WORKING FOR A GREATER KOREA

Dr. E. F. Hall of Soule, Corea, was in Portland yesterday as advance agent for a party of Korean missionaries who are new touring the east in the interests of "awakening Korea." They have been giving lectures in all the big cities of the east, not only on religious but also on commercial topics.

In the party now in the east are Dr. H. G. Underwood, Dr. Charles R. Avison of the Severance hospital and the president of the medical college in Soule and Professor Hurlburt of the government school for boys in Soule. They will arrive here about the first of March and plans are already being made by Dr. H. W. Foulkes of the First Presbyterian church for their reception. He plans giving a dinner at the Commercial club for the business men of the city, at which Korea will be discussed from a business standpoint only and at which these men will all tell the Portland people about the field for trade which awaits them in Korea. Dr. Hall will meet them here.

The party has met with great success in the campaign throughout the east. While their prime object, of course, is the promotion of Christianity in Korea, they do not overlook the commercial possibilities of the country.

SENATE VOTES TO HURRY ON HOME

Charged With Fraud, and Resolution Adopted to Adjourn Wednesday, February 10.

(By Journal Leased Salem Wire.)

Salem, Or., Feb. 3.—President Bowerman's resolution to put the house in the hole on the question of carry adjournment went through the senate this morning with only scattering opposition. It fixes next Wednesday as the date for final end of the session. Speaker McArthur and members of the house have declared they cannot adjourn at that time and this puts the house in the attitude of being responsible for fullure to hasten the work.

Several senators voted for the resolution, with reservations, regarding it as a joke on the house. As the good roads bill, the water code and the appropriation budget are yet to be considered, to say nothing of the ten inch hatpin bill and scores of other measures, the session promises to last the full 40 days.

The city council, in special session, this morning instructed Mayor Lane to appoint a committee of disinterested appraisers to examine the Sellwood park site of 15.7 acres, which has been offered to the city for $4000 an acre by W. H. Moorehead. This committee is to inspect the park site and to advise the council at a special meeting Saturday morning as to what is, in the opinion of the appraisers, a fair valuation for the property. The council acting on this advice will make an offer to Mr. Moorehead and in case he refuses the offer condemnation proceedings will be started at once by the city attorney.

Mr. Moorehead appeared before the council and declared that he was thred of waiting for it to take action. He said he would be glad to have the city take the case into the courts, but that he wanted this done as soon as possible. Ha said he had refrained from cutting down any more trees on the property because he did not want to

Therefore, be it resolved that we most respectfully ask and petition Sentator J. N. Mayor Lane and City Attorney Kavanaugh thought the idea of having such a committee to work with the park board a good one, as it would enable the council to authorize the payment of whatever prices are recommended and would give the city a basis on which to begin condemnation proceedings.

The council passed an ordinance approprietor $27,500 for the purchase of the Pittock tract on Mount Tabor by the water board for reservoir purposes.

(By Journal Leased Salem Wire.) Salem, Or., Feb. 3.-John C. McCue, guardian of the interests of Clatsop county and of Astoria, has given notice that he is on the warpath,

"I have a word to say upon that measure," he said yesterday afternoon. He was referring to the Mahone pilotage bill, providing that the port of Portland shall have charge and management of the pilotage business affecting her shipping interests. He also told the Multnomah delegation, pleasantly, that they "acted like a bunch of schoolboys," and said that "if the legislature of this state is going to legislate in the interests of Multnomah county alone, then lets turn the whole thing over to them. Lets move the capitol down to Portland and give them the whole thing." "I have a word to say upon that

The discussion came up over the report of the committee on commerce regarding the pilotage bill. The committee reported favorably on the measure and amended it by the addition of an emergency clause. McKinney, chairman of the committee, moved the adoption of the report and then Mr. Magot into action.

man of the committee moved the adoption of the report and then Mr. Mc got into action.

