

SPEEDY TRIAL A COMMON RIGHT

Borah of Idaho Demands Act to Enforce "Right of the Accused"—Says Gov- ernment Jockeys as Much as Accused Persons.

By John E. Lathrop.
Washington, Jan. 6.—Senator Borah of Idaho is determined to press for passage his bill, S. 7769, introduced December 14, to provide for the dismissal of indictments in case of failure to prosecute in federal courts.

The author of the measure takes strong ground in supporting his bill. He believes that rank injustice is often done men who have been charged with offenses against the federal statutes, and bases his action in framing and advocating this proposed law, on the fundamental right guaranteed by the national constitution, to have speedy trial. Since the Borah measure has been advanced, instances have been cited of men indicted in federal courts, especially in Oregon and Idaho, who waited three years, only either to be acquitted or have their cases dismissed on motion of the government counsel.

An Example of Injustice.
In a lobby conversation the other day, while the Borah bill was under consideration by a group of law makers, an instance was cited of a western citizen who was indicted, asked for trial at once, failed to force the district attorney to act, and finally, after a year or two, was confronted in court with the proposal by the government that his case be dismissed.

Speedy Trial Necessary.
It has been called to attention, too, that in the Oregon land fraud cases most of the defendants waited more than a year, while some of them were brought into court after three years, or their cases were dismissed.

Borah's Own Arguments.
The constitution of the United States provides that "in all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial."

Who Is to Blame for Law's Delay?
"There has been a great deal said lately about the delay in the administration of criminal law and the inference has been permitted to be drawn that the delay was always on the part of those charged with crime. As a matter of fact, the most notorious instances of delay have been upon the part of the government and the government has no more right to delay the trial than an individual without good cause shown."

Evidence That the President Also Trod Softly While Trying to Take a Crack— All Seems Safe for Incum- -ent Now.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Boise, Idaho, Jan. 6.—Senator Heyburn reached this city early today. He was met on his arrival by a number of members of the legislature, and friends. The agreement signed by 46 members of the lower house, declaring the intention to return to the senate, "not because of the convention pledge but on account of his services to state and nation," accompanied by an endorsement of the same import was presented to him.

Senatorship Seems Settled.
The senatorial matter has been finally settled, apparently, and it is now certain that Senator W. E. Borah will be re-elected Monday night the announcement was made by his manager, General Joseph Perrault, that a sufficient number of the members of the legislature had been signed up to insure Heyburn's election on the first ballot.

The Anti-Heyburn Campaign.
A very peculiar campaign was waged throughout the fall months against Heyburn, and this campaign did not close with the holding of the general election in November. Gifted political manipulators visited the different parts of the state, and interviewed the newly elected legislative members, endeavoring to influence their votes on the senatorial matter, apparently not in favor of Heyburn, but in opposition to it.

Heyburn Summoned.
When the members of the legislature began to gather in the city last week, rumors of alleged opposition to Heyburn's election began to fly. It became so apparent that an earnest effort to defeat him was being made by his friends, under the leadership of General Perrault, notified him that his presence was needed here.

Evidence of the Big Stick.
It is an interesting study at this time to note that the federal officeholders, most of whom are indicted by Heyburn for their political lives, are noticeably absent from among those who took up his battle. This, too, despite the fact that many of them are tied to him by feelings of the deepest personal regard.

Speakership Fight.
The fight over the speakership, which resulted in the election of Representative Paul Clagstone of Bonner county, has left some traces of bitterness among so much among the members, as in the minds of one or two of the state officers, in the legislature, and when Clagstone was first mentioned for the speakership, he was presumably advanced as a candidate upon whom the liquor interests were united.

Foreman was widely known as a man of good character, he had served his term as state superintendent of public instruction, and has for many years been connected with one of the leading newspapers of the state, so it was possible to gather to his standard many friends of the local option cause.

himself supported half-heartedly from his own section, withdrew his candidacy. Representative Parsons, of Idaho county, who had first been advanced by the liquor men, only to be dropped, strength also withdrew, and P. G. Johnson, a Mormon member from Bingham, who had aspirations, finding himself in a hopeless minority, concluded that he didn't want the honor. The fight was then left between Foreman and Clagstone, both of whom are from the northern part of the state.

The Deal that Made Clagstone.
Then began some fine political manipulation. As many Republican members were signed up for Clagstone as could be secured. Then the three lower house members from Latah county, who are Democrats, were approached. It was pointed out that the Mormon counties had long desired to remove the agricultural college from Moscow, where it forms a part of the state university, and locate it at Idaho Falls. It was also pointed out that Bingham county was constantly fearful of the division of the county, and that this was also true of Oneida, Blaine, and Lincoln counties, and if they would agree to support Clagstone, Washington, Jan. 6.—Word has been sent to Wenatchee that J. S. Surrill, charged with grand larceny, and O. Fugh, charged with forgery, succeeded in breaking jail at Waterville by digging their way out through the rock wall of the building. It is believed they will seek shelter, as zero weather prevails over the Big Bend country.

help elect him speaker. With this accomplished, little difficulty was experienced in securing further Republican support for Clagstone.

LAW INTERVENES TO SAVE YOUNG GIRL

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Roseburg, Or., Jan. 6.—Sam Cantell, a three quarter blood Indian from above Drew, in the southern part of Douglas county, was arrested and brought to this city by Sheriff Fenton and Constable John N. Ryan this morning, charged with mistreating his niece, 14-year-old Agnes Russell. The girl was thrown upon the mercy of Cantell when her mother died, her father a white man, deserting her, and her 9-year-old sister over a year ago.
