"BUNNY" RELATES EXPERIENCE OF THE MYSTERIOUS MR. RAFFLES

WATCHES HIS PARTNER OUTWIT MANY SLEUTHS

By "Bunny."

Raffles fooled several thousand more people yesterday-myself included. Notwithstanding all this, however, he himself got stung.

It was at the Delmonico cafe, Seventh street near Morrison, that he had a large package, tied and wrapped, handed to him. And Raffles was badly frightened.

Lined directly in front of the doorway were about 50 veterans of the chase -- "regulars," Raffles calls them, for he knows them all-and across the street had assembled the more timorous ones. The doorway was clogged with searchers and every one who entered was scanned closely.

Early in the day I had told Raffles to disguise himself more fully, for, as I saw him early in the morning, he was just the good-looking, dapper chap that he is undisguised; but, as I have said before-Raffles is past help. He appeared at the Delmonico wearing practicpeople, as indicated by the crowd at McAllen & McDonnell's, pursued Raffles yesterday than on any day previous.

Baty Is Stopped. Deputy Sheriff Frank Baty was one of those mistaken for the mysterious stranger. He was tapped upon the shoulder by a large woman, who repeated carefully the necessary verbal formula. Baty had some difficulty in escaping without being taken to The Journal office. He had to show his deputy's badge, papers and get several, persons in the crowd to identify him.

was at McAllen & McDonnell's But it was at McAllen & McDonnell's that Eaffles fooled me so completely. I got the tip when he entered the store unmolested by the assembled throngs, and The Journal staff photographer and myself esconced ourselves in Senor Bubb's Studebaker auto to get a picture of the crowd with Raffles in it. I thought I could recognize him when he came out and then pass the word to the snapshot artist to get a picture of the crowd. But I was fooled. He told me later last night that he had passed within 10 feet of the machine and tried to give us a high sign, but that we to give us a high sign, but that we wouldn't look at him.

Think over what you could do with that $500 The Journal cashier holds for the person who is sly enough.

The boys at this place, for they all expected I would make my visit after the theatre, but I called here a little after 7 o'clock. I stood on the corner of Seventh and Washington streets for a few minutes watching for an opportunity to slip into the billiard parlor without attracting attention. The boys had not lined up yet to receive me, so I went to the entrance and walked upstairs and into the billiard and pool room without having a word said to me. This place was filled with players, as usual, and they did not pay much attention to the fellow wearing the long black overcoat. But I did not linger but a minute, for I knew If the fellows up there would get me spotted it would be all off, for they are a good lively crowd. I noticed my friend, "Dusty" khodes. He was talking to a couple of fellows and just as happy as ever. I also saw Mr. Lee Hazelett and Mr. E. Richards, both of whom I know by sight. They were both busy entertaining their patrons.

I have had the pleasure of being in this popular pool and billiard parlor a number of times since my arrival in Portland, and I know most of the boys number of times since my arrival in Portland, and I know most of the boys at this place, which made it easier for me last night. I have visited a number of billiard halls on the const and was surprised to find this place the most modern equipped billiard parlor I have seen on the Pacific coast. It is finely furnished in every detail and a place where you can enjoy a good game of pool or billiards with your friends at the best tables made. This parlor is controlled and managed by Mr. Parker, a gentleman who is doing everything in the best of facilities for their comfort and amusement, and also to extend courtesy to everybody, and from the fact that this billiard parlor is most all the time filled with a class of gentlemen that patronize a place that is conducted in the right way, and when they enjoy a good game or sit in comfort and watch a game proceed, is evidence that the boys and shoot a game with my creat Dusty. Raffles Visits the Grand. Baffles Visits the Grand.

Between the hours of 8 and 10 o'clock I made a trip to this popular play house—when in company with a gentleman from Seattle, I entered—dressed in dark checked gray suit, checked cap and soft shirt. My friend wore a long overcoat. This night we went up in the balcony to give the boys a chance, but evidently all were of the opinion that I would be down stairs, and I was not noticed.

My friend was much attracted to the pretty violinist, Miss Zay Holland, and I don't blame him, for the sweet music she can render would attract most anyone. The entire show at the Grand this ne. The entire show at the Grand this week is A1, and Manager Cordray in-orms me that the bill for next week is even larger.

Tonight at the Grand I shaw attempt to play a huge joke on some one, so be on the look out—for I'll be there with bells on and watching you pretty closely.

Baffles' Special Automobile.

