

HOTEL MAN IS GLISAN BRIDGE OPPOSED

Citizens of Peninsula District Insist on Adoption of Broadway Plan as Favored by Ralph Modjeski, City's Expert.

KILLED IN BRAWL

T. J. McGalliard Shot Dead in the Richelieu Lodging House by Osborn Edwards, of Creswell, Or.—Liquor Cause of the Crime.

Thomas J. McGalliard.

Angry at being refused a room in the Richelieu hotel, 33 1/2 North Division street and across by House, Osborn Edwards, of Creswell, Or., 24 years of age, shot Thomas J. McGalliard, the proprietor of the lodging house last night, killing him almost instantly.

The shooting was done on the second floor of the hotel near the landing of the stairway, about 10:20 o'clock, and was witnessed only by the wife of the murdered man.

Mr. and Mrs. McGalliard had spent the evening in their room, playing cribbage with a friend, O. E. Perdue of Chicago. Shortly after 10 o'clock the bell rang in the hall and McGalliard left the card table to answer it.

After getting the keys from his wife McGalliard showed the men to the third floor and was unlocking the door to room 22 when one of the men, both of whom had been drinking, asked meekly if there were any women in the house.

The proprietor told the men that he was not keeping "that kind of a house." A dispute followed, the drunken men insisting that they had been told that the hotel was the home of numerous fallen women.

Refused to Leave Hotel. McGalliard grew angry and ordered the men out of the house. They refused to go, whereupon McGalliard, who is a large man, weighing 247 pounds and muscular, took both men by the collar and started to lead them down to the street. Hot words were exchanged as the three men came down the stairs and Mrs. McGalliard stepped into the hallway to ascertain the trouble.

From this point on she witnessed the tragedy, saw her husband attempt to put the men out and saw them refuse to go, saw Edwards draw a revolver and then closed her eyes as he fired four shots.

Three bullets entered McGalliard's body, and one lodged in the arm of Edwards' companion, who attempted to prevent the tragedy.

McGalliard sank to the floor dying with one bullet in his heart and two in his left shoulder, but clung to the man who had shot him until a guest of the hotel, C. M. Cold, an employee of the Southern Pacific Steamship company, came. Cold fought all the way down the stairs with the murderer, finally overpowering him and holding him for the police.

Widow Tells Story. "I heard the shots," said Mrs. McGalliard this morning, "and then some one said, 'He shot the little fellow, and I thought that one of the men had shot his partner. I ran down stairs."

"After taking three bottles of your wonderful medicine, our baby was entirely well and needed no more medicine. At sixteen months of age she weighed thirty pounds. She had cried eight months, night and day, and nothing did her good until we tried Scott's Emulsion."—MRS. E. C. SMITH, Villa Rica, Ga.

ALL DRUGGISTS

SUBWAY MODEL PROVE CHEAPEST

W. C. Bristol Shows Where City Could Save Money on a Tunnel.

W. C. Bristol, who owns considerable property on the east side, sees in a subway the only solution of the transportation problem. Neither of the two bridge plans find favor in his eyes.

"In the past 20 years," Mr. Bristol declares, "the city has spent—or will have spent, if the proposed bridge is erected—more than $5,000,000. During the last few years practically $500,000 a year will have been spent for bridges, if another bridge is built."

"At this rate a subway would pay for itself in a very few years, and at the same time keep obstructions out of the river, facilitate traffic, create harmony between the east and west sides, and relieve us of the work of the constantly recurring bridge problem."

"I am absolutely opposed to the building of any more bridges to obstruct river traffic. The harbor is the most valuable asset possessed by the city and must not be tampered with when it is not absolutely necessary—a condition not existing as the subway would meet all present necessities."

"I advocate the tunneling of a subway large enough to accommodate two tubes, one over the other, allowing space in each for the streetcars and pedestrians. The harbor is the most valuable asset possessed by the city and must not be tampered with when it is not absolutely necessary—a condition not existing as the subway would meet all present necessities."

