Vetoes Kavanaugh Ordinance Changing Place of Payment to N. Y.

Mayor Lane sees in the ordinance recently approved by the city attorney passed by the equncil to allow the payment of $650,000 worth of improvement bonds at maturity in New York, ment bonds at maturity in New York, instead of Portland, an unnecessary and dangerous departure from the original contract made between the city and the firms buying the securities.

The ordinance authorized the city auditor to indores on the bonds a statement that the "said bonds and interest coupons attached therto may be paid at maturity at the Chase National bank of New York City." provided the buyers should adequately indemnify the city against all loss or expense that might be incurred by changing the place of payment from Portland to New York.

The mayor's message to the council, which follows, explains fully why he has vetoed the measure:

Text of the Messags.

"To the Honorable City Council—Gentlemen: I return herewith ordinance No. 19.027 not approved. This is, an ordinance which authorizes the city auditor to indorse upon the $250,000 water bonds and $450,000 bridge bonds of the city of Portland, sold January 27, 1909, to O'Connor & Kahler and Farson. Son & Co. of New York City dated and issued January h. 1909, a statement that said bonds and the interest coupons attached thereto will be paid at maturity at the Chase National bank of New York City, provided that said O'Connor & Kahler and Farson, Son & Co. shall adequately indemnify the city of Portland against all loss or expense in any way incurred or resulting from the payment of said bonds and coupons at said Chase National bank in the city of New York, said a recement of indemnity to be approved by the mayor and city attorney of the city of Portland.

T can see no reason for the passage of this ordinance, Messrs, O'Connor & Kahler and Farson, Son & Co., so far as I can ascertain, have nowhere asked for such a change in the terms of the sale of these bonds, and I do not quite understand why the city should voluntarily agree to do a troublesome and apparently unnecessary, and what may become a very expensive thing.

GRAND OPERA SONG BIRD LIKES LIFE ON THE VAUDEVILLE STAGE

By G. I. W.

Sparkling and flashing like a typical dark-eyed daughter of France, Mile. Zelle de Lussan bounced into Portland yesterday to stay a week. One can't use a saaid dignified work like arrived in her case, because one feels instinctively that she must have danced or skipped in, even if it was the unearthly hour of 5 o'clock a. m.

But at neon she was up spark-skipped in, even if it was the uncarthly hour of 5 o'clock a. m.

But at noon she was up, sparkling and twinkling as usual, ready to feed the inner man—"for he must be taken care of, even if we are artistic," she said. "Now, if we could only go on warbling without any of the mainsay of life, how romantic it would be!" She confessed to being very much fatigued, though her eyes were as bright as ever as she told about the fearful lurches of the train on their downward trip last night. "Our train broke in two three times, once on the middle of a bridge. But fortunately the bridge didn't break in two. And when I felt a particularly insistent bump I knew I was being left behind."

But now to tell you who Madamoiselle de Lussan is, and the national family complications are as involved as the second - cousin - of - the - step - sister-of - my - third - cousin's - uncle's - wife's-brother puzzle. Her name is Madame Angelo Fronani, and she was born in southern France, where some Italian blood got into her veins. She married Signor Fronani, who is the son of an Italian father and a German mother, and he was born in Tunis, Algiers, and is an American citizen. His wife says that this makes him a mongrel, but he insists that the German balances the Italian and makes him a practical man. The madame has sung in opera for many years, appearing one season in the Metropolitan opera house of New York Just before going into vaude-ville this year she had finished in Lon-

"I do not think that the city has either the legal or moral right or can afford to do this even were it of advantage to its interests to do so. "This ordinance provides that the city shall be indemnified from all expense in making such payments in New York City, but it has no means of knowing whose bond of indemnity securing the city from such expense would be good and sufficient 30 years from now, which is the time such bond would have to run.

apparently unnecessary, and what may hecome a very expensive thing.

"The sale of these bonds was made upon the condition that the principal and interest was to be paid in this city, and if the city now enters into an agreement with this firm to pay the principal and interest in New York City it will have made a private and subsequent agreement on more favorable terms than it offered to others who openly bid upon the city.

Could accuse City.

