

TOBACCO TRUST MADE OF PIRATES

Senator Paynter Gives Account of Its Piracy in Kentucky.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Washington, May 12.—Senator Thomas H. Paynter today made an appeal for the 1,500,000 people who depend upon tobacco growing for a livelihood and who, he asserted, are now at the mercy of the tobacco trust.

The tobacco combination is a commercial pirate, declared the Kentucky senator, asserting that this statement could be proven by the known facts. Paynter told of the condition of the growers in the dark and light tobacco regions of Kentucky and Tennessee and described the events that led up to the "night riding" terrors.

The growers say that the trust divided the districts into sections, placing a buyer in each section. The market was controlled and each grower was told that he would have to sell to the buyer in his particular section. The grower explained that the market was flooded and that there was tremendous over-production, so that the trust could not afford to pay what the growers considered a "living price." The result was that the growers became miserably poor in many sections and were unable to obtain enough for their crops to pay the bare cost of their extremely simple existence.

Responsible for Nightriders.

This condition led to the formation of the Growers' Protective association, by which the tobacco was held in pools and money borrowed on it to pay the living expenses of the growers until the price went up. The growers who were "bought over" by the trust and refused to enter the pools were subjected to night rider attacks. Their warehouses were blown up with dynamite or burned, and in many instances bodily punishment was inflicted.

By holding the tobacco in the pools it was shown there had been no over-production, as the price immediately went up, but the fight of the growers was hard and they underwent great hardships. Paynter contended that even yet they were at the mercy of the "tobacco pirates" and that the government could not afford to disregard the appeal of these 1,500,000 people for aid and relief. He urged that the growers be given the privilege to sell their product in the natural best to the dealer, who, in turn, would be granted the right to sell it to the consumers without the payment of tax.

If this condition existed, the Kentucky senator said, it would be impossible for the trust to control the markets and prices and the tobacco growers would have the same opportunities now afforded the growers of grain or other farm or plantation products.

Death Roll of the Northwest

W. C. ("Uncle Billy") Brown.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Dallas, Or., May 12.—W. C. Brown, 54 years old, an Oregon pioneer of 1842, better known to his many friends as "Uncle Billy," died at his home in this city Monday morning. Mr. Brown had been in failing health for some time, and his death was not unexpected.

He was born in Hamilton county, Ohio, November 20, 1821, and crossed the plains to Oregon in 1842. He was united in marriage to Martha J. Townsend, August 2, 1848. To this union were born six children, four of whom survive. Mrs. Brown died November 18, 1899, a short time after they had celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. Shortly after coming to Oregon in 1847 Mr. Brown engaged in the mercantile business, in partnership with Benjamin J. V. Nesmith at Dallas, and was continuously engaged in that business for 49 years.

Mr. Brown had acquired much property in Dallas and vicinity, and was classed as one of the largest taxpayers in Polk county. The deceased first came into prominence by his feat of scattering tickets to the school children of Polk county, and since by his annual drives to the Dallas widows. "Uncle Billy" was generous and kind hearted, and always the first to offer financial aid to any local enterprise.

The following children survive: John C. Brown, Joseph L. Brown, Henry M. Brown and Ann Kersey, all of Dallas. He also survived by 11 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Louis Miller.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Albany, Or., May 12.—Louis Miller, 75 years, one of Albany's well known residents, died at his home in this city yesterday morning. He came to Oregon in 1852, living at Dallas and Portland before coming to Albany. He was a member of a O. C. U. and Odd Fellows of this city. He was survived by three daughters, Mrs. Wolfinger of Spokane, Wash.; Mrs. Dufflonier of Portland and Mrs. Lehninger of this city.

Dr. J. E. Payton.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Eugene, Or., May 12.—Dr. J. E. Payton, a former practicing physician and surgeon of Eugene and Salem, died at Redlands, Cal., yesterday after a lingering illness. He was 55 years old. He was a brother of M. A. Payton, a station wife of Eugene's chief of police, and had other relatives here and at Salem, where he also practiced a good many years ago. The remains will be cremated at Pasadena, Cal.

ALABAMA BATTLE FLAGS RETURNED

Huntsville, Ala., May 12.—The battle-flags carried by a famous rifle society known as the "Alabama Tigers," which the Fourth Ohio cavalry captured in the spirited campaign at Stones River, 12, 1862, were returned to their former owners today, pursuant to a resolution of the Ohio veterans and with the approval of Governor Harmon and the Ohio legislature. The ceremonies attending the return of the flags passed off pleasantly and with enthusiasm. The presentation was made by a delegation from Ohio headed by John A. Pitts of Cincinnati. The flags were received by Mrs. Charles G. Brown, president of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

NEEDED ROOM SECURED

Wholesale Headquarters to Be Over the New Bank Location.

The new wholesale headquarters of the Portland Post Card company now being fitted up on the second floor of the Lumberman's National Bank building at Fifth and Stark streets are attracting considerable attention. Both the retail and wholesale branches of the business have grown to acknowledge supremacy of any concern handling these lines on the coast. Nine traveling salesmen visit every portion of the northwest for this Portland establishment. It has developed to its present proportions in less than three years which reflects great credit upon the management. It also speaks for exclusive control of many things carried by the organization. At the coming A-Y-P. exposition at Seattle the Portland Post Card company will conduct 40 booths and have exclusive sale of all post cards and view books. The retail store of Portland will remain where it has always been located on the ground floor of the Swetland building on Fifth street near Washington.

American Surgeon and Wife Scale Mountain That Baffles Natives.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Tokio, May 12.—Surgeon Letourneur and his wife, Americans, with the United States squadron at Manila, reached Tokio today after having scaled Mount Fuji. They are the first climbers to succeed in making the ascent this year and their achievement is not regarded lightly.

The Letourneurs braved death to make the ascent, as it is very early in the year for successful mountaineering. Fuji has claimed many victims, 20 soldiers dying about two months ago while trying to reach the summit. These men were killed while on a practice march, their commander following out the Japanese idea of "seasoning" his men by hardship. A third of his company succumbed to the cold and the remainder were compelled to turn back.

BISHOP SCADDING TO ADDRESS SENIORS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

University of Oregon, Eugene, May 12.—The senior class felt highly honored by the fact that Bishop Scadding has accepted the invitation to preach the inaugural sermon this commencement. Bishop Scadding has been a frequent visitor at the university and has become very popular. His inability to speak to the class of last year was a great disappointment. The senior class has also decided to utilize the variety seal instead of the "U" for class pins, the class numerals to be in raised gold letters. A memorial has not been selected, but a suggestion by President Campbell that each senior contribute $2.50 a year for four years to the student loan fund is being considered. Should this be done the interest will be used to publish a booklet showing the location and condition of the members of the class in 1913.

SEATTLE SALOON AND 20 MEN HELD UP

(United Press Leased Wire.) Seattle, May 12.—Armed with big revolvers and wearing handkerchiefs to hide their features, two well dressed men held up the Australian bar on Sixth avenue south, about midnight. Twenty men who were in the place at the time raised their hands at the command of the holdup men and stood motionless with their backs to the bar and waited breathlessly until the robbers had completed their task. From the cash register of the saloon $20 was taken, while from the patrons of the place $75 more was secured. In the safe behind the bar there was about $1000. The safe was locked and Arthur King, the bartender, told the robbers he did not know the combination. Four minutes after the robbers had quietly slipped out of a side door, the patrolman on the beat walked into the saloon. When informed of the holdup, he telephoned to the police station and detectives hurried to the scene, but there was no clue to the thugs.