"The Glisan street bridge project submitted by F. C. Swigert and others does not appeal to me in any way. In the first place, the western approach could not be used in the time of high water. During such floods as we experienced some years ago the approach would be at least 15 feet under water."

"Another reason for objecting to the Glisan street structure proposed is that two piers are necessary for a bascule bridge. An extra pier would increase the liability of accidents. Approximately 1,000 serious accidents have occurred on the river because of obstructing bridge piers. The government compels bridge engineers to place draw spans in the center of the stream, and as the current must necessarily make a number of serpentine twists and turns, it very infrequently runs through the draws."

"A ship drift, even if it chanced to pass the single pier of the draw, could hardly escape crashing into the two piers of the bascule bridge. Following the course of the river, which turns between Madison street and the steel bridge, the piers are naturally in the line of the current, and it is a lucky thing indeed that, during the time a swift current is running, can be safely conducted through the space of piers. And now they propose putting up two more piers."

looking for the police, but of course I couldn't find any. Then I came back up stairs and found Tommy lying face downward on the floor. I tried to lift him up, but he was too heavy, and I dropped to the floor beside him. I lifted his head and he died with it in my lap."

Mr. Cold, graded with the fellow who did the shooting as they went down stairs, and finally succeeded in getting the gun and holding the man until the police came. He had called the police station myself before I came back up stairs, thinking all the while that another man had been shot.

"Men of this kind had come to our house, many of them, looking for the women who had been driven out of the hotel, and you can't imagine the trouble we have had with them since the north end resort was closed. They come nearly every night and go to all the other hotels along this street. We were almost impossible."

Warned of Danger. "I told Tommy a long time ago not to be rough with that kind of men, for he was afraid of them. He would shoot him some time. The last I heard he said 'You fellows get out of here, or I'll throw you out.' We're not running a respectable house."

Edwards' companion, J. Caudill, who is his cousin, and three years younger, was caught on the street by Sergeant Goltz, a few blocks from the scene. At the police station Edwards admitted having fired the shot, and was attempted to excuse himself by saying that he had been drinking. At the same time the police saw the revolver which he had done. Caudill, Edwards' partner, was removed to St. Vincent's hospital, where the wound in his arm was dressed.

He is to be held as a witness after he is released from the hospital.

A charge of murder was placed against Edwards, who was taken before the grand jury today.

District Attorney Cameron lost no time this morning in presenting the case of Edwards to the grand jury. Following the policy of the city to get all murder cases to trial with the least possible delay, the grand jury is already in possession of the facts of the case, and an indictment against the slayer of the murdered man, Eva Stern, her step-daughter, O. E. Perdue, an attorney from Illinois, who chanced to witness the shooting, C. M. Cold, who captured Edwards, and Police Sergeant Goltz.

Edwards Confesses to Shooting. Deputy District Attorney Fitzgerald obtained from Edwards this morning a confession that he shot McGalliard. The young man declared, however, that he was being wrongly handled by the rooming house keeper when he fired. He denied being intoxicated, although he admitted having had a few drinks.

G. Caudill, the cousin of Edwards, had discarded both his coat and vest when the officers found him at the foot of the stairway leading to the Richelieu. He was plainly under the influence of liquor, the officers say, but Caudill declared he had been accidentally shot while trying to prevent his cousin from shooting McGalliard.

According to Mrs. McGalliard's statement this morning, both young men came from Creswell, Or., recently, where they worked in logging camps. Caudill is still in St. Vincent's hospital, apparently inflicted by Edwards, is not serious.

OPPOSES GLISAN STREET BRIDGE

Only Broadway Site Meets With Favor Among the Peninsula People.

H. A. Heppner of H. A. Heppner & Co., who lives at Taylor and Schuyler streets, regards the Broadway bridge proposed by Ralph Modjeski, the engineering expert, as "absolutely necessary." He is hostile toward any other bridge site proposed.

