

TRANSFERS OF EXPRESS LINES

Milwaukee and Wisconsin Central to Link With C. P. Interest.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 6.—Within the next six months some of the most sweeping changes in the operation of leading express companies in the west and northwest that have taken place in years will be made. These will include the withdrawal, between now and July 1, from the entire system of the Milwaukee road of the United States Express company and later the retirement from the Wisconsin Central of the National Express company, to make way for the Western Express company, owned by the Canadian Pacific and a part of the Canadian Pacific Express company of Canada.

NIPPON TOO POOR TO MAKE FIGHT

(Continued from Page One.) England and the United States are Japan's bankers. The Japanese are a clever people. They realize the truth of what I have just said. There is a limit to resources of that country. Japan, I believe, can see the end of those resources at the rate it is spending money now. It is out of the question, Japan recognizes that a conflict with Russia is inevitable and the government is straining every nerve, exhausting every effort to put itself in a state of preparedness. But the resources of Russia are practically illimitable. Russia is anxious to avenge herself on Japan, and as she holds the initiative, she has enormous loans from Russia. I plainly spoken notice to Japan of what the latter might expect.

Merely Local Issues. "Japan wants no trouble with the United States. Japan has bigger things on her hands now. I look upon the trouble on the Pacific coast as merely local issues over which two nations could not go to war if they wanted to. Unless the Pacific coast states pass some legislation, a specific act aimed at Japan, Japan cannot complain. As long as those states make it unlawful for all alien Asiatics to enter their boundaries, the act is not aimed at Japan specifically. It is aimed at all the nations of the east."

"Admiral, in your opinion, is there any possibility of probability of the return of the battleship fleet to the Pacific coast?" was asked. "Don't need fleet." "I think not," was the reply. "My personal opinion, which I know is shared by many other officers and by government officials, is that there is no need of it at present. Congress is bound to be brought up to look where it will see that it is necessary to have not only a great battleship fleet on the Atlantic coast, but on the Pacific coast as well. I believe there will be a fleet of 24 ships, with the necessary trimmings, cruisers, torpedo boats, destroyers, colliers and hospital ships on the Atlantic and on the Pacific. These will be divided into two squadrons, of 16 ships each, with eight ships on each coast held in reserve. Then, if necessary, these reserve ships could be made a third squadron and with such a force were in the world, earth that would dare tackle the United States.

"The people of the United States must be brought to see, and through them congress must be made to realize this," continued Admiral Evans impressively. "Unless we have a navy that is always in a state of preparedness to fight at the drop of the hat, it is better to have no navy at all."

SPEAKER STANTON SOLEMNLY WARNS ANTI-JAP RADICALS

(Heart News by Longest Leased Wire.) Los Angeles, Feb. 6.—"The Japanese situation is acute and must be handled with kid gloves. I am not trying to exaggerate or to make alarming statements merely to prevent legislation. This warning is justified by facts as they exist." In a remarkable interview Speaker P. A. Stanton today added to the startling appeal he made in the legislative assembly. His statement was remarkable not alone for what he said but chiefly for what he left unsaid. "The facts upon which he based his grave warning and from which arisen his plea that the people 'for God's sake shall be converted to a more sane and sane policy through anti-Japanese legislation at this time,' are unrevealed. No hint was given regarding the nature of the information which caused him to leave the speaker's chair and say: 'We are treading on very dangerous ground and I can feel the soil slipping from under me.'"

The warning is the more amazing that none of Speaker Stanton's colleagues know what inspired it and Governor Gillett himself, though he has been in close touch not only with the state but the federal government's relations toward the Japanese, does not know what Mr. Stanton meant when he said: "I not only believe, but I know certain things."

Information Is Definite. "What is that information which you have withheld?" Mr. Stanton was asked by a reporter today. "I could not under any circumstances reveal that," he said. The speaker arrived in this city this morning to look after private business and to emphasize to the press the importance of conservatism. "Did this information come to you from President Roosevelt or any government official?" "I cannot divulge the source of my information," he said. "It is definite."

"It is imperative, as I viewed existing conditions and the status of this delicate question, that vote whereby the assembly passed the anti-Japanese school bill, should be reconsidered."

"I would have brought on this bill precipitated a crisis." "In my opinion, it would." "By a crisis, do you mean war?" "I do not mean war," he said, "but when I say that such a bill, if enacted, would precipitate a crisis, I am stating that the matter is serious and I take it that the people will know what I mean." "Then you consider the situation more serious than that of two years ago?" "However," he added, in another vein, "I hope and believe that within the next few days there will be developments which will clear the atmosphere."

"You mean that on Wednesday, when the bill is reconsidered, it will be defeated?" "Tactical Matters to Be Adjusted." "I can't say whether it will be defeated or not, merely by the necessity for conservatism and for the people who are clamoring for anti-Japanese legislation to be patient for a few days. There are some tactical matters to be adjusted and it is for the people of this state to await their settlement without further stirring up the feeling that exists."

"Will you state at the present time whether your information came from Washington or was secured from other quarters?" "It would be impossible for me to even intimate what is the nature of the information I have or how I came by it. It is argument enough, it seems to me, to President Roosevelt has characterized the school bill as the very worst of all the proposed anti-Japanese legislation. It is the one which the Japanese government has most vigorously objected, and the strong requests that it be not passed, coming from the president and Governor Gillett, should be given the consideration to which they are entitled by virtue of the high position of the officials and the inside knowledge they possess."

GILLETT SAYS BILL WILL MEET "DESERVED DEATH"

(United Press Leased Wire.) San Francisco, Feb. 6.—Governor Gillett who arrived here from Sacramento today, in connection with the movement now under way to curb the anti-Japanese inclinations of certain legislators, declined to become excited over the matter. The governor said when asked in regard to the present aspect of legislation: "I feel sure the legislature will settle this matter itself. If the assembly persists in passing the obnoxious and unnecessary school bill, it will meet the death it deserves in the senate. I have not received any further dispatches from President Roosevelt bearing on the subject, except one that came today. This simply congratulates me on the position I assumed in my special message to the legislature. The president also informed me that he had sent a dispatch to Speaker Stanton. I do not know the contents of this message. It is possible it contained the information on which Stanton based the statements he made in his speech in the assembly yesterday. There is no truth in the story that I have been asked by the war department to hasten the organization of the militia for coast defense. That matter has been under consideration for some months. It is in the hands of the militia officers. Any steps in this direction were taken as a result of the Dick militia bill and are not due to the anti-Japanese movement."

BIG TIM'S ANNUAL FOOTWEAR HANDOUT

(United Press Leased Wire.) New York, Feb. 6.—The greatest collection of old shoes out at toes, down at heels and through the soles that New York ever saw appeared in the block bounded by Delancey, Irvington and Christie streets and the Bowery this afternoon on the feet of thousands of bowlegged men who were there to replace their worn pedal coverings at the expense of "Big" Tim Sullivan. Big Tim's yearly distribution of shoes and socks with a good dinner thrown in, was in progress at the Sullivan headquarters. The shoeless and sockless and dinnerless are many on the Bowery in these days. There were 5000 pairs of shoes, each pair in a box bearing the legend "Compliments of Timothy D. Sullivan."
