

ARCHITECTURAL CLUB'S SECOND EXHIBIT OPENS TOMORROW NIGHT

Lena Muzzio, Aged Seven Years, Found Dead in Barn Near Frisco.

(Hearst News by Longest Leased Wire.)
San Francisco, March 20.—Under circumstances of a remarkably mysterious character, little Lena Muzzio, the seven year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emilio Muzzio, who live in Cambridge street, near Van Ness, was found dead in a barn on a lonely hill about 200 yards from her home. The first indications were that she had fallen victim to a disease which had choked her to death by twisting a necktie about her neck, but the autopsy, which was held this morning, showed that the child was without foundation, and that if she had been the victim of foul play it was by poisoning. The opinion of the coroner is that she succumbed to bronchial pneumonia, but this could not be fully determined, and the stomach was found to contain a quantity of a substance which the city chemist Green for an analysis.

Suspect Arrested.
In the hours between the finding of the body and the holding of the autopsy, the police and detectives in a thorough investigation of the case and as a result of their efforts, Jacalmo Salvi, a gardener employed by the Muzzios, was taken to the Mission police station tonight and put through a vigorous "sweating." His explanation was satisfactory, however, and he was not placed in custody.

William Kunze, a scene painter, living at 418 Sargent street, who was found after the child was found, was also closely questioned, but his story, backed by evidence of other parties who accounted for his presence there, convinced the officers that he knew nothing concerning the manner of the child's death.

Accompanied by her three year old brother, Herbert, little Lena Muzzio left her home about 10 o'clock this morning. She was in the habit of roaming about the hills and so her mother did not worry about her until about 4 o'clock later, when the little boy, who cannot talk, came into the house alone. Mrs. Muzzio looked about for the girl, but could not find her, and after making a response to several calls, summoned Salvi from the garden and the two set out on a search for the missing child. Mrs. Muzzio went in one direction and Salvi in another.

Search for Child.
According to Salvi, he went over the hill between the Muzzio home and the Mission valley and in making a circuit back to a meeting place with Mrs. Muzzio, passed by the rear of the vacant house, Glanging about the place, he saw the child lying prone on the ground. She was still breathing, and he picked her up and carried her to the Muzzio home. Mrs. Muzzio, who was in the house at the time, saw the child and ran to her, and she picked her up and carried her to the Muzzio home. Mrs. Muzzio, who was in the house at the time, saw the child and ran to her, and she picked her up and carried her to the Muzzio home.

About the little girl's neck was twisted a blue necktie, so tightly wound as to leave a dark line about her throat. No one in the Muzzio family had ever seen this necktie before, and it was found that first gave rise to the theory of murder. The tie was of the "string" variety, with an intricate pattern of lattice work and forget-me-nots in each corner. It had not been tied, being merely wound about the neck, and the ends, which were fastened in such a way as to tighten it.

Within a few minutes after the girl was found, Mrs. Muzzio, who had been to the vacant house and found a man sitting on the steps. Her first impression was that this man had been with her child, and calling a neighbor, John Mitchell, who with his brother, Pat Mitchell, was within hailing distance, she asked them all to go to the house with her. The stranger gave his name as William Kunze, said that he had come to look at the house, and was unable to rent it, and that he had arrived only a minute or two before Mrs. Muzzio called. He said that the comment was borne out by the Mitchell, who had been hunting over the hills for a stray cow, and saw Kunze climb the hill. Kunze said that he had been a few minutes before they were attracted by the screams of Mrs. Muzzio.

Police Investigate.
Deputy County Clerk Reilly and Patrolman Tim Cronin, who were in charge of the body of the dead girl and made an investigation. In the basement of the vacant house a long string of knotted calico, which had evidently been used as the tail of a kite.

Mrs. Muzzio, after recovering from the first shock of her daughter's sudden death, gave her opinion that the child had died from a fall.

Dr. James Clarke, who performed the autopsy, said tonight that if there was a kidnaper, he was probably the one who disappeared when he examined the body. He found no signs of strangulation. The heart was in good shape, and he was convinced that death was due to bronchial pneumonia. There was a possibility, however, that the child had been killed by a snake, but he was unable to find the snake, and it was to settle this question that he sent the stomach to the city chemist.