"Residents of the northeast end and of the peninsula will vote solidly against such a project as Mr. Modjeski proposes, or, in fact, the building of any bridge south of the present steel structure," Mr. Heppner asserts. "For 20 years and more residents of Upper and Lower Albina and the peninsula have been asking for better accommodations. The proposed Glisan street bridge would be even worse for them than the present steel bridge and if such was built I am satisfied that they would end matters by constructing a bridge further north than Broadway, a bridge which would be a detriment to the harbor and drive it further down."

"Without a Broadway bridge people of our district would have to use the ferry even more than now, and the building of a bridge further north would be the ultimate result."

"The Glisan project does not appeal to me for many other reasons, one of which is that the grades on its approaches would be too heavy to allow easy teaming and blockades would be as bad as they now are on the steel bridge."

"The Broadway site is the only one in which I believe."

SEES JOKE IN GLISAN SCHEME

"It is seems most unfortunate that after patient, persistent effort on the part of thousands of residents of the northeast end, the city should entertain the idea of the Glisan street bridge, a project which would be a detriment to the harbor and drive it further down."

Such is the attitude with which William F. Woodward of Woodward, Clarke & Co. receive the proposal to build a double bascule bridge at Glisan street. Mr. Woodward is a strong adherent of the Broadway bridge plan.

"There is not a word from the railroad company or terminal company,"

GRISCOM TAKES RELIEF SUPPLIES

To Messina Tomorrow With Ship—Funds From America in Action.

Rome, Jan. 6.—The Italian ship "Bayern," chartered by the American ambassador, Lloyd Griscom, and laden with supplies furnished by American relief money contributions will leave Civitavecchia tomorrow for Messina. The vessel will go down the Calabrian coast dispensing supplies.

Rome, Jan. 6.—Thousands of victims have died in the Calabrian coast and interior towns through lack of sufficient supplies and relief. Although the authorities are doing all they can to relieve the distress, the necessary delay in the transportation of medicines and food has caused fearful loss in the smaller towns.

Immediately after the quake all available aid was sent to Messina, Reggio and a few other large towns, while the villages, where destruction was the greatest in proportion to population, were left without succor.

Distress through the country has assumed great proportions and urgent appeals for help are being received at Palermo, in Sicily, and Naples, on the mainland.

Orders have been forwarded to Civitavecchia.

EVER WATCHFUL

A Little Care Will Save Many Portland Readers Future Trouble

Watch the kidney secretions. See that they have the amber hue of health.

The discharges not excessive or infrequent.

Contain no "brick-dust like" sediment.

Doan's Kidney Pills will do this for you.

They watch the kidneys and cure them when they're sick.

Mrs. A. M. Hollabaugh, 325 Grant street, Portland, Or., says: "For two or three years my kidneys were disordered and caused me much annoyance. Unlike most cases, I did not suffer a great deal from backache, being bothered principally by irregular action of the kidney secretions. The passages were also attended with pain. Learning about Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply at the Lauer-Davis Drug Co. I soon felt their beneficial effects and when I had used the contents of one box my condition had improved in every way. I hold a very high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills and cheerfully recommend them."

FAVORS SITE ON BROADWAY

E. L. Simmons Says Glisan Street Bridge Would Not Answer.

"The Broadway site seems to me to be the only feasible one," declares E. L. Simmons, a druggist of 135 Russell street. "It seems to me that Mr. Modjeski was better able to select a location than any other person. Beside being one of the best bridge experts in the world he was unbiased and uninfluenced, and would naturally select the best site."

"Personally I have no great interest in the location of the proposed bridge, as I have no property interests of consequence on the east side, but I believe that the people of the east side in general would be more benefited by the Broadway bridge."

"Should the structure be built at Glisan street the people of the northeast end would be practically cut off from the west side. Such a bridge would in reality work a greater hardship on residents of the Albina district and peninsula than the present steel bridge is now doing."

"Portland people must soon come to the realization that the northeast end of town is of greater importance than they know, and that provision must be made at once to enable the residents to that district to reach the west side of the city with ease and speed."

