MEDFORD GUESTS

Eight States Represented at Meeting Which Convenes This Afternoon.

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.)
Salem, Or., Jan. 5.—Claude Gatch, national bank examiner for the state of Oregon, left for Medford on the overland train last night to attend the meeting of the national bank examiners to be held at that city this afternoon at the call of the comptroller of the currency at Washington. The meeting will be attended by national examiners of the states of Oregon, Washington, California, Montana, Nevada, Utah, Arlzona, and New Mexico.

The sessions of the institute will be held behind closed doors, so that the examiners can discuss freely conditions in their district. The plan is a new one that has been adopted by the administration.

The United States has been divided into 11 districts by the comptroller. A meeting will be held at the same time in each district where similar problems of bank examining will be discussed behind closed doors.

At the meeting this afternoon Bank Examiner Eugene T. Wilson of Davenport, Wash., will preside, he being the oldest examiner in the district.

STORM KING

then gave it up and either went back home or walked.

It was no uncommon thing to see the conductor of a streetcar going ahead with a broom trying to clear the tracks enough to move his car, while the mo-torman stood at the controller ready to take advantage of every inch gained. It take advantage of every inch gained. It is expected that by nightfall, if the storm continues, the car lines may be tied up tight and the cars unable to move—which is a pleasant prospect for people who have two or three miles to walk to get home to a hot dinner.

Josselyn an Optimist.

The women—those of them who had to be out—had the hardest time, with their narrow French heels and flapping skirts. Graceful woman has a hard time being graceful on a slippery pavement with the wind blowing something over 20 miles an hour—especially if she has been shopping. An Irreverent Cub perched himself in a window of the city hail to watch people pass. Inside of half an hour he saw six women sit down hard on the pavement running by the building. One pretty girl sat down suddenly and forcibly—but it didn't worry her. She picked herself up, dusted the snow off, and looking up at the window where the Irreverent Cub was laughing, she gally waved her hand and went on her way.

But tears are close akin to laughter, and tragedy is often but a step beyond comedy. Although to most people the storm is but a temporary inconvenience at most, and to many symething to be enjoyed on account of its rarity, to others it means suffering. Portland has not the hordes of wretchedly poor that many eastern cities have, but there are hundreds here to whom the storm, with its ley blasts and 18 degrees of cold means more than inconvenience.

Many Homeless Men. Many Momeless Men.

*There are many homeless men in the cliv, men who will work and men who will not. But they are all hungry and cold. And there are families resident in the city who have all they can do to get enough to eat without paying exorbitant prices for wood to warm them.

As a consequence all the charitable or sainziations in the city are overwhelmed with appeals for aid. The Portland commons was crowded to the doors last night. Every available bed was occupied, and men slept on improvised pallets on the floor, on blankets, newspapers, even the doors last night. Every available bed was occupied, and men slept on improvised pallets on the floor, on blankets, newspapers, even the doors last night. The country is at present.

"There are hundreds of people who are in strailened circumstances, and not through their own fault, either. Many of the men who come to the Commons for shelter are intelligent, energetic men who would gladly work if they could find the work to do.

"As an instance of what some of them go through, I have in fining a position and they kept him just one day and a half and then fired him. Now he is back where he was before, minus his back where he was before, minus his back where he was before, minus his back where he was before minus his back where h place to go.

Ealvation Army's Work.

The Salvation Army, as usual, is doing its share toward caring for those for whom nobody else cares.

But there is one man who laughs and laughs and laughs. He is the plumber. One of the class was standing on the corner of a down town street this morning laughing fit to split lis sides. He simply rocked back and forth in the excess of his merriment.

"What are you laughing at, you ing along the "COLDECTE TO get the position and they kept him just one day and a half and then fired' him. Now he is back where he was before, minus his labe, what we need, with a man in charge selected by the business men themselves, who could give his whole time to the work.

"Tonight, after 6:30. I shall have from 10 to 15 gallons of good hot soup with bread for all the men who need it. That will perhaps help some to prevent suffering tonight."

COI DECTE "What are you laughing at, you fool?" growled an acquaintance hurrying along the street. "I don't see anything to laugh about I'll bet my water pipes are frozen right now."

SINCE SILVER THAW IN 1907

This is the coldest day in Portland since the memorable silver thaw of two years ago. About a year ago the thermometer went down to 25 degrees above zero; today it sank to 18, with indications of going still lower tonight.

The silver thaw was in January, 1907, I and lasted several days. The freezing rain that covered everything with a coat of ice began to fall on the evening of January 5 and during the night all objects out of doors were transformed into veritable masses of crystal. The temperature fell suddenly to 13 degrees above zero and that figure remained the minimum for several days. From January 13 to 17 the minimum was 20 degrees.

The silver thaw was under conditions somewhat similar to those that have existed here for several days past and it was feared yesterday that a repetition of the sleet storm would occur. But instead of the moisture forming into ice and settling onto trees and telephone poles it came down in the share of

COLDEST DURING TWO YEARS PAST

(United Press Leased Wire.) Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 5 .- Following a light fall of snow and a sudden drop in light fail of snow and a sudden drop in temperature last evening. Tacoma today is in the grasp of the coldest weather recorded by the local weather bureau during the past two years. At 8 o'clock this morning the mercury stood at 21 degrees above zero. A biting wind blowing at the rate of 30 mlles an hour is sweeping over the city from the morthwest, causing much discomfort to pedestrians and displacing insecurely fastened signs and awnings.

Same apprehension is feit on the waterfront, where several small craft broke from their moerings early this morning and drifted about the bay.

Logs loosened from the booms at the sawmills north of the city during the gale last night, drifted along shore, crashing into docks, steamers and miscellaneous craft anchored in the stream. Several families living in houseboats near Old Town were so badly frightened during the night by the bumping of the logs against their homes that they deserted the boats and sought shelter at the North Thirtieth street police station. street police station.

STORM IN MONTANA ALMOST AT RECORD; VERY SUDDEN DROP

(Special Dispatch to The Journal, Butte. Mont., Jan. 5.—Reports at noon today indicate one of the coldest waves in the history of the horthwest. At Armstead the temperature fell to 40 degrees below this morning, at Great Falls 25, and at Butte 22. In the high mountains the temperature fell probably to 60 below. All Northern Pacific and Great Northern westbound trains are 3 to 7 hours late. Stock will suffer severely. The wind is driving the snow on the ranges.
