

RIVER'S IDENTITY OPEN CAMPAIGN IS IN DISPUTE MEET FRIDAY

Willamette Really the Columbia Indirectly Alleged in the Injunction Case.

In Portland on the Columbia river? Are the geographers and map makers who have marked it on the Willamette wrong? This is one of the questions presented for consideration by Presiding Judge Vinton in the injunction case, in which an effort is being made by the Portland Fish company to restrain Governor Benson and Master Fish Warden McAllister from sealing fish and fishing paraphernalia during the closed season that the state fish commission has proclaimed from April 15 to May 15 on the streams generally known as the Willamette and Clackamas.

In his argument on the matter yesterday Attorney General Crawford indicated that there is some doubt in his mind. He would not concede that the Willamette is not a part of the Columbia, and left the court to decide whether or not the legislature, when it passed the fish bill establishing the closed season on the Columbia did not thereby include the Willamette. But to make the thing sure, the state fish commission issued notices closing the Willamette and Clackamas "to conform to the closed season on the Columbia." John P. Logan, who appeared for the fish men, argued that this is an admission that the act of the legislature, which applied only to the Columbia, does not include the Willamette in its prohibitions. Logan warned the court that far-reaching consequences might result if it is decided that Portland is on the Columbia. The law reads, "waters and sloughs of the Columbia," and the attorney for the fish men declared it would be disastrous to hold that the beautiful Willamette comes under such a description. The attorney general also raised the question of the right of equity to enjoin the enforcement of a criminal law or of a rule made by the fish commission under direction of law. Logan contended that this was disposed of in his favor in the Sunday closing case, last fall, in which the decision was rendered by Judge Gantenbein, the court then deciding that equity might interfere if the destruction of property were threatened. Another contention of Attorney General Crawford was that the suit is in effect against the state of Oregon, and therefore cannot be maintained. Judge Gantenbein took under advisement the state's demurrer to the fish men's complaint.

CALL ISSUED FOR MEETING OF REGENTS

(By Journal Licensed Salem Wire.) Salem, Or., April 22.—A call has been issued for a meeting of the state board of normal regents to take place at Salem, Saturday, May 8. This meeting will be held in lieu of the annual meeting usually held about June 30. The policy of the board for the ensuing year will be outlined and it will be decided whether the board will go before the people at the next general election with a resolution of the normal school difficulty. There are no funds for traveling expenses and members of the board must pay their own expenses to the meeting. Authorities at Weston forwarded $500 to Secretary Starr of the board today for defraying expenses of maintenance at that institution until the end of the present semester.

Washing Windows.

Before windows are washed, remove the dust both outside and in with a dry soft cloth, clean the corners and grooves with a skewer, covered with a cloth. Have ready a pail of warm suds made by dissolving a tablespoonful of Gold Dust washing powder in warm water. Dip a soft cloth in the water, squeeze almost dry and wipe the glass off. Polish with kerosene as it leaves no lint and does the work with more ease. Do not wash windows when the sun is shining on them. Wash mirrors in the same way as windows. Then polish with a soft cloth charged with powdered whiting. Finish with an old silk handkerchief.

BRICK CONCERN STILL FIGHTING

The street committee of the executive board yesterday made the final award of the big north end paving improvement to the Montague-O'Reilly company.

The street committee of the executive board yesterday made the final award of the big north end paving improvement to the Montague-O'Reilly company. W. M. Davis, the lawyer, who represented the Denny-Renton Coal & Clay company of Seattle, an unsuccessful aspirant for the contract, declared that he would oppose the stone block people in the courts and that he would tie up the contract as long as he could. Improvement proceedings for Belgian blocks were ordered by the council after the brick interests had lost the fight. Davis interposed a technical objection to the awarding of the work to his rivals on the ground that at the time their bid was made they were not incorporated. Deputy City Attorney Grant held that the contract could be let if the identity of the incorporators could be established. Accordingly the committee recommended to the executive board that the work be turned over to the Montague-O'Reilly company. The committee will hold a special session tomorrow afternoon to consider the
