SMITHSONIAN GREETS TEDDY

Famous Institute Announces President Will Go Forth to Kill Lions.

(Hearst News by Longest Leased Wire.)

Washington, Dec. 5.—The Smithsonian institution gave out the following announcement today:

"In March, 1909, Theodore Roosevelt will head a scientific expedition to Africa outfitted by the Smithsonian institution and starting from New York city. This expedition will gather natural history materials for the government collection, to be deposited by the Smithsonian institution in the new United States national museum at Washington, D. C.

"Besides the president and his son Kermit, the personnel of the party on leaving New York will consist of three representatives of the Smithsonian institution: Major Edgar A. Mearns, medical corps, U. S. A., retired; Edmund Heller and J. Alden Loring. On arriving in Africa, the party will be enlarged by the addition of R. J. Cunningham, who is now in Africa preparing the president's outfit. He will have charge of a number of native porters, who, with necessary animals, will be formed into a small caravan.

"Mr. Roosevelt and his son will kill big game, the skins and skeletons which will be shipped to the United States by other members of the party. Kermit Roosevelt is to be the official photographer of the expedition. The main effort will be to collect the large and vanishing African animals.

"R. J. Cunningham, who is now engaged in assembling the materials for Mr. Roosevelt's use, has been employed to act as guide and manager of the caravan.

"Edmund Heller, a graduate of Stanford university, class of 1901, is a thoroughly trained naturalist, whose special work will be the preparation and preservation of specimens of large animals.

"The party will reach Mombassa in April, 1909. No detailed itinerary has been decided upon, but the general route will be up the Ugandi railway to Nairo and Lake Victoria Nyanza, a distance of about 650 miles by rail, thence crossing into Ugandi and finally down the Nile to Cairo. Much of the hunting will be done in British East Africa."

SINGER WANTS NO HAMMERSTEIN

Hugo Colombini Has No Longre Any Use for Impresario.

(Hearst News by Longest Leased Wire.)

New York, Dec. 5.—Hugo Colombini, youngest and most promising of Italian light tenors, will sing no more for Oscar Hammerstein. Incidentally, Cleofonte Campanini, director of music of the Manhattan opera house, had best beware, for Colombini now insists that Campanini formed a camoraro against him. Colombini's charges follow an exciting encounter between the tenor, the maestro and impresario Oscar, on Friday night during the rehearsal of "The Juggler of Notre Dame," which had its initial performance that evening. Colombini made an attempt to slap Campanini's face after a violent altercation. The redoubtable Oscar joined in the fray and hustled his high priced tenor up an aisle and consigned him to the tender mercies of two bluecoated house policemen, who forced him into the weary wastes of West Thirty-fourth street.

Colombini, six feet tall, lean and lithe as a panther, with the muscles of an athlete, laughed gaily tonight as through an interpreter and in broken English he said:

"That I should be ejected. It is the one great joke. I slapped Signor Campanini. I did not hit him for fear I might kill him.

"I do not blame Herr Hammerstein in a way, for he has been misinformed. He engaged me in Italy and he has never heard me sing either in my own country or in America. That is my misfortune and his as well, for I was never in better voice than I am at present.

"It is all due to the jackass, Campanini. He has formed the camerarо against me. He has been responsible for my failure to appear in several operas."

Oscar Hammerstein also smiled when asked to detail the encounter.

"The affair was bloodless," he said. "Colombini had an excellent voice when he was engaged, but there is something in our air that sometimes tends to destroy temporarily the value of a light tenor voice.

"If Colombini sues, it is simply number 43. That of Miss Lee was number 42. One can't judge the operatic temperament."

M'FARLAND AND ERNE MATCHED

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Chicago, Dec. 5.—Packy McFarland was matched today for a 20-round fight with Young Erne of Philadelphia, to be decided before the Algiers Athletic club at New Orleans, December 23. Despairing of getting a match with Welsh of a promising eastern engagement for the near future, Harry Gilmore Jr., Packy's manager, hastened to close the match with the eastern lightweight. If a match with Murphy is not forthcoming in the east after the New Orleans fight, McFarland will go to California before New Year's day to meet Dick Hyland, with whom he has been offered a 10-round go before the Pacific Athletic club of Los Angeles for either the second or fourth week of January.

RECEIVED LUMBER SO CANNOT SUE

Judge Cleland in the circuit court yesterday gave judgment for the defendant in the case of Dickerson & Jones against E. T. Williams. The plaintiffs sued for over $13,000 alleged to be due on lumber shipped to them from Portland, their place of business being in the orient. They alleged that Williams did not comply strictly with their orders, but sent lumber of different kind and sizes, although the substituted lumber, it appears, was of about equal value. The court held that they could not maintain an action for goods had and received.

MILWAUKIE'S CANDIDATES FOR MAYOR HOLD JOINT DEBATE

"Mayor Shindler is a cheap politician," said Philip Streib.

"Philip Streib is a machine man," declared William Shindler.

This was the information dealt out to the voters of Milwaukie last night at the mass meeting called by Mayor Shindler that he might explain the haps and mishaps of his present term, apologize for some of them and give himself credit for others. But just as the mayor was nearing the climax of his oration, something awful happened. His opponent in the mayoralty race, Mr. Streib, received his cue, marched in and took a front seat, and then—then Shindler forgot what he was talking about and offered the floor to his rival.

Someone in the back of the hall shouted "Streib!" but Streib didn't wait for any coaxing. He wanted to talk to his fellow citizens.

He launched forth, after congratulating his auditors on their intelligence, progressiveness and good looks, with a statement which almost turned the Shindler love feast into a Streib rally.

