The poll of parliament upon the resignation of the cabinet showed almost unanimous sentiment that the deposition of Sultan Abdul Hamild was necessary. The poll indicates that Abdul's reign has come to its certain end.

The sultan is a prisoner in his palace, which is surrounded by a cordon of constitutionalist troops. His harem, sons and necessary servants have been allowed to remain within the palace but he is not allowed to confer with any of his former ministers. European officials are the only persons allowed entrance to the palace.

Four thousand reactionaries, including hundreds of members of religious orders, have been placed under guard as military prisoners by the invaders.

Portland Flouring Mills Company Asks Bids on $125,000 Structure.

Plans have been drawn and bids submitted for a steel and concrete grain elevator with a capacity of 125,000 bushels to be erected by the Portland Flouring Mill company adjoining the present atorage elevators at the company's milling plant. The structure will be completed by September 1, in time for this year's wheat crop, and will nearly double the present grain storage capacity of the Portland mills.

The estimated cost of the elevator is from $25,000 to $30,000.

If present plans mature, Portland will within the next 12 months become a grain elevator center. The wheat growers of the inland empire, which met in convention some weeks ago in Spokane, to discuss more economical handling of grain, are planning to build a huge elevator in this city.

Fred Mueller and associates have every assurance of eastern financial aid in crecting a modern elevator on a site recently secured near the Portland from a trip east, where arrangements were completed to finance the building of the plant.

I am hopeful that the meeting of Oregon depends upon action that may and can be taken now. During the past week correspondence has been carried on between the presidents of the state university, McMinnvill college, Willamette university, Pacific university, Dallas college, Albany college and Pacific college with a view to determine a date for meeting together to arrange a plan of procedure, Every small school in Oregon is strugged in under an almost crushing burden of debt. None of these institutions is well endowed; some of them have no endowment at all.

It is understood that the plan of consolidating several of the denominational schools will be breached, but this plan has not received much favor up to the present. Most of the denominational schools are interested in keeping the creeds which they teach distinct from the rest and the statement has been made that only the prospect of closing their doors unless help shall come will induce them to consider federation, while on the other hand, all argue that if help comes now all may be enabled to grow to size and strength and number which will be demanded by the greater development of Oregon.

Dillard, representing Harriman, argued before the interstate commerce commission torepresenting Harriman, argued before the interstate commerce commission to-day the petition of that system to be exempted from application of the order in the Spokane rate case, setting forth, in elaborating what was contended in the petition, that the distance from Chicago to Spokane via the Union Pacific is 400 miles greater than from Chicago to Spokane via the northern lines, and that the commission gave Spokane its reductions on the ground that Spokane is at a less distance than Seattle, Tacoma and Portland, and hence virtually placed traffic on the distance basis, which gives Harriman the right of exemption.

The commission took the plea under advisement.

Dillard said, privately:

"The Union Pacific doesn't know yet what it wants to do in the matter, but it doesn't want to be forced to put into effect the rates ordered by the Spokane decision."

He ciaimed that the fact that the Union Pacific would continue to haul to coast points despite its present claim as to Spokane, was due to the water competition basis, which was upheld by the commission in the Spokane decision.

James Cole is now watching the check being made on the excise board petition, being employed by the Municipal association. One peculiar feature of the situation is that of F. I. McKenna. father of the excise petition, seems to be taking no interest in the work, having apparently abandoned it to its fate. He explains by saying that the Municipal association is now in charge, but D. A. Patuli and Attorney Cole both say that the McKenna people are not paying the attention to the tangle they should.

Attack on Circulators. Attack on Circulators.

Opponents of the petition are making capital out of the personnel of the men who circulated the excise board petition. They refer to Mr. McKenna's statement that all of his solicitors were well known and reputable citizens and then point out that a large proportion of them were men residing in North Endlodging houses, who apparently answered advertisements for Solicitors. Among these are Mark Bartlett, Harry D. Ross, J. S. Robier, H. L. Lipscomb, Fred W. Cowan, Allen G. Ross and F. J. Williams, all of whom turned in lists of names which are now being pronounced to be forgeries.

