

PASTOR ACCUSED OF FIRING FOREST

Rev. Euster of Sunnyside and Jack Huston of Pendleton Deny Charge.

Pendleton, Ore., May 14.—That Jack Huston, a land publisher and a spokesman for the saloon forces during the local option campaign here last year, and Rev. W. T. Euster, pastor of the Sunnyside Methodist church of Portland, had been paid of late by the sheriff of Walla Walla county, to place the men under arrest and hold them until he could arrive.

On being informed that Huston would not skip and that Rev. Euster, though formerly pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church here, was now pastor of a Portland church, the Walla Walla county sheriff passed through this place, presumably on his way to Portland, to place the Portland pastor under arrest or secure bond for his appearance at the session of the Walla Walla county court. The charge is thought to be in connection with a hunting trip to the Walla Walla lake district last summer.

Huston claims it is a case of mistaken identity. Huston is expected to offer acceptable bonds.

"I would be far more likely to put out forest fires than to help make them," declared Rev. W. T. Euster, pastor of the Sunnyside Methodist church, when questioned this morning concerning his reported indictment for carelessly causing or allowing forest fires to do great damage while camping last summer in Walla Walla county, accompanied by Jack Huston, a Pendleton newspaper man.

"Members of our party were always careful to completely extinguish every campfire before we left," continued Mr. Euster. "I feel sure the charge against us must be the result of a mistake."

United States District Attorney John McCourt is also convinced that some mistake caused the preacher and newspaper man to be indicted by the Walla Walla county grand jury.

"I know them both personally," said the district attorney this morning, "and I regard them as the highest type of citizens. I am convinced that the indictment will be withdrawn."

DANCING, DANCING

Dreamland Dancing Academy Opening Tomorrow.

GIVES TALK ON HOW TO PREVENT SPREAD OF GREAT WHITE PLAGUE

At the meeting of the Woman's club today, A. L. Mills delivered an address upon the work being done for the prevention and cure of tuberculosis. In his address Mr. Mills went over the past efforts made throughout the United States to curb the spread of the Great White Plague. He then told of the work being done in Portland and the state and suggested means which might be employed by the Woman's club to aid in the campaign now being carried on.

In the address, Mr. Mills said in part as follows:

In the year 1908, in the city of Portland, there were 1723 deaths from all causes, of which 124, nearly 10 per cent, were from tuberculosis.

The Red Cross society and countless other societies in all parts of our country have engaged in the struggle to conquer the great white plague that annually claims 130,000 victims in the United States alone, and the moving pity of this sacrifice is that the grim destroyer leaves its human toll upon the budding womanhood and manhood of the country—for nearly one-third of all the deaths between the ages of 15 and 40 are from tuberculosis.

Urges Unflinching Campaign.

Science has shown that this great and unnecessary sacrifice cannot continue unless the disease has been found to be communicable, preventable and curable, and as such it can and must be brought under control, as in the past, smallpox, typhus fever, cholera, yellow fever and other kindred diseases have been brought under control. But for the present, and for the immediate future, there must be carried on an unflinching campaign of education among the people and a ceaseless war of extermination be waged against the tubercle bacilli, the germ of tuberculosis.

Dirt, dust and darkness are the refuge of the tubercle bacillus that in these favorable surroundings retains its vitality for many months.

That you and I have as yet not suffered appreciably from consumption is due to the fact that so far our lungs have been able to withstand the attacks of the tubercle bacilli, for doubtless we have inhaled many.

Drinking Cups Dangerous.

A few days ago the papers reported that an examination of the school children of Des Moines showed 60 per cent to be more or less affected by tuberculosis. How else could the infection be so widely spread than by the use of common drinking cups and by careless spitting?

To fumigate all apartments that have been occupied by consumptives is difficult, for the city authorities have scant knowledge of the number or location in the city of tubercular cases; though a city ordinance requires all physicians to report to the health officer every case of tuberculosis, nevertheless, it is a striking commentary upon the effectiveness of the ordinance to read in the health officer's report each month, "tubercular cases reported, two or three; deaths from tuberculosis, 12 or 15," as the case may be—strange that so many should die of tuberculosis and so few be ill from it.

The chief forces employed in the fight against tuberculosis are open air sanatoria, hospitals for last stage cases, and tubercular dispensaries, each supplementing the other, and each invaluable in its way.

Sanatoria's Threefold Purpose.

The open air sanatoria serve a threefold purpose. First, they gather together consumptives from large centers of population and so prevent them from acting as a focus of contagion; second, they instruct a patient how to take care of himself so that he is not a menace to others even when he returns home; third, they demand a discipline which, if adhered to will often result in permanently arresting the disease.

Such a sanatorium is maintained by Portland people near Milwaukie, and the results obtained justify its establishment. Since the first patient was received January 1905, until April 11, 1909, there have been under treatment 266 patients. The experience of the Portland Open Air Sanatorium but repeats that of other similar institutions. Taken in its earlier stages, in 90 per cent of the cases, the disease can be permanently arrested.

But unlike other sanatoria, the sanatorium at Milwaukie has not relinquished its doors to and in it I criticize. Doubtless it were better for the greater number had it done so, but when no harbor of refuge can be found in Portland for a consumptive in the last stages of the disease, the medical director is not always able to withstand the heart-breaking appeals for admission.

Outside of the bad effect and depressing influence upon the other patients, it is not right to fill the beds of the sanatorium with last stage cases to the exclusion of those who have a good chance of recovery.

Commends State Legislation.