LEPER CARRYING THIS SKIPPER'S SPECIALTY
New York, March 20.—Before clearing from the lower bay for New Bedford, Captain Louis Oliviera, proudly surveying his new command, the bark Charles C. Rice, announced himself as the only skipper on the coast who carries a leper carrying business. The Rice, an old vessel built at Yarmouth, Maine, in 1879, has a leper carrying business between New York and Australia.

For months the vessel has lain in a Brooklyn harbor, and it is now being used for the transportation of lepers, but incidentally if no such gruesome type of passengers offers the Rice will engage in the transportation of merchandise and immigrants.

EARTHQUAKE PROOF CONSTRUCTION IN SAN FRANCISCO.

The doors of the second annual exhibition of architecture and art will open to the public tomorrow night. Those who have seen the exhibit of the Portland Architectural club last year will not need to be told what this event is going to be, for the exhibition of last year was a perfect success. The exhibition will be held at the Art museum, and will feature a large collection of architectural drawings, and a number of the most famous architects and draughtsmen have sent their best work. There are from all parts of the United States and some foreign countries original drawings of the costliest residences, magnificent interiors, great monumental structures, churches, mural decorations and a magnificent display of photographs of America's famous buildings.

The most interesting also are the exhibits of the different architectural school competitions, the work in stained glass, mosaic, architectural ironwork and art metal work. The year book of the club will contain the most important of these productions. In engravings and will be valuable as a memento of this occasion as well as for its intrinsic artistic merit. Conforming to its fixed policy, the club will not sell this book at what it is worth as a publication, but any visitor may have a copy at the cost of production.

The amount of labor and expense that the club is providing in order to make this the greatest art exhibit ever held on the coast is very great and shows the fine spirit of civic pride that the members take in their city as an art center. The people who do not visit this exhibition will miss something highly interesting and instructive.

INGLORIOUS END OF ONE INDICTMENT OF OLD CASES AT LOS ANGELES

It is the Forecast That Indictments at Chicago Will Be Quashed.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Chicago, March 20.—When United States Attorney Sims and Special Assistant Attorney General Wilson return from Washington next week it is expected they will appear before Judge Landis and quash the indictments against the Standard Oil company of Indiana. With these bills, which contain more than 2000 counts of alleged violations of the anti-trust laws, will fall the whole widely advertised "campaign against malefactors of great wealth," at least in Chicago, where most of these activities have occurred. Attorneys for corporations are now open critics of the indictments in apparent disregard of the opinion of the corporation attorneys, activity in the alleged rebating of the packers has ceased.

OREGON AGGIES TAKE SIX WRESTLING BOUTS
(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Corvallis, Or., March 20.—Six out of seven in the first dual wrestling meet between the Oregon Agricultural college and Washington State college. The heart was in good shape, and he was convinced that death was due to bronchial pneumonia. DEATH CURVE CLAIMS TWO MORE VICTIMS
(Hearst News by Longest Leased Wire.)
San Francisco, March 20.—Hurtled from the tracks by a street car, a man in what is known as "Death Curve" in west Oakland, O. Kehl and were so severely injured today that it is believed they will die. "Death Curve" is noted in the history of the Southern Pacific as a track where many fatal accidents. Announcement has been made from time to time that changes were bound to be made, but nothing has been done.

LIBEL SUITS MAY BE TRANSFERRED
(United Press Leased Wire.)
Washington, March 20.—Although the department of justice gives no basis for the report that the libel suits against the New York Herald and the Washington Post are to be dropped, it believed the federal government will abandon this action in case the New York grand jury acquiesces in the suggestion of District Attorney Jerome, shall hand down indictments under the state law, but only justice intimate that there would be no necessity to prosecute a case under a questionable federal law, when it could be pushed in the regular way, under a state law.

KERMIT SNEAKS FROM A FAREWELL DINNER
(United Press Leased Wire.)
Boston, March 20.—Friends and classmates of Kermit Roosevelt, who had intended to give him a farewell at a big dinner in a Boston hotel here tonight, were surprised today when it became known that the son of the ex-president had quietly left Harvard, and the department of justice intimate that there would be no necessity to prosecute a case under a questionable federal law, when it could be pushed in the regular way, under a state law.

