

BETTER YARDS FOR PACIFIC COAST

LOSES CAR WHEN BEATS PASSENGER

Conductor Busily Pommeling Boy and Is Left Behind.

This is the story of a runaway streetcar, belligerent conductor, and a plucky, though chastised passenger. The runaway car was a car of the Sunnyside line; the belligerent conductor was No. 63, which the officials of the railway say is worn on the cap of Conductor C. H. Collins; the plucky passenger was Gordon Brown, a youth of about 22. The incident happened about 7:30 Saturday evening.

Rear Admiral Capps Recommends Appropriations for Bremerton and Mare Island—Dry Docks Will Be Badly Needed.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Washington, Dec. 7.—That congress should make special provision for the improvement of the facilities at the Puget sound and Mare Island navy yards on the Pacific coast, so that battleships of the deepest draft can dock at either place for repairs is recommended in the report of Rear Admiral W. L. Capps, chief constructor of the navy.

Only One Big Dock on Coast.

The docking facilities on the Atlantic coast are being improved, says the report, but it adds: "There is only one dry dock on the Pacific coast that can be used for docking battleships, and that is located at the navy yard, Puget sound. There are, however, two other docks in course of construction, one at Puget sound and one at Mare Island, which when completed, will accommodate the largest battleships now in commission or laid down. It is not probable that the dock at Puget sound will be available for use within the next three years. The new dock at Mare Island, however, under favorable conditions ought to be ready for use within the next year or 18 months."

Additional Facilities Needed.

In reporting on his inspection of the navy yards on the Pacific coast, Admiral Capps says:

"In conformity with the department's instructions, the navy yards at Mare Island, Cal., and Puget sound, Wash., were visited on my return trip to Washington. While conditions at these yards are constantly improving there is still room for considerable improvement, especially with respect to docking and repair facilities and appliances for handling heavy weights.

Chief Constructor Takes up the Mooted Question of the Detachment of the Pacific Coast.

The chief constructor takes up the mooted question of the detachment of the Pacific coast, concerning which there was such diversity of opinion on the Pacific coast. "While the depth of water in the approaches to and at the navy, Puget sound, is all that could be desired,"

Comment on the Building of Ships at Government Navy Yards.

In commenting on the building of ships at government navy yards, Chief Constructor Capps calls attention to the fact that inadequate facilities for the handling of heavy weights at Mare Island was responsible for the delay in launching the collier Prometheus, which was launched there Saturday.

General Sentiment in the Navy Department Favors the Speedy Upbuilding of Naval Facilities on the Pacific Coast.

The general sentiment in the navy department favors the speedy upbuilding of naval facilities on the Pacific coast so that the contemplated larger Pacific fleet can be ready for service as it is constructed. It is understood that President-elect Taft favors a gradual increase of the Pacific fleet until it will be as large as that maintained on the Atlantic.

Chief Constructor Capps, in his Report, Expresses Strongly the Opinion that the New Naval Station at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, Should be Maintained Only as a Repair Station.

I am of the opinion that the station should be developed purely on the lines of repair station and that no consideration should be given to its development as a shipbuilding yard, the work of shipbuilding being much more advantageously performed on the mainland of the United States."

Metager fits your eyes for $1.

The fine points about this shoe could be talked of for hours, but your time is limited to minutes, so just make a minute of this—here's the best three dollar shoe, and let it go at that—till you have time to come in.

THE LION AND THE MOUSE

Do you know that every time you have a cough or cold and let it run on thinking it will just cure itself you are inviting pneumonia, consumption, or some other pulmonary trouble? Don't risk it. Put your lungs back in perfect health and keep them that way with Balmain's Horsebrand system. Price 25c and 50c per bottle.

Refuses to Remit.

Brown pointed out that he had already paid for the young lady, and asked that his fare be returned. The conductor refused to give it back, saying he had already rung it up. Brown told him there were good passengers who had not paid yet, and he could collect from one of them and not ring up the fare. The conductor refused to do this, and added a few uncomplimentary remarks about—fools.

Woman Takes a Hand.

The women in the car shrieked. One man attempted to separate the combatants but was brushed aside and the "con" continued to beat the boy. One woman became so worked up that she jumped out of the car, calling the conductor a coward, and began to beat him over the head with her parasol.

FAVORITE PLAY AT THE HEILIG

Orpheum—Sensational Spectacular Pantomime.

Byers and Hermann present an act of headline caliber in the way of a sensational pantomime. Every body usually enjoys a pantomime and it is done in an artistic manner, and these gentlemen are positively among the best ever seen in Portland. They do all kinds of extremely comical and original evolutions, with trick scenery and properties.

New Vaudeville Acts at Grand.

All the acts on the new vaudeville program this week are new. The headline feature will be Professor Vater's comedy-drama, which is the most original, novel and instructive vaudeville specialty that has been displayed on a local stage. For the extra added feature—the management has engaged Sherman and DeForest, the comedy act, in "A Jay Circus, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Young, well known vaudeville stars, will bring their scenic transformation, "Early Days, East and West." To the program are added several other particularly strong numbers.

"A Struggle for Gold" at the Star.

In "A Struggle for Gold" the big western comedy-drama which is the attraction at the Star this week, the attraction goes will have an excellent opportunity of witnessing a production that is being faithfully in the traditions of the far west. The scenic effects are most elaborate.

"Lion and Mouse" at the Star.

"The Lion and the Mouse," Charles Klein's great American drama on the present financial situation throughout the United States, will be the attraction at the Heilig theatre tonight at 8:15 o'clock, and continuing tomorrow and Wednesday nights. Seats now selling at 25c.

A HAIR'S BREADTH ESCAPE.

Do you know that every time you have a cough or cold and let it run on thinking it will just cure itself you are inviting pneumonia, consumption, or some other pulmonary trouble? Don't risk it. Put your lungs back in perfect health and keep them that way with Balmain's Horsebrand system. Price 25c and 50c per bottle.
