire, and instead of curls and puffs, long plait simplicity masses of ornaments are used, nothing being too fanciful or original.

GAMBLING KING DUE IN CHICAGO

Police Have Their Lamps Trimmed for "House of Mystery."

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Chicago, Nov. 28.—The police are watching the "house of mystery," an old gambling establishment on fashionable Michigan avenue, where it is reported Richard and the New York gambling king, is about to open a gambling place. A number of professionals, it is suspected, have been brought from New York with an outfit. For a time, it is alleged, they have been visiting Chicago clubs and fleecing club members.

The police have been endeavoring to arrest them, but so far have been unsuccessful. Candel is said to have remarked that it is time to open another "high class place" in Chicago. He declares the big gambling for the past four years has been done in the clubs.

RUSTIN MURDER TRIAL WILL OPEN MONDAY

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Omaha, Nov. 28.—Dense and prosecution are ready for the trial of Charles E. Davis next Monday morning on the charge of shooting Dr. Frederick Rustin on September 3. The county attorney and Davis' lawyers agree that the entire case rests on testimony to be given by Mrs. Abbie Rice, who will be subjected to a merciless cross-examination.

That in some details Mrs. Rice's stories in the insurance hearings varied from those she told in police court at the inquest is asserted by many interested in the case. On examination it is thought Mrs. Rice will weaken and the attorneys for Davis hope to shatter the state's case by means of the star witness for the prosecution.

Attorneys for the defense have watched the jury panel drawn for the coming trial with great care. The state will call about 30 witnesses and the defense fully as many.

The gun used on United States postage stamps is made from sweet potatoes, as it is considered the least harmful of any that is suitable for that purpose.

PENSION ARMY'S FAITHFUL HORSE

"Putnam," Who Served in Cuba and Philippines, to Be Retired.

New York, Nov. 28.—"Old Faithful," of the Fifth Field Artillery, United States army, has been ordered put on the retired list with all the honors due to long and faithful service. Old Faithful, who used to be known as Putnam, and later as Peking, is a horse and in the entire service who has not listened to the stories of this old horse's wonderful intelligence and his splendid battle record.

At the beginning of the Spanish-American war Putnam, a regular army horse, was young and strong and was earning a livelihood as a draught horse in New Haven, Conn. The Yale battery was then organized and the animal procured for pulling the ordnance of that command was Putnam. Putnam took to army life and to the water, and in less than six weeks what he didn't know about pulling an artillery gun carriage was not worth knowing.

The fame of the animal spread throughout the regular and volunteer armies, and one of the regular commands ordered to Cuba needed a first class, intelligent artillery horse. Putnam was transferred to the regulars and went to Cuba in time to take part in the campaign that ended in the capitulation at Santiago. He made such a fine record at El Caney and in the assaults on Santiago proper that when the war was over Putnam was brought back to the United States and sent to Fort Hamilton, in Brooklyn, as a "casual" to recuperate from the strenuous service he had gone through.

A few months at Fort Hamilton made a new horse of Putnam, and early in 1899 he was ordered to Manila as one of the artillery horses of the Fifth Field Artillery, under command of Captain Reilly. The fall of 1899 was one of the most strenuous in the history of the Philippine war, and during October and November of that year old Putnam did the work of half a dozen horses, participating in every engagement that the troops under General Swan fought in the expedition through Cavite province.

The Boer outbreak.
The following year came the Boer outbreaks in China and the organization of the allied armies for the rescue of Peking. The Fifth United States Infantry and a battery of field artillery were sent to China to represent the United States in that aid. The commander of the Americans being Lieutenant General Adna R. Chaffee. The finest artillery horses in the Philippines were sent along to pull the field guns, and of course one of those horses was old Putnam.

Putnam shared in every one of the engagements in which the allied forces participated, and long before Peking was relieved he was the best known horse that ever trod Chinese soil. So well did he do his work that the soldiers dropped Putnam as his name and substituted that of Peking, for it was said they knew that if any part of the allied army reached the Chinese capital it was the horse that was ordered to pull the guns. The Ninth cavalry, however, was the first to be ordered into position. Just as they had started

When the allied armies arrived in sight of Peking, the Yale horse with another horse, known as Corregidor, was pulling the first of the American light field guns. The American artillerymen had orders to take a position on a hill overlooking Peking, and the gun that Peking and Corregidor were pulling was the first that was ordered into position. Just as they had started up the hill the traces behind Corregidor broke, and the artillerymen were in a quandary when one of the gunners shouted:

"There's a Reason"

"Cut Corregidor loose and let Peking pull it up by himself."

There was an answering yell of approval and a moment later straining every muscle, Peking started up that hill, and the soldiers tell to this day how he arrived there in time for the American gun to open fire on the troubled city. Since that time Peking has had but one name, Old Faithful, and under this he has been ordered retired by the war department.

After the Chinese problem was solved Peking went back to his old regiment in the Philippines, where he has since served on duty every day until a few weeks ago. Then Colonel Edward T. Brown, who had always taken an interest in the horse, noticed that he was getting too old and fat to do his work as well as formerly. Under the American laws no horse can be brought back to the United States from the Philippines, which they might infect the animals at home.

