SOME MYSTERIOUS INFLUENCE FURNISHES SINews OF WAR FOR CONSTABLES AND PRIVATE DETECTIVES — Twenty-one GAMBLERS IN COUNTY JAIL.

Speculation is rife today as to what individual organization is instigating and backing financially the raids which constables and private detectives are making upon gambling games. Constable man Willis, who declares gambling is wide open in Portland, by some is given credit for having brought about the raids of last night. Under the direction of Constable Lou Wagner, six private detectives and three constables were stationed at five houses where gambling games are alleged to have been conducted. The detectives were aided by some one whose identity is being kept secret. Constable man Willis, who declares gambling is wide open in Portland, by some is given credit for having brought about the raids of last night...

FAVORITE NOW RUSHLIGHT

Present Councilman Likely to Head Anti-Simon Forces. No new candidate for mayor has yet come into view above the political horizon to gladden the hearts of the anti-Simon forces. H. H. Albee, who was mentioned as a possible candidate, has withdrawn his name from the convention. The all-Simon people are not disappointed. They expected that the first of the week will see a definite plan of battle outlined and the work commenced. At the present time there seems to be an inclination to combine in the support of the anti-Simon forces, Bailey, and it is probable that Rushlight will be selected to lead the attack against the Simon candidacy. Bailey, who has aligned himself with the pro-primary law forces and against the old machine element, is ready to step aside if it would be to the interests of harmony and united effort. Rushlight, however, does not seem to have an inclination to get out of the race under any circumstances. What the final result will be can not now be foretold, but the indications seem to point to a contest between Bailey, Rushlight, and the commencement of a fast and furious campaign against the nomination of Bailey for mayor. One thing is sure, and that is that the definite lineup of the candidates will have been finally determined upon by the middle of the week, and the campaign will be fully under way. In the meantime the Simon forces are busy with their work of organization and are perfecting their defenses for the battle, for they realize that their battle will be largely on the defensive until after the vote is counted at the close of the balloting on the day of the primaries.

UPPER KLAMATH SETTLETS ARE JUBILANT OVER ORDER JUST RECEIVED.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Klamath Falls, Or., April 17.—Engineer Patch, in charge of the Klamath Falls irrigation project, has received instructions from the reclamation service to begin work on the construction of the Clear lake dam, and a small crew has been sent to the upper project to make preparations. Bids have been advertised for and it is expected that the contracts will be awarded within a week for dump cars, rails, machinery and other equipment. The machinery market is such as to permit of immediate delivery construction work will be started at once. The dam and reservoir, while it is the important part of what is known as the upper project, is also closely connected with the lower project in that the dam is built across the head of Lost river, which flows into Tule lake. As it is the intention of the government to drain and reclaim Tule lake it will be necessary to divert the waters of Lost river, and this dam will shut off a large amount of its supply. Announcement Creates Joy. The announcement of the beginning of work on the Clear lake dam is the best possible news to the people of the upper Klamath country, and has been cause of great rejoicing among the land owners. Preliminary work was begun last year, but was held up by the winter. Constable man Willis, who declares gambling is wide open in Portland, by some is given credit for having brought about the raids of last night. Under the direction of Constable Lou Wagner, six private detectives and three constables were stationed at five houses where gambling games are alleged to have been conducted.