One year ago I delivered an address on this same subject and in it I criticized the do-nothing attitude of our legislators. Gladly do I retract my words, for at the last session of the legislature, a bill was passed by a unanimous vote in both houses, appropriating $70,000 for the care of the tubercular poor of the state. By the end of this month it will become a law and effective, though probably it will be next year before the state institution will be ready to receive patients.

Last, but by no means least, of the agencies in the fight against the great white plague comes the Tubercular Dispensary. Sanatoria and hospitals are useful, but to stamp out the disease it must be tracked to its source, to its breeding grounds, the homes of the tubercular poor. The Tubercular Dispensary, with its trained visiting nurses aims to do and in the accomplishment of this work it is, of all agencies, the most valuable.

Requires No Large Fortunes.

To establish and maintain a free tubercular dispensary requires no large outlay of money. A moderate sized office, a few pieces of furniture, some medicines and instruments and a record book make up the main expense. The office must be open two or three hours daily, and a nurse and doctor be in attendance. With the services of one of our younger physicians and with one nurse at first, I do not believe the cost of maintenance would exceed $200 a year. And how could the community spend money for life insurance to better advantage?

As auxiliary to the dispensary, there should be organized in every church in the city ladies aid societies for the care of the tubercular poor. It should be their duty to provide patients with proper nourishing food, such as the best of milk and eggs, under the direction of the nurse they should furnish when needed, fresh bed linen and proper clothing, and in fact provide such other necessities and comforts as tend to make a sick room cheerful and a patient comfortable.

Free Skating.

Admission and skates will be free to ladies tonight at the Exposition rink. The rink will close for the summer soon. Join the merry throng tonight.

NEW COMEDienne IN "TOODLES IN HOLLAND"

Charles Ringler, Who Plays Dr. Schapekoff in "Toodles in Holland."

Away back in the late eighties, when John L. Sullivan was touring the country and knocking out all comers, he ran against a snail in Minneapolis in the shape of a doughty little Irishman named Patsy Cardiff, who refused to fall before the mighty John L. Then Cardiff came to Portland and worked on the police force.

Tonight at the Heilig theatre the traveling men are putting on a musical comedy, "Toodles in Holland," and Cardiff's daughter, who was born in Portland, will make her appearance as Samantha Flynn, teacher at a girls' seminary. Miss Cardiff is a comedienne in every sense of the word, and gets her laughs as easily as a trained actress. In the part of A. Knightstand, V. Ashbury has a great low comedy part, and later when he appears as Mrs. General Cranston, the long lost wife of Foxy Francis, the scene is funny in the extreme.

Mr. Ashbury is an actor of great ability.

Anty Drudge Gives More Reasons.

Little Eunice—"Boo Hoo! I had a pretty pink frock and mama cooked it and the pink all came out."

Mother—"I didn't know the color would fade or I shouldn't have boiled it along with the other clothes."

Anty Drudge—"Anything will fade, my dear, if it's boiled long enough. Boiling weakens the fabric and dissolves the dye. The best way is not to boil your clothes, but to wash them with Fels-Naptha in cool or lukewarm water. Fels-Naptha sets the colors instead of fading them, besides making the clothes wear longer. It also saves you time, work, bother and money."

There are cheaper laundry soaps than Fels-Naptha but no other so economical.

Sounds odd, doesn't it?

But it's true.

Fels-Naptha is more economical because it saves time, saves work, saves the cost of fuel and makes your clothes wear twice as long.

Fels-Naptha cleans your clothes in cool or lukewarm water in summer or winter without boiling or hot water to weaken their fabric, and without hard rubbing to wear them into holes.

It takes half as long and requires much less work than the old way.

Try it next washday.

See how white, and clean, and sweet Fels-Naptha makes your clothes.

Follow carefully the directions on the red and green wrapper.

LACK OF BLOOD

A Source of Great Danger to Growing Girls

What anemia is, how to recognize it and the value of the tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be known by the mother of every growing girl.

Anemia is simply lack of blood. It is one of the most common and dangerous diseases with which growing girls suffer.

It is common because the blood so often becomes impoverished during development, when girls are too frequently allowed to overstudy, overwork and suffer from lack of exercise. It is dangerous because of the stealthiness of its approach, often being well developed before its presence is recognized, and because of its tendency to grow so steadily worse, if not promptly checked, that it runs into consumption.

The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in all cases of anemia, is well shown in the case of Miss Isabel Glenier of No. 1225 Cook avenue, Lakewood, Ohio.

"My sickness began three years ago," she says, "and the doctor said it was caused by my not having blood enough. I had sharp shooting pains through the temples and back of the head and my legs ached. I had no appetite, did not sleep well or rest at night and lost flesh so that I weighed but 90 pounds. The least exertion would cause fainting spells of which I had three or four a week. At times I grew dizzy."

The doctor's treatment did not seem to help me and he told some of my friends that he thought I had quick consumption and that there was no hope for me. I had a cough that lasted a year.

One day I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in a Cleveland newspaper and I gave them a trial. I found relief while taking the first box and was encouraged so that I kept on and was cured. Now I am a living example of the virtues of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

These pills have also cured rheumatism, neuralgia, sick headaches, stomachic trouble and weakness in women.

A valuable booklet "Diseases of the Blood," giving full information about the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in diseases caused by impure blood, will be sent free upon request.

All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or they will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

PUPIL SAYS MASTER BROKE HIS NOSE

(United Press Leased Wire.)

San Francisco, May 14.—Harry Maxim, vice principal of the University Preparatory school, is under arrest on a charge of battery, preferred by Leo M. Ruddy, a 16-year-old student. Ruddy has a black eye and a broken nose which he claims were caused by Maxim's attack. The boy says he threatened to quit school because Maxim censured him for some slight infraction of rules. The professor, he alleges, became infuriated and attacked him.
