Seventeen-Year-Old John Mills and Youthful Companion Believed to Have Committed Recent Series of Bold Holdups.

As a sequel to the capture of John Mills, 17 years old, last night, after he and a companion attempted to hold up Frank Peterson, a contractor, Tony Padric, 23 years of age, was arrested today by the police.

Though Mills, after his capture refused to divulge the identity of his companion in crime, even though contemplated participation in the attempted holdup of the authorities but that they are the two against whom a series of holdups continuing over a period of more than a week, can be charged.

Mills today confessed to acquaintance with the latter, and there is little doubt in the minds of the authorities but that they are the two against whom a series of holdups continuing over a period of more than a week, can be charged.

Hold Up Peterson. Frank Peterson, a contractor, living at 426 Sixth street, wondered all his life what he should do if he were ever held up by thugs.

In telling of the holdup, Mr. Peterson stated that he had been returning home about 10 o'clock when he was met by two young men, one of whom caught him by the arm, the other pressing a revolver against his stomach.

OPINION PREVAILS THAT DANGER OF SERIOUS FLOOD HAS PASSED.

Vice Admiral Sakamoto Tells His People That Peace Is Secure.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Tokio, May 8.—That the Washington government is observing the basic principles of international intercourse in formulating the restriction of Asiatic immigration and is attempting to solve this menacing question along scientific sociological lines, is the official report made by Vice Admiral Sakamoto, who has just returned from an extended tour of the United States as a special envoy of the emperor to study the causes and extent of anti-Japanese sentiment.

Through the official press, the report of Admiral Sakamoto is made public, and no announcement since the publication of the Root-Takahira agreement has caused so many expressions of gratification in official and business circles.

In his report, which is voluminous, Admiral Sakamoto urges that the most friendly relations be established with America, and pays a glowing tribute to the American navy.

In referring to ex-President Roosevelt, he attributed to him all the enlightening qualities of the Samurai and proclaims him one of the world's greatest and truest leaders.

The report of Admiral Sakamoto has been anxiously awaited for several months, and the optimistic tone which marks its every sentence has created a profound impression.

With fair and warmer weather tonight and only a bare possibility of showers for tomorrow, there seems very little need of apprehension of a rise in either the Columbia or Willamette rivers in the immediate future.

Had Monday night's high stage the snow near the headwaters of the Snake river, which accordingly rose more than a foot Monday night, it would have been a serious matter.

In the opinion of most rivermen there are very slight prospects of the level reaching any dangerous stage this season. Had the snow started melting earlier, there might have been chance for an unusually warm wave or a day or two causing a serious freshet.

It is generally felt that all danger of a really big flood has passed. With the warm weather now predicted for tomorrow, it is not expected that the thermometer will go as high as it did last Sunday.
