Mrs. Julia Kuttner Earle Says Scales Have Fallen From Her Eyes and She Recognizes Husband as Mad Man.

(Heart News by Longest Leased Wire.)
New York, March 27.—"I wedded in a huff, while in a psychologic mase, but now the scales have fallen from my eyes and I recognize in my husband a madman."
This remarkable statement to her counsel and intimate friends was made today by Mrs. Julia Kuttner Earle, the "affairly" bride of Ferdinand Pinney Earle, the artist and dilettante, whom she is suing for annulment of their marriage on the ground that he is both a bigamist and a lunatic.
Coincident with Mrs. Earle's statement, it became known definitely today that Hughes & Holden of White Plains, her attorneys, would shortly apply for a commission to examine her on the mental condition of Earle, with a view of establishing the fact alleged by her, that he is at present of unsound mind.
Should the action to secure an annulment fail on the contention that Earle is a lunatic, counsel for Mrs. Earle, it is said, will then demand Earle's arrest on a charge of bigamy, in that he contracted marriage with his second wife when he was not legally divorced from Mrs. Earle No. 1.
Mrs. Earle No. 2 is in seclusion with her 4-month-old baby and only made her statement in the belief that she would not be harassed by those wishing to gain an expression of her views. Her statement can therefore be taken as final, preliminary to the testimony that she will give in court.
If She Had Only Known.
"I am weary of all the distressing notoriety attached to my marriage to Mr. Earle," she said, "and I wish it might all be forgotten. Had I ever dreamed of what the future held in store for me I would have halted on the brink of the terrible experience which I have undergone.
"No one but myself will ever know of the nights of terror I experienced at our home near Munroe. It was hard, bitter hard, to find that the ideals I was shattered; that the future held no hope but freedom; that love was dead.
"You know how I have shunned publicity and denied notoriety as a most deadly thing, but the very force of what has been said exists no longer moved me to take action in the courts to free me from a man to whom, as it developed, I was not legally married because of a defect in his divorce under the French laws.
"But that technically was not the primal factor in my determined purpose to secure freedom. The knowledge that I harbored a love in my heart for a madman, was the determining factor that impelled me to secure an annulment of my marriage.
"I have taken this step not without hesitation and deep thought over the future of my child, but it is in the best interests of my child that I ask an annulment.
"Personally, I ask nothing at the hands of Ferdinand Pinney Earle. Since I made the awful discovery, on last January 12, that my husband was beyond all peradventure a lunatic, I at once ceased to live with him and left our home in the Orange mountains for New York. There I lived quietly with my child.
How Knowledge Came.
"I realize now only too well that my marriage was a mistake from the beginning.
"The first realization of his state of mind occurred on the night of August 16 last, when my husband grabbed me by the throat and choked me until I was almost unconscious. He then struck me on the face and neck several times until I was a mass of bruises.
"In the days that followed, when he was incarcerated in Goshen jail, I was determined that I could no longer stand his treatment of me. But he wrote me and openly declared his love for me and, woman-like, I relented and we returned to our home.
"But from the return of Mr. Earle to Semmering until I escaped with my child on January 13, I never knew a moment's cessation of the fear that

UNION SWAY TO CEASE AT BUTTE

Big Organizations Pass Resolutions Condemning Existing Conditions.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Butte, Mont., March 27.—Action which has caused a sensation in labor circles of this city and which is the first blow at numerous small unions which have held despotic sway in Butte for years, was taken today by the Miners, Millers and Smelters and Engineers Unions, 12,000 strong, when, in scorching resolutions, they branded smaller unions as aristocratic trusts, the member entering no conspiracies with the employers to boost prices to a degree which, the resolutions state, has become alarmingly high.
Unionism has reached a stage in Butte probably attained in no other city in the United States, the rules are practically prohibitory to outsiders working in the city. These conditions, the miners say, must stop, and union rules must not govern in connection with the education of children of the city.
According to the rules of the Bricklayers' union, it is said that no member can lay bricks with two hands and plumbers must walk from the shop to work when their time is being paid by the householder. The initiation fee into the Chimney Sweepers' union is $15 and high school musicians can't appear in public until they join the union.
The organization extends down to the newsboys, reporters and saloon swappers.