THINKS MCKENNA ORDINANCE UNWISE.
Portland, March 20.—To the Editor of The Journal.—I saw in your paper of recent date, that Mr. J. McKenna and his associates are preparing a bill to be voted on by the people of Portland, and the city election in June, wherein the power of the liquor business is to be taken from the city council and given to the mayor, and five of his friends appointed by him. They will undoubtedly, do his bidding. How could they do otherwise? Fine opportunity for McKenna to show his true colors as a honest mayor. Mr. McKenna and his assistants must have formed a very low estimate of the intelligence of the citizens of Portland, to think that they would vote for such a measure. A one man power! Such a bill might have been enacted by the people a thousand years ago, when one man ruled a nation, but surely not now. We are living in an age of reason, and the people are intelligent enough to submit to such ruling. It is pretty safe to say that Mr. McKenna will not find enough support to win his petition for this drastic measure to a vote.

FITCH RETURNS; MYSTERY ENDS

(United Press Leased Wire.)
New York, March 20.—Howard P. Fitch, secretary of the State Insurance company of Iowa, for whom American consuls and ministers of Europe conducted a search for months, returned today on the Cunard liner Pannonia, from Naples. He still leaves his disappearance a good bit of a mystery. "Will you tell why you didn't communicate with your relatives?" was asked. "That I will never tell," was the answer. "As I have said before I understand it is impossible for a man to disappear for some time without a lot of talk being created, if it has become public that a search has been made for him, but I still adhere to my determination to give nothing more than an account of my wanderings."

BONHAG SMASHES RUNNERS' RECORDS
(Hearst News by Longest Leased Wire.)
New York, March 20.—George Bonhag of the Irish American Athletic club, a sudden attack of acute rheumatism, tonight again proved himself to be the most sensational amateur runner in the world. He ran the mile in 2:15, the half mile in 1:10, and the quarter mile in 35 seconds. He was the only runner to break the seven mile record at the games of Fordham last night, and he was the only runner to break the seven mile record at the games of Fordham last night, and he was the only runner to break the seven mile record at the games of Fordham last night.

PADEREWSKI HAS SEVERE ATTACK OF RHEUMATISM
(United Press Leased Wire.)
Gloucester, Mass., March 20.—All Gloucester is confident that presidential elector Paderewski is recovering from the "Ramparts" Gloucester. News that Mrs. Taft has arrived in Gloucester by the sea to spend the winter with her friend, Miss Boardman, has deepened the conviction that the new president is to acquire the summer residence of the late Henry C. Boardman, a Texas railroad. G. P. Clark, the agent who has charge of the place, declares he expects Mrs. Taft on Monday to inspect the property. He has all the papers prepared and is confident that before Monday night the president's wife will have definitely chosen the spot for her summer home.

CREATING A BOB RAKES

Woodworkers and Carpenters Play Into Hands of the Enemy.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Chicago, March 20.—Pessimistic accounts of the labor outlook for April and May are coming to the Illinois and Chicago Federations of labor from local unions and organizations throughout this and other states. The solidarity of the workers is being broken when the amalgamated woodworkers tonight notified the trades council of the decision of the members not to consolidate with the carpenters.

The latter have a strong organization and invited the woodworkers to make common cause with them in a strike for a renewal of their expiring contracts. Heretofore, whenever either union asked for an increase, the well known hostility of the other organization has been a strong card in the hands of the employers. The unions recently had a jurisdictional fight, hastened by the cause of a number of contracts. The woodworkers have notified the trades council of their decision to make offers for much of the work now being done by the woodworkers and carpenters, desiring to organize all the woodworkers into one effective body, and to have the carpenters and woodworkers accept the latter in the woodworkers' body with recognition of the officers and the carpenters. The woodworkers declined both propositions. Their action practically assures the employers an effective weapon with which to defeat both unions.

Illinois miners have received warnings to "keep away from Michigan," because of the discovery of a blacked by the owners of iron mines. Officers of unions whose members man five big mines are said to have advised them to strike rather than to either side of the issue. The miners are said to be in a state of confusion, and the owners are said to be in a state of confusion, and the owners are said to be in a state of confusion.