The Gothenberg people say they bired Cowan who brought in a list of names which were pronounced forgeries and thrown out before the petition was submitted to the city auditor. In this list was the name of J. J. Sinnot, a cousin of Roger B. Sinnot, who has been dead for several years. Cowan was one of the McKenna solicitors whose work has been pronounced to be spurious.

It is practically certain that the courts will be called upon to settle the quarrel, which ever way the check goes. In case the petition is thrown out after the auditor has checked it both by the registration books and by the card index in the county clerk's office it is probable the Municipal association will mandamus the auditor in an effort to put the petition on the ballot. In this case the opposition says it has two or more solicitors who will appear in court and testify that the petition handled by them did not have the full text of the measure attached, but simply a typewritten summary, which, it is contended, is Contrary to the law and will in itself invalidate the petition.

Exposure to Disease Germs

Is greater than at any other season, because the blood, having been vitiated, impoverished and devitalized during the winter, mostly by unhealthful modes of living, has less power to defend the body.

Loss of appetite, pimples and other eruptions, bad complexion, languor and lassitude, mental and physical weariness, so common at this time of year, are all indications that the blood is wanting in the power to defend the body, because they are all indications that it needs cleansing, enriching and vitalizing.

The medicine to take is Hood's Sarsaparilla, according to the experience and testimony of thousands of people every spring.

Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the blood of the right quality and quantity,-normal in red and white corpuscles and all other constituents.

It cures all humors, catarrh and rheumatism, relieves that tired feeling, restores the appetite, cures paleness, weakness, nervousness, and builds up the whole system.

It will make you feel better, look better, eat and sleep better, and give you the best protection possible against all infectious and contagious diseases.

"I am glad that such a medicine as Hood's Sarsaparilla can be had, and I write this letter to thank you for it. My experience may help someone else by telling them where a good medicine for them may be found, and so I will say, I doubt if I should be alive now if I had not taken Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was troubled for a long time with spells of great pain in my stomach. At first they were quite long times apart, but later came more and more frequently and more severe, until I dared not eat food that I wanted and could hardly keep anything on my stomach. I took a course of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and am glad to say I am completely cured of all that trouble. Last spring I used the medicine again as I was not feeling very well, and had rheumatism quite badly. I was also tired and weak all the time. When I had taken two bottles I felt all right again. It is truly a splendid stomach tonic and spring medicine." Mrs. Ed. Champlin, Coton, N. Y., Jan. 9, 1909.

Hood's Sarsaparilla effects its wonderful cures, not simply because it contains sarsaparilla, but because it combines the utmost remedial values of more than 20 different ingredients, each greatly strengthened and enriched by this peculiar combination. These ingredients are the very remedies that successful physicians prescribe for the same diseases and ailments. There is no real substitute for Hood's Sarsaparilla. If urged to buy any preparation said to be "just as good," you may be sure it is inferior, costs less to and yields the dealer a larger profit.

Made-over Piano now on exhibition in Eilers window. To demonstrate to owners of old and much worn pianos the wonderful resources of our piano rebuilding and repairing department, we have rebuilt one-half of a Decker Bros. piano of uncertain age—certainly not less than 20 years. The case of this instrument was in a particularly unsightly condition before our rebuilding force took it in hand. We instructed our foreman to completely rebuild and refinish the interior and exterior of exactly one-half of this instrument, leaving the other half in the condition in which we had secived it. We were entirely confident that our instructions would be followed out to the letter, but must admit that we were somewhat surprised at the contrast between the old and the new when the work was completed.

One-half of the entire instrument has been transformed into what is apparently a new piano—case, keys, hammers, pedal, music stand and all—and the result must be seen to be appreciated. Surely there is no reason now why you should be content with an old piano.