FISH WARDEN SAYS LAW STANDS

Clackamas and Willamette Rivers Will Not Remain Open From May 15 to the End of the Closed Season.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Astoria, March 27.—A message was received in this city tonight from H. C. McAllister, master fish warden, denying the report that the Clackamas and Willamette rivers would be open to the fishermen from May 15 to the end of the closed season. Mr. McAllister states that the board never made an order permitting an open season in these streams, but that the special order closing them, in conformity with the closed season on the Columbia river, still stands.
Somewhat over a week ago, following a meeting of the fish board at Salem, when delegations were received from Portland and Oregon City, dispatches were sent out from Salem stating that the board had rescinded its first order at the request of the delegations and had provided for the open season on the Willamette and Clackamas as a result. Thousands of protests have poured into the fish board from the lower end of the Columbia.
The message from McAllister tonight states that there will be no open season on the upper rivers, but that all rivers will be protected alike. At a recent session of the legislature a bill was passed providing for a closed season on the Columbia, but by an oversight, or otherwise, the Willamette and Clackamas rivers were not included. The board then exercised its power and announced closed season for those rivers also, and this stands.
Tonight's message from McAllister will prevent much trouble, as the fishermen here were preparing to make a bitter fight.

TRAINING FOR EMMANUELISM

Episcopal Bishops in California Tolerate No Efforts of Novices.

(Heart News by Longest Leased Wire.)
Santa Rosa, Cal., March 27.—"No clergyman or layman will be officially commended as qualified to practice the Emmanuel healing movement in the California diocese who has not first obtained the training and diploma available at St. Luke's hospital in San Francisco."
Such is the announcement made in the latest issue of the official organ of the Right Reverend Bishop William Hall Moreland, D. D., who is in charge of this Episcopal district. The announcement continues:
"It has been mutually agreed between the three bishops in California that premature attempt among the clergy to practice the Emmanuel healing movement should be discouraged. The value of this movement to souls, and therefore to the church, is too great to be placed in jeopardy by hasty, ill digested efforts."

KING SPONSOR FOR WARD BABY

While Whitelaw Reid Will Burn American Money at the Christening.