MALE SLAVE TRADE IN OLD MEXICO
(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Washington, Idaho, March 20.—Declaring that American capitalists and President Diaz were working in conjunction in an effort to bring about a revolution in Central America in order that that territory might be seized and divided, giving Mexico the northern portion, J. L. Hughes of Seattle has asked the citizens of Wallace to contribute to the fund to be used to fight the extradition of the Mexican refugees held in the Los Angeles jail.

He also declared that the Mexican authorities are assisting capitalists to acquire the rights of the New York and Alaska for use in the mines at $50 a head, and that Diaz has ordered all the Mexicans to be shot down by the score because of the agitation for the betterment of the country.

He believes Diaz is responsible for the death of at least 3000 during his regime. Men have been shot in squads of 20 or more without their nearest neighbors knowing it.

Wallace, Idaho, March 20.—A solid block of snow, which was the favorite picture, he said, and he declared he had photographed it and presented it to Mrs. Wade Hampton. He was unable to say, however, whether he had authorized its publication or not.

"We are caught, not in a falsehood," he laughingly declared, "but in a forgetfulness."

Mr. Roosevelt later said he had heard his secretary, William Loeb, now collector of the inland revenue, had authorized the publication but he could give no testimony as to just what that publication consisted of.

TWO MEN EAT WILD PARSNIPS AND DIE
New York, March 20.—Eating wild parsnips caused the death of two young workmen whose bodies were found a few feet apart in the woods near the near Mariner's Harbor, S. I. The dead men are Paul Durum, and August Smith, both of the "Ramparts" Gloucester.

The two young men were at work near the wood. They went off together at noon to get lunch and were not seen again until their bodies were found. Early in the day the body of Durum was found. Coroner Cahill took up the case, and Dr. Mord, his physician, examined the body. It was at first thought that Durum had died of heart disease.

When, later in the day, the body of Smith was found near the place where Durum had died, Coroner Cahill started a thorough investigation. Dr. Mord, after examining the stomachs and intestines of the two young men, said that they had eaten wild parsnips in the wood.

CREATING A BOB RAKES

Bureau Chiefs Quietly Displaced; Others Quietly Taking Hint.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Washington, March 20.—The "original" Roosevelt men in the federal service are in distress these days. Their minds are filled with dismal forebodings and their voices are choked with emotion. As they view the situation of the two weeks of "shaking down" of the new government machinery justifies the fear that a few months may see very few of the Roosevelt lieutenants at the helm.

Assistant Secretary Wheeler of the department of commerce and labor, brought from California as a personal appointee, disappeared with unusual suddenness. Assistant Secretary Conroy of the treasury, another close friend of the former president, skipped out. Controller of the Currency Murray, an Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, is reported to be slated for retirement. The same is alleged of John C. Casper, South Carolina, commissioner of internal revenue, and United States Treasurer Trust. It is believed the heads of many bureaus will be displaced.

There is a widespread apprehension in some circles that the administration will be quiet in the matter of "shaking down" suits. Attorney General Wickham, however, said today that the government will not be quiet in the matter of "shaking down" suits. CAPE FLATTERY HAS LIFE SAVER
(Hearst News by Longest Leased Wire.)
San Francisco, March 20.—Equipped with every available device for saving lives and rescuing shipwrecked crews at sea, the government steamer Shoshonah arrived today and went to an anchorage off Sausalito. The steamer was built expressly for use in the rough seas about Cape Flattery and in the straits of San Juan de Fuca and will be permanently stationed at sea on missions of mercy.

The Shoshonah was born of the Valencian disaster in which more than 100 lives were lost when that steamer went to destruction on the rocks near Cape Beale, Vancouver Island, January 23, 1906, after having run past Cape Flattery in a thick fog. It was not long after the disaster that the lack of adequate lifesaving apparatus on the stormy northern coast was brought to the attention of the United States government, and the building of the Shoshonah was soon begun.

The vessel is the first constructed for use on an expedition to the coast of $200,000. She was built by the Pusey & Jones company at Wilmington, Del., and had her trial trips at Arundel bay, Maryland, last November.