"The center of population of the east side is rapidly moving northward, and within a few years will have reached such a point in that direction that the Glisan street bridge would be of little value. During the next three years we expect the development of the northeast end to be wonderful. Likewise is the peninsula growing fast and already it has become of such importance as to make its interests worthy of serious consideration."

"It is vital to the people of the west side that they maintain better communication with their east side neighbors far more vital than they now believe. If transportation facilities across the river are not improved only one thing can result—the establishment of a business section on the northeast end that will have a serious effect upon west side business."

"The subway I do not now consider seriously; it would not be of any especial benefit to any one except the transit companies."

says Mr. Woodward, "indicating their insincerity of the scheme for a so-called double bascule bridge to replace the present railroad steel structure."

"There is every indication that the present scheme is one of many proposed and calculated to begot and muddle the people and delay the construction of the bridge at Broadway, defeating thereby the expressed wishes of almost the entire east side public."

avocates to the "Bayern" to dispense supplies along the Calabrian coast, for distribution to the interior towns, and thus relieve a part of the immediate suffering.

REGGIO AND MESSINA LEFT TO THEIR DEAD

(United Press Leased Wire.) Catania, Jan. 6.—With the exception of troops, Reggio was evacuated today and by the end of the week only soldiers will remain at Messina.

Next Sunday the two cities will be great silent tombs, patrolled by the military and holding hidden in their ruins the bodies of thousands of their citizens, who died when their homes were destroyed.

Little further effort will be made to recover bodies, but the soldiers are going carefully through the ruins seeking traces of persons who may still be alive.

A man was taken unconscious from a house in Messina, where he had hid from hunger. He recovered this afternoon and said he knew nothing of what had happened.

There is little fear of typhoid fever in the ruined cities, as the survivors are being taken away so rapidly.

The work now most urgent is that among the refugee camps and at Naples, where the hungry, bedridden and insane survivors of the great disaster need constant attention.

QUEEN ORDERED AWAY; WON'T GO

(United Press Leased Wire.) Rome, Jan. 6.—The court physicians today informed Queen Helena that her complete collapse is inevitable unless she desists from working among the earthquake victims. Her highness is extremely nervous as the result of overwork and she ignored the admonitions of the physicians. Grave fear is expressed regarding her physical and mental condition and her case is the cause of much concern.

MORE SHARP SHOCKS FELT AT MESSINA

Palermo, Jan. 6.—Two of six recurring shocks yesterday at Messina were the most severe since the great tremor. Several walls standing were toppled to the ground. Many slight undulations of the earth occurred throughout the day and night, but are unnoticed now by the troops and rescuers thronging the city.

BATTLESHIPS LEAVE FOR QUAKE ZONE

(United Press Leased Wire.) Port Said, Jan. 6.—While every facility for early departure is being offered the American battleships that have been detached from the fleet and ordered to Italy, the vessels were delayed last night by coaling and did not leave for the earthquake zone until early today.

CALIFORNIA SENATE ACTS ON WATER CASE

(United Press Leased Wire.) Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 6.—The senate today adopted Senator Edward I. Wolfe's joint resolution calling on California's senator and representatives in congress to use all honorable means to secure the prompt adoption of the joint resolution confirming the general grant to San Francisco of reservoir sites in the Hetch Hetchy valley.

Senator Curtin of Tuolumne opposed the resolution on the ground that the measure was now being amended in committee at Washington and the adoption of the resolution would be confusing in that it would give no claims here. Announces today that the relief fund has reached $5,000,000.

DID NOT MAKE LOVE TO CLAUDIA

Jenkins Hains Yells His Denial When Darrin Questions Him About It.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Flushing, L. I., Jan. 6.—Thornton Jenkins Hains, on trial for his life for participation in the shooting of William Annis by Captain Peter C. Hains, was compelled today to deny that he had grasped the arm of his brother's wife, Claudia, and remarked that she looked sweet enough to kiss.

The question was asked by Special Prosecutor Darrin in an endeavor to support the theory of the prosecution that the defendant instigated his brother to shoot Annis because of his own love for his brother's wife.

