

NEW CITY HAS GREAT FUTURE

A Nordstrom, a wealthy miner of Tacoma, who in the early days of the Alaska gold rush washed "pay dirt" in partnership with the since famous "Caribou Bill," is in the city for a few days after a trip to Prince Rupert, Dixon said.

Mr. Nordstrom went to Prince Rupert to look into the possibilities of the future Pacific coast terminal of the Grand Trunk Pacific railroad and says he believes the growth of the city will be the most marvelous ever witnessed anywhere. For the present the railroad company and Canadian government control the bulk of the property which eventually will form the main city and in May the lots will be sold at auction. Streets are being graded and the city is being mapped out along modern lines. Mr. Nordstrom believes some of the choicest lots will bring high prices. Large sums of English money is being invested, according to rumors current there, and he expects considerable American money will be invested.

"Prince Rupert will have many advantages," said Mr. Nordstrom, "and it would create a world wide sensation were the new city to be built on this side of the line. Conservatism is one of the characteristics of the people in Canada and it will unquestionably be displayed in this case.

"The terminal has a fine natural harbor within about an hour's steaming from what might be termed the open sea and the new transcontinental railroad will undoubtedly give it much of the oriental trade now being transacted with Europe by way of the Suez canal and other routes.

Indirectly, Mr. Nordstrom believes that the opening up of Prince Rupert will bring increased population to the cities of the Pacific northwest because it will attract attention to the coast among the people of the east and the middle states.