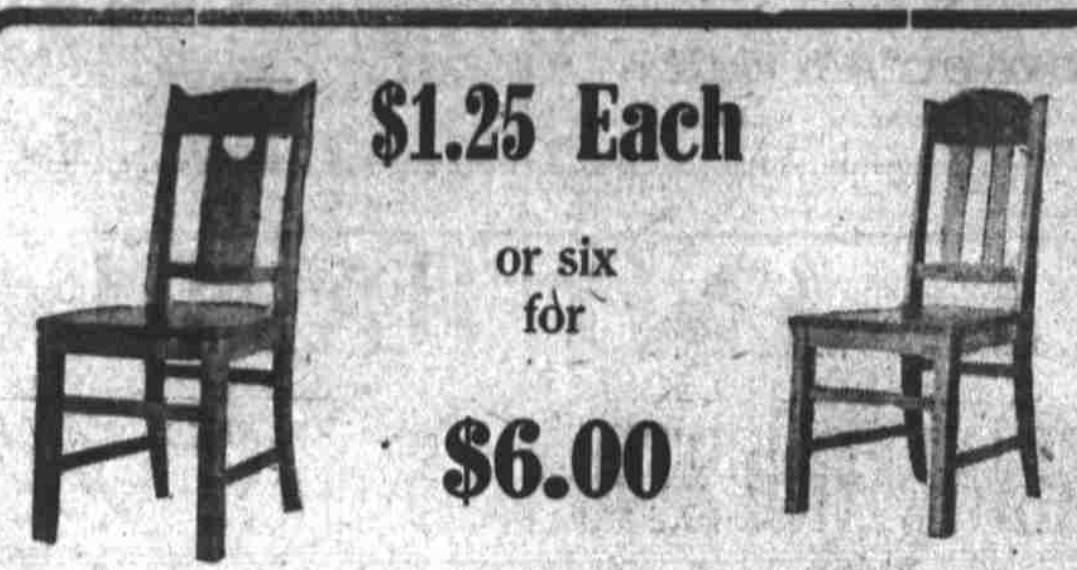

(United Press Leased Wire.)
London, March 27.—Ambassador Whitelaw Reid's grandson, the baby born this week to Mrs. John Ward, the ambassador's daughter, is to have a christening the equal of any given a royal heir. The festivities are to be one of the events of the London season. Knowing that this will in all probability be his last summer in London as ambassador, Mr. Reid is determined to outdo all his previous efforts in the way of entertainment, and the christening will be used as an excuse for launching out on a bigger scale than ever before.
The Ward baby's nursery is said to be the most complete in London. The royal matrons of the court have personally inspected the youngster's quarters and pronounced them perfect.
Paris have been ransacked for effects just a little bit better than any baby ever had before. A corps of the best nurses is in attendance in the nursery day and night.
King Edward, who has always been favorably disposed to the Wards, John Ward having been one of his equerries for years, has already intimated that he hopes to be present as a sponsor at the christening and the Prince and Princess of Wales have sent messages to the family to the same effect.

MULES TRAMP DOWN FIELDS; FARMERS KICK

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Vancouver, Wash., March 27.—It is admitted by army officers at the local post that it has been recommended that the Fourth field artillery, comprising 800 men and 400 mules and pack horses, be removed to Fort Russell, Wyo. No official orders have yet been received, but such are expected. People living in the country have filed objections, alleging that the mules trample their crops, flower gardens and lawns. The heavy guns also, when training on the country roads, injure the highways. The men take the mules out for exercise and they break through fences and get into fields, and before they can be driven out they do much damage.

some tragedy might happen. On one occasion, I recall, he became angered at a newspaper man whom he had admitted to the house, and he set upon him with his French servant, two of the foreign servants and four of the Great Danes. It was terrified lest the man be badly hurt, but he managed to fight his way out.
The night of January 13, however, he proved conclusively to my mind that he was a madman. He went raging through our house with his baying Great Danes at his heels and I was completely terrorized. That was the final straw, and I then and there made up my mind to have done with Ferdinand Pinney Earle.

POMEROY SALOONS PREPARE TO QUIT

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Pomeroy, Wash., March 27.—Pomeroy will be "dry" after April 1, and five drink emporiums will be out of business. At a special election held last month the people of the town decided that the presence of the saloon was no longer desired, and the vote showed a small majority for the abolition of the liquor traffic. The five saloons are preparing to discontinue business next week, and for the present at least there will be no intoxicating liquors sold in the usual way.
Already plans are being laid for the re-submission of the liquor problem to the people, and in the regular city election to be held in July it is expected that the people will be given another opportunity to vote upon whether or not they desire to have the saloons or any number of them reopened. The saloon problem has been an active element in city politics for many years, and it is now in a fair way of settlement. If the people again vote against the presence of saloons there is but little doubt but that the saloon men will take the decision as showing the will of the people and the town will be allowed to rest "dry" in peace.

Saloons have been allowed in Pomeroy from the earliest days of its organization.

ROSS CASE IS TO BE ARGUED IN MAY

Wallace McCamant, attorney for J. Thorburne Ross, late president of the Title Guarantee & Trust company, has until April 15 in which to file the defendant's reply brief in the supreme court, after which the case will be argued before that tribunal, probably some time in May, soon after the return of the supreme court from Pendleton.
Mr. McCamant filed his first brief in the supreme court September 30 last. Special Prosecutor Martin L. Pipes for the state was unable to file his brief until March 7, having been granted several extensions of time by the court because of conflicting dates on his calendar. This threw the reply brief back until April 15. As soon as it is filed the case will probably be acted upon at once. In criminal cases in which an appeal is taken the court seldom delays action, and there is a strong probability of the arguments being heard early in May.

In the lower court Ross was found guilty of misusing the funds of the Title Guarantee & Trust company, and was sentenced to five years' imprisonment, and to pay twice the amount alleged to have been misused by him— or twice $480,000. An appeal was taken upon errors alleged to have been made by the trial judge.

It is needless to remind you that in crowding a season's business into a few weeks, consideration of profits must be abandoned
