SUPPLE LIFE FOR KASER

Seeks Seclusion of Potsdam to Avoid Gay Life of Berlin—People Desire Monarch to Show More Reserve.

(Hearst Cable.) Berlin, Jan. 23.—Bulking like a child who has received a scolding, the Kaiser has decided to avoid the publicity of Berlin and will continue to lead a simple and secluded life in quiet Potsdam.

The people have made him understand that they wish the monarch to show "more reserve," and, as a man who never does things by halves, William has decided to give them no reason for complaint. But complain they do anyway, at least aristocratic society and Berlin tradespeople do, because Berlin without the Kaiser and court festivals means a dull season and a falling of in trade.

It is understood that one of the Kaiser's reasons for preferring an idyllic life at Potsdam is his need of rest after the strain of his recent political crisis, which was a severe shock to his nerves.

It is furthermore stated that about the first of March the whole imperial family will go to Villa Achilleon on the coast of Norway, and then may the German monarch have forgotten how rudely they have behaved to their monarch by the grace of God.

Because the Hungarian minister of the interior has arbitrarily dissolved two workmen in the city, the country is now in the throes of a general strike, ordered by the Socialists.

As soon as the order was issued 90,000 workers at Budapest stopped work and every factory in the city was shut down. In many of the principal towns not a newspaper is printed, and altogether some 400,000 men are idle.

The case of Captain Berger, one of the brilliant officers of the German navy, is engaging public attention very keenly. On April 7, 1906, Captain Berger was placed on the attached list, and the reasons given for such disciplinary treatment were by no means clear.

The minister of marine has decided to enter an action against the navy captain and the editor of "Blaubach." A striking feature of the German press today is the numerous criticisms written by experts, many of whom are officers still on service, and discussing the German navy, the army, the headquarters' staff and the emperor's military cabinet in outspoken and often harsh language.

Canvass Offended French. (Hearst Cable.) Berlin, Jan. 23.—The French flag is no longer insulted on canvass on the walls of the Reichstag.

RICH WOMEN PLAN AN ENDOWMENT FOR ALL GOOD MOTHERS

(Hearst Cable.) Berlin, Jan. 23.—A remarkable "anti-race suicide" movement has been making rapid progress in West Germany. A society of wealthy ladies has been formed there for the purpose of endowing all women who bring children into the world, irrespective of whether they are legally married or not.

NINE IN FAMILY GENIUSES IN ART

(Hearst Cable.) London, Jan. 23.—Nine young geniuses—the March family—have been discovered at Farnborough, Kent, doing splendid work in various arts and crafts. Every member of the family of seven boys and two girls has some talent, ranging from monumental sculpture to jewelry, and all are constantly employed.

MENSENDORF LOSES; AEBRENTHAL WINS

(Hearst Cable.) London, Jan. 23.—Count Mensdorff's unexpected resignation of his post as Austrian ambassador to London is interpreted in diplomatic circles to indicate that for the present the position of Baron von Aehrenthal, as the Austrian prime minister, is secure.

Wanted to See Her Feet.

(Hearst Cable.) London, Jan. 23.—A lesson in manners has been given a London drawing room by a Chinese lady to a crowd of English society women. Among the guests invited by a prominent London hostess to a dinner party was the wife of a Chinese diplomat, and when the ladies had retired to the drawing room, the hostess asked her guest if she would be "so sweet as to show her little feet."

TURKEY HAS ROMANTIC STORY

Sultan Has Long Stood in Shadow of Dark Ages and Liberty of Land Is Terrifying to Him—Ballot Box Has Curious Effect.

(Hearst Cable.) London, Jan. 23.—Nothing in the history of Europe has been more startlingly romantic than the new era which has just opened in Turkey, and the accounts of the assembly of the parliament at Constantinople read more like a fantasy from "The Thousand and One Nights" than a serious piece of newspaper intelligence.

The two people who have probably brought about the new era in Turkey held yesterday were the pope of the Mohammedan church, who upheld the revolting offer, and the Sultan, who declared that the demand for the constitution was agreeable to the holy law of Islam under the shadow of the sword.

The Sultan, who has so long stood in the dark shadow of ill luck over the safety of his lands, is glad and terrified, frightened of the living, dreading the appearance of the dead, his court scattered, his minions dead and slain, and all the machinery of autocracy lying broken at his feet.

Constantinople has been elaborately decorated, and a hymn of liberty is heard rising through the streets. Even the Turkish ladies of the higher classes have taken the keenest interest, a fact which is a revelation of the widespread revolution that has taken place.

Mr. Charles Hands, who probably knows as much as anyone of Oriental life, has been emphatically heard while ago, no one dares to declare his own opinion for fear of being suspected of a dangerous conspiracy.

The mystery was explained, and uncertainty vanished, everyone realized that nothing awful was going to happen, except that a system of constitutional government was being inaugurated.

INJUNCTION MAY BE APPLIED

(Hearst Cable.) London, Jan. 23.—The legal right of one man to fly over another man's property is prophesied as a future enactment of International Law by Roger Wallace, K. C., a London barrister, who is a prominent member of the Aero club and British delegate to the International Aeronautic conference.

There is no more remarkable figure in the quiet determined concentrated conqueror of the air, Mr. Wilbur Wright. In his little campment at Le Mans, in his mind there is something singularly appalling in the simple, primitive existence of that marvelous mechanic.

Poor American Man.

(Hearst Cable.) London, Jan. 23.—"The American man problem puzzles all," says Truth. "The American man is apparently objectionable to the American woman, for when the latter is sufficiently rich she generally marries a European. Though the pick of European men are prepared to marry rich American women, the European woman can seldom be induced to marry an American."

FRENCHMAN WHO WAS TIRED OF HIS WIFE SOLD HER FOR PALTRY SUM

(Hearst Cable.) Paris, Jan. 23.—A queer story of a man selling his wife with his goods and cattle comes from Roanna, Jean Marie Boisset, a wine grower of France, married Reine Mouilly 17 years ago.

An interesting case affecting doctor and patient came before the seventh chamber of the tribunal yesterday. A doctor who made a specialty of neurasthenic cases, came to the conclusion that this malady was simply a disease of the will. His method with his patients is a very simple one. All he does is to talk to his patients, to inspire them with the desire to get well.

An exciting ox fight has occurred in the streets of Pantin. The beast escaped from the goods station at Pantin and rushed through the streets. The animal first attacked the horse of a cabinet maker, and then upset a man with a handcart, injuring him seriously.
