Did you ever hear of a ball player being released from a team because he hit the ball so hard that it was never recovered? That's exactly what happened to Mike Mitchell, formerly of Portland, but now an outfielder on the Cincinnati Reds team. Mitchell's ability to bat is what caused his release; that and nothing else. Mitchell has just told the story. It happened several years ago, but for some reason or other it never appeared in print. Tales of how men were made mil-lionaires in a single day in the frozen regions of the north, began making their way to this country. Then came a re-this act as unjust." The proposition of reforesting logged-off lands in the northwest is one that George M. Cornwall has been urging for a long while. Mr. Cornwall will present to the legislatures of Oregon and Wash-ington bills providing that upon the ap-proval of the state forestry board in-dividuals may take logged-off lands for reforestration, while the state's tax on such lands will be a cumulative one to be collected when the timber is cut. For instance, at the end of 40 years, say, if it should be found desirable to cut the timber, the state would get $2 a 1000 for all timber cut from such reforested lands. Mr. Cornwall claims that if Ore-gon and Washington, each had 1,000,000 acres reforested, at the end of 40 years there would be 15,000 feet per acre. The state's interest would be $30,000,000, labor would receive $10 per 1000 feet for its manufacture, a total of $150,-000,000, while the states would be as-sured of a constant supply of timber. either in city hall of the connectude. This committee, consisting of George M. Cornwall, editor of the "Timber-man," Lewis Montgomery of Mann & Montgomery, H. D. Langille of Lacey & Co., and several others, will consider the best manner of presenting the timbermen's side of the Beals bill which is now before the state legisla-ture for passage. This bill provides that owners of timber lands in Ore-gon file with the county auditor cruifile with the county auditor crui-estimates of what timber they sers' estimates of what timber they own and of its value, together with a sworn statement attesting the accuracy of the estimate. This, according to the bill, must be done within 90 days. Aside from the fact that it would be impos-sible to cruisé all the timber in the state within 90 days the timber owners claim it would be unjust to compel-them to cruise this timber and to file a statement of its amount and value as a public record. They claim that they are entitled to secure what they can for their timber and that to make public its value would be unfair to "Many of us took homesteads along the banks of this stream with the sole purpose and intention of using the water for the generation of power and light for domestic use, thereby creating homes with all the advantages of the public its value would be unfair

A MUCHLI RIDPIN (Hearst News by Longest Leased Wire.) Union City, Tenn. Jan. 28.—The Mar-shall night rider trial has been full of surprising testimony, some of it damag-ing, but the bulk of it calculated to make the sentences lighter if a verdict is rendered. The main witness was Bill Johnson, who connected Marshall with several raids prior to the murder, and said the defendant was at the corner of Powell's field when he and Ethelbert Rogers rode up. Marshall pulled his pistol, remarking: "I wonder what P. C. (meaning Ward, the proprietor of the Walnut Log hotel) will do when I stick this in his face?" After Taylor and Rankin had been brought from the hotel, Garrett Johnson incited the crowd to murder, when Mar-shall and Ethelbert Rogers begged the crowd not to kill them, saying it was the worst thing they could do. Garrett Johnson then ordered Marshall to be knocked down with a gun. The witness said the trip was not planned to commit murder, but the men were to be whipped and wakked to Hick-man. Ky, and ordered never to come to Reelfoot Lake again. OVEPHIEATED SCHOUE