"This is preposterous," he said. "Here comes a bill simply changing a law that has been on the statute books of the state for 25 years, and the committee puts an emergency clause to it. declaring that the amendment is necessary for the preservation of public peace, health and safety. It is silly, I don't care about this report, for I am willing to speak to the merits of the bill when it comes up for final passage, but there is no reason for this emergency clause. It is silly."

Over Mr. McCue's opposition, however, the report was adopted and the bill was made a special order for Thursday next at 10 o'clock. At this time one of the big fights of the session will take place, when Mr. McCue will enter the lists against the pilotage bill, contending that the present pilotage arrangements at the mouth of the river should not be changed.

PUCCINI'S "LA BOHEME" HOLDS BIG AUDIENCE SPELL BOUND

By Beatrice Dierks.

Never did Puccini's lovely "La Boheme" receive a better performance than that which was given at the Heilig last evening by the Lambardi Grand Opera company. The singers, conductor, orchestra and chorus entered into the tuneful opera with an enthusiasm which held the audience spellbound from the first note until the last, when death calls poor little Mimi. Of the five operas which Puccini has written, "La Boheme" is perhaps the most popular and is given oftener and in more cities than any modern Italian opera, with the sole exception of "Cavalileria Rusticana." VETO AX HANGS OVER CENSUS BILL

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Washington, Feb. 3.—It was authoritatively learned today that the president will veto the census bill. The president reached this determination to veto the bill after a conference with Census Director North, today.

PEOPLE'S LAWS

Referendum Successfully Defended.

Salem, Or., Feb. 3.—Progressives and conservatives lined up in the senate yesterday after a vigorous and somewhat unique debate on the uses and abuses of the initiative and referendum, and the progressives won. It was the nearest to an alignment on Statement No. 1 lines since the vote on United States senator was taken, with Senator Seiling leading the progressive wing and Senator Smith of Marion heading the reactionaries.

Six Statement men crossed the line to vote for Smith's bill, which provided a penalty for paying for the circulation of initiative or referendum petitions. Three anti-Statement senators voted with Seiling. Smith's idea is that such work should be a labor of love. He professed undying devotion to the initiative and referendum, and Nottingham, who joined in the assauft, protested it was because he loved it so that he voted with Smith.

Selling Translates Speeches.

Selling Translates Speeches. Selling Translates Speeches.

Selling was on guard and he tore off the mask without quibble. He said the Smith bill would be amusing if it were not so serious, but that in the end it would make no difference, as the people would not stand for it if the legislature did pass it. He said if the measure had been labelled "A bill to destroy the initiative and referendum," he could give its proponents credit for fairness and honesty. But, however the legislature chose to act, the people would not allow their rights to be taken from them.

would not allow their rights to be taken from them.

Coffey entered the lists with the idea that the bill was not against the initiative and referendum. It was to stop the circulation of petitions at 5 cents per signature, he said.

Beach put the same thought in plainer language and said it was intended to "stop fool laws." He said signatures could be obtained to any sort of petition by men going out on commission to get them, and in Multnomah county, he declared, there had been raised a crop of professional circulators, who bored people to death to get signatures at 5 cents per.

Mr. Smith's Sarcasm.

Mr. Smith's Sarcasm

Mr. Smith's Sarcasm.

Smith came back to the attack with sarcastic references to "a factory where laws are manufactured at Oregon City," his evident reference to W. S. U'Ren, provoking a general smile. He said he wanted to hit at freak legislation, and that such bills usually come from one man's brain. This man, or set of men, with money behind, could hire circulators and get any kind of fool measure voted on, he said. He did not believe half the people read the corrupt practice or proportional representation bills, but voted for them on their names.

Albee said he could see no objection to paying for the circulating of peti-tions, for men could not be secured to do such work for nothing and many men could not afford to take the time

men could not alrord to take the time themselves.

Selling strengthened this point by saying he was one of the men who paid for the circulation of initiative petitions for progressive legislation for the benefit of the state.

Barrett thought the practice of circulating petitions for pay led to evil, and referred to the rival fish bills at the last election and the possibility of initiative movements for new counties. Abraham thought the proposed law would tie the hands of men who act in good faith and that the unscrupulous would secretly employ men in violation of its provisions.