"Fellow citizens," he said, "you all remember that about two years ago your mayor, Mr. Shindler—there he sits—introduced me to you at a public meeting, as the man who was to succeed him as chief executive of our little city."

Everybody laughed, including Mr. Shindler himself, who afterwards had a few things to say about Mr. Streib. The mayor declared that he had been misrepresented, and just as he reached the point where he intended to explain it all, his opponet resumed his speech from the rear end of the hall.

"Brother" Maple was called on by Mr. Streib to tell the fellow citizens what the mayor had promised him two years ago and whether or not the promise had been kept.

"Well," said Mr. Maple, "he told me that if he was elected that time, he would see to it that an electric light was placed near my place and so after he got it I called on him and asked him how about it and he said, 'Oh that was before election that I promised it.'"

Everybody but the mayor laughed heartily and looked at Mr. Shindler for an answer.

"Good night, boys," called Mr. Streib, as he made his way out the door, but after he got outside he remembered that he had forgotten something and he came back and talked some more.

"He never meant to go home at all," said one of the mayor's admirers, "he's got to stick around and lock the door to the hall when we go, he was just trying to break up the meeting."

Mr. Shindler tried to talk, but owing to the loud noise made by the conversationists could not be heard and somebody "moved that we adjourn," and it was so ordered.

As the audience passed out of the building, they were handed copies of Mayor Shindler's promise at last election that he would not again be a candidate, and, after all Councilman Streib did lock up the hall, and somebody across the street said to somebody else, "Didn't I tell you he would?"

The main issues at hand in tomorrow's election are better streets; better lights and lighting service, better car service and the enforcement of the ordinance against livestock roaming the city streets. Mr. Streib says the real issue is, who is to be mayor?

Each candidate assured the audience that it didn't make any difference to him personally, whether he was elected or not but declared that his sole purpose in running was for the good of Milwaukie.

"Shindler got me into it, he's to blame," announced Streib.

"I've always been a friend to Streib's," said Mayor Shindler in closing, "but you bet your life I haven't spoken to him in three months."

The polls open tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock and will remain open until 7 p. m. There are about 180 votes in the city but neither candidate figures that more than 130 of them will be cast.

Each candidate has a following of friends who will turn out, they say, and then there are about 50 people who are good friends of both candidates and in order that they may make no enemies they are not going to vote either way.

"He hasn't got a chance," says the mayor.

"I've got it cinched," whispered Streib.

BARONET'S WIFE SCOURS SPOKANE

Lady Russell Continues the Search for Her Missing Husband.

Spokane, Wash., Dec. 5.—Lady Russell, wife of Sir Herbert Donald Leight Russell, a wealthy English baronet, is here looking for her husband, who left Chicago five weeks ago for parts unknown. Lady Russell refuses to talk. She denies that her husband is wealthy. Some think she knows his whereabouts.

They were married last April, and went on a long wedding trip. He is the head of an English investing syndicate. They returned to the United States five weeks ago. The baronet left his wife at the hotel to look up a real estate deal and did not return. The wife became worried. She feared to make the matter public, so came here and wrote about it.

Lady Russell's mother says the baronet is all right, and that it is nobody's business where he is. She also declared him not murdered. Mrs. Olson denied Russell is wealthy, but refused to say whether it was not true he had inherited a rich estate while living at Newport, Wash., near Spokane. Russell is said to have been an engineer and his wife a school teacher at the time of their marriage.

WILL OPEN OREGON ANNEX NEXT WEEK

The new annex of the Oregon hotel is to be opened next week. The building will add 100 rooms to the capacity of the hotel, a part of which will be ready for occupancy within the next few days. The others will be furnished and made ready for use as soon as possible. The grill addition, which will make the dining room twice as large as it is at present, will be ready for use by Christmas eve. Workmen are laboring at night to complete the improvements as soon as possible.

New Cutter Sails.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 5.—The new revenue cutter Snohomish, built for life saving service on the Pacific coast, sailed tonight on the first leg of the long voyage to Neah bay, Wash.

Owing to the limited coal-carrying capacity of the little vessel, which will sail about 15,000 miles, she will probably not reach her destination until April 1.

Disappearance of Old Panama.

Eleanor Yorke Bell in December Metropolitan.

The fast decaying structures of this period are disappearing, but there are still in Panama many buildings of great historic interest, the convent Church of San Domingo, with its elliptical arch, seeming to prove by its survival of all the earthquakes through which it has passed the remarkable solidity of the ground on which it was built. The arch was designed by one of the monks, but the difficulties experienced in its substantial construction, for it had fallen three times, brought him to the historic appeal for a divine sign of the worthiness of his work and himself. After it had been erected for the fourth time he stood beneath the arch and prayed to heaven to give judgment; that if unworthy it should be demolished and destroy him, but he besought, if acceptable in the eyes of heaven, it remain for all time.

In many cases modern buildings have encroached and even appropriated the side walls of ancient ones, so that some knowledge of the old city is necessary to distinguish its most interesting relics. San Felipe de Neri, built in 1688, is interesting and among the oldest. Many churches were built with walls five feet thick, the windows being 25 feet above the ground, and with doors of solid mahogany, studded with silver, so that they could be used as places of refuge during a siege. These churches were rich beyond imagination, we are told, containing numerous large gold and silver images, the priests' robes were gorgeous with pearls and gems from the islands, the walls hung with embroidery and tapestry brought from Spain, and the marble altars screened by exquisitely carved native woods. Among these well worth seeing are San Francisco, San Juan de Dios, St. Ann and La Merced, the last being of much later date and of the flamboyant style. Of all this grandeur there is today little but decay, ruin and neglect, and before the shrines are but a handful of dirty, ignorant negroes.
