

IN WHAT MANNER DID HEDBERG DIE?

Umatilla County Authorities Hold Investigation Over Decomposed Remains.

Ephraim V. Hedberg, en route from Cumberland, Wis., to Ashland, Or., accompanied by his daughter, stepped from the train at Umatilla on the night of August 10 last to get a cup of coffee. Nothing was heard of him until a few weeks ago, when a human head, corresponding in some respects to the aged farmer's description, was picked up at the base of Umatilla Butte, evidently having been the plaything of coyotes for many months. It was generally believed that Hedberg had been murdered. But this theory has been virtually disproven by the recent finding of Hedberg's coat, containing $1600 in drafts, his gold watch and other personal effects—the contents of the garment apparently intact.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Pendleton, Or., March 26.—With a view of determining if possible the manner through which E. V. Hedberg came to this death last August while passing through this section on an O. E. & N. passenger train, an inquest is being held today at Hermiston over the remains and personal effects recently discovered near Umatilla Butte. District Attorney Phelps and Coroner Nolsen went to Hermiston yesterday with a view of holding an inquest there, but the parties, John Rice and J. M. Scarborough, who claimed to have discovered the gruesome remains—consisting of a human leg gnawed by coyote teeth and valuable drafts—refused to give them up to the authorities or even to bring them into the coroner's court.

Being met by this strange situation the authorities returned to Pendleton to look up the law on the subject of compelling testimony. It was decided to issue subpoenas for the arrest of Rice and Scarborough. Late last night, however, these two men phoned to Pendleton saying they were willing to appear in court and give testimony. The alleged reason for their refusal to bring forth the articles found was that they wanted first to be sure that they were to get the reward that had been offered for the finding of the body of Hedberg.

Coroner's Jury Returns Verdict.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Pendleton, Or., March 26 (P. M.).—The coroner's jury at Hermiston this afternoon returned a verdict of death through starvation, thirst or exposure in the inquest over the remains of E. V. Hedberg. The chief evidence against the robbery theory was that two watches and a $1600 draft were found among the effects. Also a cent in money was found in the pants pocket. It being supposed that Hedberg had no change at the time of his death, or it had fallen out of his pocket. The coroner's jury went on the supposition that Hedberg had wandered from the station in a fit of dementia.

The discovery of the clothing and remains tells a terrible story. First was found the coat of the aged man, rolled up and placed under a snagbrush with a larger brush turned up and left as a marker. Next was found the vest. Neither the coat nor vest had anything valuable in them. Further on, in almost a direct line and in a wild portion of Umatilla Butte, the left part of the trousers containing the valuables and railroad ticket.

There are those who doubt the dementia theory, saying that Hedberg, who was 72 years of age, may merely have become confused at the station and lost his way, and died while entirely sane. Relatives will arrive today to take charge of the effects.

ANNOUNCE FIRST TERMINAL

United Railways Plans New City of Burlington.

"The first terminal on the United Railways will be the townsite which we have named Burlington," said a gentleman yesterday, who is in closest touch with the officials of this company. "Engineers have been busy for several months planning this townsite and its environment, making of it one of the most attractive towns for business purposes, and one of the most delightful places to live in the state of Oregon. Personally, I believe I can truthfully say that the hillside land along the United Railways at the town of Burlington commands the most magnificent scope of scenery in the world. The building spots are ideal. On the townsite proper are the most splendid conditions adapted for building a large profitable industrial center, while the extensive stretch of level land along the deep water of the Willamette Slough, offers unusual inducements for factory, warehouse and railroad terminal sites in the Northwest." The property above referred to, it is said, is soon to be offered for sale by a local company whose principal arguments in its behalf will be the rapid electric transportation from the Chamber of Commerce building with no bridges to cross and exceptionally well located building lots in the vicinity of Burlington.

Upon the opening of the United Railways, which, it is understood, will be about the first of April, there promises to be a strong general movement to the west side of the Willamette River north of Portland, which up to this time, has been inaccessible on account of the lack of adequate suburban service. At the present time a great many people are visiting the townsite of Burlington via the Northern Pacific, which, it is rumored, will discontinue its depot at Holbrook and erect another at Burlington, one mile nearer Portland. Northern Pacific trains are now stopping at Burlington to accommodate the large number of people who are visiting the property every day.

NEW PEDDLERS' ACT UNDER CONSIDERATION

(By Journal Leased Salem Wire.) Salem, Or., March 26.—There seems to be considerable doubt in the minds of many attorneys who have looked into the provisions of the new peddlers' license act regarding its validity. The grounds for the uncertainty are based on the contention that the new enactment is a drastic prohibitive instead of regulative and unreasonable.