The charter amendment making provision for the sale of those bonds provides that they shall be sold to the highest responsible bidder upon the terms of sale as they have been advertised, and if more favorable terms are deferred to one bidder than to another, or private agreements are afterward nade, the city could be instity accused of acting unfairly and question might also arise as to the legality of the sale, with consequent damage to the credit of the city.

This ordinance should not be passed.

And as Carmen she must be delightful for it is the Carmen face and manner she has.

she has.

"Carmen" numbers figure among her songs on the circuit and she usually gives a group of two or three operatic selections. "Then," she said, "If the people want me very bad I'll give them a group of English ballads and songs. I continue to give the people good things in music, for I will not sing to the gallery. I sing to the better class of people, and if the gallery people like it, too, I am glad, but if they don't they can go out, for the people without losing much. But I find the people like my songs and they like the best things I do. Of course there is a difference in audiences and sometimes we have to do something to warm them up. People are just like the weather, they have their days off. And it is a peculiar thing that we usually find Thursday is the day off, when people are gloomy and cold. Perhaps they are contemplating their fish on Friday and it makes them feel sad."

And thus she chatted breezily on merry and quickly responsive, and showed easily that she has the magnetic personality—the quality so necessary for stage success these days. She enjoys vaudeville, and says that while it is not so hard in one long stretch, yet it is more tiring for the short time, for she has to change so often—ten times a day she says, and lives to tell the tale. But it offers a variety of work and a variety of audiences and she enjoys it. And she has plenty to compare it with, seasons at Covent Garden, in Spain, Italy, France, Germany and America. She will certainly be a drawing card at the Orpheum this week for not many grand opera prima donnas forsake the opera for vaudeville. "Carmen" numbers figure among her given help to the 'sisters,'" said one of the disgruntled contributors yesterday, "but I hate to have been only half deceived. It makes one lose faith in human nature. If the 'sisters' are not sisters, why can't they take off the habit and carry on a sanatorium in a proper way. If they should advertise that they are two women who have given up their lives to the care of consumptives for whom there is no hope they would receive help from east and west. No institution is more needed than a hospital for the care of tubercular patients in the final stages.

"Even now should they make the statement that they will give over their conflict with the church, their efforts to deceive the people who have been helping them, I for one would be willing to add to the donations I have already made."

add to the donations I have already made."

This sentiment was concurred in by a number of people who have been helping in the work at the sanatorium. All were agreed that a hospital for the care of hopeiess consumptives was a encessary thing, that it could do a splendid work in Portland, and draw many sufferers from other places, but that to use misrepresentation to carry on the work was the worst kind of policy.

Particular indignation was aroused because two little girls and an il-year-old boy had been kept in proximity to the sufferers and that a mere girl should have been allowed to assist in the nursing. the nursing.

MOONSHINE STILLS AT SEATTLE FAIR

Tacoma, Wash, March 23.—One of the most unique exhibits to be seen at the Seattle exposition will be a "moonshine" outfit brought from the mountains in the eastern part of Kentucky, George M. Brown of this city, who lived many years in that section of Kentucky, will assemble the exhibit. He plans to secure a dozen or more home made stills that have been actually used by "shiners" and the most of which hear the marks of battles and of hard usage given them by secret service men.

To lend realism to the exhibit, Brown intends to have several typical mountain men who have accutally engaged in the business, who will be able to tell yarns of raids by "revenuers."

Last Spike Driven in Washington-25 Miles in Bitter Root to Track.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Seattle, Wash., March 23.—The last gap in the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound railroad between the portal of the St. Paul tunnel in the Bitter Root mountains and Puget sound has been closed. The track layers drove the last spike at a point several miles east of the Columbia river bridge yesterday. This gives the Milwaukee a through line from the coast to the St. Paul tunnel. Only 25 miles now remain to be built to close up the line between Chicago and the northwest. The last gap is in the Bitter Root valley. The last spike in the transcontinental line will be driven, officials say, on April 2, as originally planned.

Ballasting of the line is progressing rapidly and freight traffic will soon be going forward over the whole system. Seattle, Wash., March 23 .- The last