"The morning began the third day of Jenkins Hains' appearance on the witness stand. He was nervous and pale, but appeared better than yesterday, when he was compelled to take refuge behind a plea of weak memory to explain contradictions in his testimony."

The cross-examination by Darrin went smoothly until the prosecution asked:

"Did you, on any occasion, after your brother went to the Philippines grasp Mrs. Claudia Hains by the arm and say 'My God, you look sweet. I would like to kiss you, only you're my brother's wife'?"

Attorney McIntyre, for the defense, arose and declared that the line of questioning was incompetent, but that he did not want his client placed in a false light and would allow him to answer.

Hains turned to Judge Crane and said:

"Your honor, I'm a prisoner here. Must I submit to such insulting questions by this man?"

"Your counsel does not object," replied the court. "So I will do nothing."

"Answer yes or no," cried Darrin loudly.

"No," yelled the defendant.

"Did you ever sit at the side of your sister-in-law's bed and say, 'Claudia, won't you come up town with me?'"

McIntyre objected to the line of questioning. Hains sat writing in the witness chair, his mouth foaming and his face twitching.

Judge Crane sustained McIntyre's objection.

After his excitement had been allayed, Hains returned to his relation of his brother's actions that might indicate that he was irrational before and during the shooting of Annis.

definite instructions to the congressmen working for the measure.

The vote was unanimous in favor of the resolution.

Washington, Jan. 6.—The fate of the bill providing for a government grant of a water site to the city of San Francisco in the Hetch Hetchy valley hangs in the balance today. After a long session of a sub-committee of the resolution was reported to the general committee today.

The bill with numerous amendments will be introduced in the house this afternoon by Representative Smith of California, and then committed to the public lands committee. The committee will hear reports of both sides on the bill at a special meeting next Saturday before reporting it back to the house.

Vermont, Massachusetts, Maine, California, Wisconsin Maryland, North Carolina, Georgia, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Connecticut and Washington each produced more than $500,000 worth of granite in 1907.

LABOR LEADERS DEEF COURTS

Will Go to Jail If They Must but Will Not Lift Boycott.

(United Press Leased Wire.) San Francisco, Jan. 6.—It is considered probable that President John W. Sweeney and Secretary Andrew J. Gallagher of the San Francisco labor council will refuse to testify when they appear before Superior Judge Seawell Friday in answer to a summons to show cause why an order should not be issued restraining them from boycotting the Foushek Baking company of this city.

That event the injunction is practically certain to be issued and the arrest of the labor leaders will probably follow.

"If it is necessary for us to go to jail for disobeying the court's order we will do so, but the boycott which we have levied on the Foushek Baking company will not be removed," said Gallagher today. "We are in the same boat with Gomberg, Mitchell and Morrison. We shall stand on our rights and will serve for all time the right to ask people not to patronize firms unfair to labor. We are fighting for a principle, the same as are all other labor leaders throughout this country, and if we must go to jail for reserving the right of free speech and free press, so let it be."

More than 25,000 employees of the Pennsylvania railroad have been instructed in the first aid to the injured at the company's expense.

WATER PIPES FREEZE MERCHANDISE DAMAGED

Outlet Clothing Company Suffers From Antics of Jack Frost Last Night.

Owing to the cold weather of last night the water pipes in the building at the northeast corner of First and Morrison froze and burst. Frost and cold caused by what is said to be one of the worst frosts ever experienced by a mercantile establishment in this city. At 8 o'clock this morning the entire first floor was flooded and the streets at this corner were a running pool of water. The loss is mostly suffered by the Outlet Clothing company, who occupy the entire first floor with a retail store, and the basement is used by this same concern as a storeroom for unpacked merchandise. At the present time the exact loss cannot be estimated, as thousands of dollars' worth of merchandise in the basement is a total loss, and nearly all the stock on the first floor is more or less damaged. As soon as the flood was discovered an army of plumbers were put to work repairing the pipes and checking the flow of water, which was accomplished with little delay. Whether the landlord or the tenants will have to stand the loss is not known.