Colonel Brown did not want Old Faithful sold to the Manila cart peddlers, and he recommended to General Pershing, the department commander, that the long and splendid services of Old Faithful entitled him to an old age pension. The department commander of the United States government General Pershing agreed with him, and so did General Weston, the commander of the Philippine army, and the secretary of war has acquiesced, and from now on till the end of his life Old Faithful will be cared for by the government he has served so long and well.

FRANCE PROTESTS BALLOON INVASION

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Paris, Nov. 28.—Protest against the invasion of French territory by German army officers who neglected to secure passports and crossed the line in balloons is made by newspapers here. The papers declare that hardly a day passes that some German officer does not land on a balloon on French soil. An official is quoted as saying:

"It is getting to be a regular shake a tree in France without dislodging a German army officer."

"You can hardly glance up to see what the weather looks like without getting a dose of Berlin ballast in your eyes."

"It used to be that a German army officer who wished to cross the frontier required passports. Now all he needs is a breeze."

Stain Your Hair A Rich Brown

Simple Preparation of Walnut-Juice That Defies Detection.

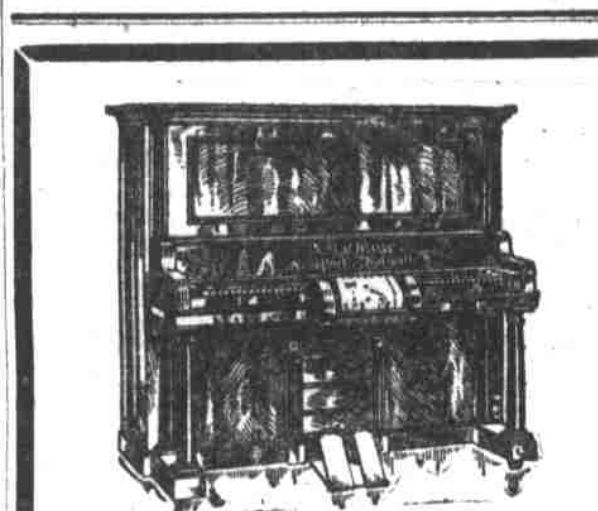

An interesting little book has been issued on the remarkable effects of walnut-juice in staining gray, faded or bleached hair. It is a simple, safe, hair-dyes of being non-injurious to the hair, containing no silver, sulphur, lead or arsenic, which cause hair-falling, and containing no odor, no oil, no sediment and no grease. At the same time, an opportunity is given to every one who wishes to stain the hair to send for one of the laboratory trial packages which Mrs. Potter's Hygienic Supply Company, 125 Broadway, New York, Ohio, will send by mail in plain, sealed wrapper.

The desire to procure a trial package of this walnut-juice hair-stain, as well as their book on hair, should write to the above address, and enclose twenty-five cents in stamps or coin, and if it is desired to continue the treatment, the preparation may be obtained at drug stores generally at one dollar for a full-size package.

It is said that the stain blends so softly with the natural color of the hair as to deceive experts. It can be applied in a few moments with the comb every 30 days. It stains nothing but the hair, and does it evenly from tip to root. Any shade can be obtained from a beautiful rich-brown to almost black. It does not rub off on the clothing. One bottle ordinarily lasts a year.

Send for the 25-cent trial package today.

RAILROADED TO INSANE ASYLUM

Startling Charges by T. Gardiner Who Alleges Plot to Secure Estates.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Chicago, Nov. 28.—That dozens of men and women have been railroaded to the insane asylum at Dunning by relatives who sought their estates was charged today before the committee of the county board investigating the institution.

T. Gardiner appeared as the board was considering the deaths of a number of inmates. He said he had the names and addresses of a number of persons who had been shut up that their families might get hold of their estates. He declared that he could give detailed information and demand that he be heard. The examining committee will take up the matter later.

WOMAN DENOUNCES WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE

(United Press Leased Wire.)
London, Nov. 28.—The action of the Chicago charter revision committee in expressing itself in favor of the right of women to vote at municipal elections was strongly denounced here today by the leaders of the woman's national anti-suffrage league. The members of the league view with considerable alarm the prospect of any advance in the suffrage movement in the United States on the belief that it would greatly help the suffragette movement in England.

The anti-suffragists or "antigists," as they have been dubbed, are preparing to spend large sums to oppose the suffragettes. Mrs. Humphrey Ward, one of the prime movers in the league, declared today that she thought a majority of the women of England were

ROADS PRIME NEED OF COUNTRY FOLKS

(United Press Leased Wire.)
San Francisco, Nov. 28.—President Roosevelt's country-life commission learned today in a conference here with a large number of agriculturists from all parts of the state that, while conditions in the rural districts were good, they could be greatly improved by a state or federal system of roads which would give the farmers better facilities for moving their products to market. The meeting was held in the lecture hall of the state board of trade in the Ferry building, and all seven members of the commission, Professor Linn Hyde, Bailey of Cornell, Henry Wallace of Iowa, K. L. Butterfield of Massachusetts, E. W. Allen and C. J. Blanchard were present. They will leave tonight for Sacramento, where a meeting will be held on Monday. From there they will go to Portland. They will report to the president in December.