Nottingham said he thought the bill would dignify the initiative and referendum.

The passage of "fool laws" had become a disgrace, he said, and he thought it would help to stop them, to pass this bill. pass this bill.

Noyes, the plaintiff, is suing him for $10,000 damages, claiming that Sollers alienated damages, claiming that Sollers alienated his wife's affections.

In May, 1907, Noyes sent his wife to Livermore Falls, Maine, in the hope of breaking up the friendship existing between her and Sollers. Testimony was introduced to show that she corresponded with the defendant while visiting in the east, addressing the letters to George Still, care of the Southern Pacific car shops. Sollers was at that time employed asga machinist in the Southern Pacific shops.

The plaintiff's 18-year-old daughter testified that her mother frequently made signs to Sollers, who lives in the house adjoining the Noyes home, and said he often spent the evening with her mother. On one occasion the daughter said she came down stairs after having gone to bed and discovered har mother and Sollers sitting on the couch close together. The girl said there was no light in the room at the time. Noyes was working in Medford at this time.

Mrs. Noyes was put on the stand and swore steadfastly that she did not now and never at any time did love Sollers. She said that any relations she may have had with Sollers she had merely as a friend. She admitted doing a few needless acts out of spite, but she said "you would, too, if your husband and family were continually nagging at you."

Sollers testified on the stand this morning that Mrs. Noves had helped him weed his garden. He said he was a lover of flowers and that he always had a bouquet in his house. J. M. Botsford also testified this morning that he and his wife and Mrs. Noves went to a party at Soller's home while Noves was absent in Medford.

The attorneys are making their final arguments to the jury this afternoon.

Most Dentists Common Tooth Pullers

Dentists are continually cautioning the public to save their teeth-that is, not to have them extracted. But they refer solely to decaying teeth, which they wish to have the opportunity of filling or crowning. Of course, there is little else to do with a decayed tooth but to fill it, but these same dentists who implore you to save your teeth will pull good teeth without a tremor simply because they are loose from a disease. We wish to reiterate that there is no need of extracting or losing any tooth simply because it is loose. We have a device and a remedy by which we can fasten any loose teeth and make them forever solid. This is a part of the system we have originated.

Now, with regard to diseases of the gums, in which dentists are so pathetically helpless. In the course of the 15 years we have spent developing this Alveolar System of Dentistry, we also have found something that will stop pus forming in the gums, that will prevent the gums from receding, and thus either protruding the teeth or forcing them out altogether. We can give the gums practically new life, makng them ruddy and healthy and natural. We have never known this system to fail in any diseased condition of the gums. We mean this unequivocally.

As to the third improvement in dentistry outlined in our talks, we said that the majority of people were wearing plates of false teeth when it could have been avoided. For example, a person has three or four teeth on the upper jaw, and, let us say, a half dozen on the lower jaw. Perhaps these remaining teeth are solid, and perhaps they are not. The patient complains that he can no longer masticate his food, and that he is otherwise having constant trouble. The dentist promptly suggests extraction, and a plate of false teeth to follow. Have you ever stopped to realize what this means to the poor victim? tooth once extracted is gone forever. All the teeth once extracted can never be restored. The unfortunate one must wear a plate of false teeth the rest of his or her life. Think of that! By our Alveolar Method, if there had been two or more teeth on either jaw-whether solid, sound or loose makes no difference-we could have prevented the wearing of a plate of false teeth. All we require is two or more teeth on either jaw. With these to start with, we can give you back your 32 teeth, and will defy anyone, dentist or layman, to tell the substitutes from the original ones. Each tooth will be as solid and useful as any tooth in any human being's mouth. In this way we have saved many a dition. We do dental work in all its oranches, from the simple piece of filling to the complicated and scientific Alveolar work. You will find that we are reasonable in all our charges.

We make a careful examination of the mouth free. If you would know more of this Alveolar work, send for our book, "Alveolar Dentistry," a treatise on the teeth in general and the new method in particular. The book is free.