I am now preparing to pull off some of my auto stunts, and I have engaged one of the best machines in the country—the Studebaker—known the world over for speed and durability. This machine is furnished me by the Studebaker Bros. Company, 330 East Morrison street. I asked the manager if he could furnish me with a good reliable chauffeur, one that I could depend on, and he said, "Bet your life—I'll give you the best there is—Mr. H. A. Bubb. He will go the ilmit, and if they catch you in a Studebaker when he is at the wheel they will have to go some. He is at your command." Baffles' Special Automobile.

I will need a shave for tomorrow and it would not be a bad idea to watch the

Again let me advise you: I shall make no scheduled appearance at any place-except those mentioned in this paper in advance. Don't be misled by the signs you see stuck around with the word "Raffles" on them. I'll give you the official program, and one that you can depend on.

I realize that my capture is but a short time off, but I shall do my best to get even with some of the bunch while I am yet an outuw in the wilds of Portland.

Of this sum, the costs, amounting to $50, have been paid, but the balance is still due the county. The bond is signed by Henry Flecken-stein and Peter Wagner, and in com-menting on the case Ferguson says he does not see why the money should not be collected.

Next the expert takes a dip into the affairs of the municipal court, where the accounts of that court impinge upon those of the county. In this case he has shown that some one has made away with $400 due the county but which is lost in the shuffle. Here it is that the name of County Clerk Fields is supposed to have been forged to the fee book of the municipal court.

County Clerk Fields stated this morning that the name signed on the municipal records was not in his hand writing and that he knew nothing of the case, having never received the money or signed for it. The case was under the administration of George J. Cameron, now district attorney, but then police judge. Frank Hennessy, now a deputy district attorney, was clerk of the municipal court at the time and had charge, as such officer, of the money.

Use Mrs. Roselair's Body

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Hillsboro, Or., May 22,-To prevent the cremation of the body of Mrs. John D. Roselair, who was brutally murdered by her husband at their lonely ranch house in Washington county last week, and the destruction of the last bit of evidence of the blows which caused her death, is the purpose of District Attorney Tongue, who has been giving the case close attention for a week. Whether the law is such that he can prevent the mother of the dead woman from having the body cremated as she desires, is not yet fully established and Mrs. Dombrower insists upon her purpose to prety went the burial of the daughter's body.
Meanwhile, the funeral which was to have been held today has been postponed indefinitely and no action will be taken before tomorrow.

No eye witnesses to the tragedy can be produced by the state and it will be necessary to try Roselair on circumstantial evidence. His admission of the trime and some of the circumstahces, the finding of the body and the location of certain infuries, will tend to convict him of the murder. With the skull of the dead woman these facts can be shown more clearly than in any other

Bail Money Disappears.

In 1905, prior to September 5, Maude Newsome was arrested in the municipal court and put up cash bail of $500. Later the case was taken to the circuit court and Judge Frazer reduced the bail to $400. On September 5 the woman, failing to appear for trial, the bail was declared forfeited.

On the records of the municipal court it is shown that the $100 refunded by Judge Frazer was collected by John Watts, as attorney for the woman. The same record also shows that F. S. Fleids signed for the forfeited bail money, $400. "Mr. Fleids," says the report, "says he did not sign for his money; that it never came into his possession and there is no record in his office to show that it did. There is a notation on the criminal docket of $400 cash bail forfeited. Photographs of Woman's Body.

It is not an unusual thing in murder trials to have part of the body of the victim in court for inspection by the jury, while in many cases photograp! have been used. Photographs of the mutiated body of Mrs. Roselair have been taken showing the wounds and condition of the clothing, to be used in case the cremation plan ultimately carries and the possibility of securing the skull for introduction as evidence fails. The murder was committed a week ago today. During all that time Roselair has maintained a stolld indifference to his predicament, except when indications were strong that he would be lynched, and he seems content in the feeling that the law will take its course anyway. He is preparing a statement of the facts as he tells them and will sign it for District Attorney Tongue perhaps this afternoon. So far no new developments have been brought out.

DOES WICKERSHAM'S ACTION MEAN THAT HENEY IS FORSAKEN?

Washington. May 22.—Francis J. Heney will not receive the same support from the present administration that he did while President Roosevelt held office, if the impression prevalent among the prosecutor's friends here is correct. The impression was created by the announcement that the department of justice had sent to San Francisco complete copies of the entire records of Heney's legal connection with the federal government, on request of Patrick Calhoun and his New York attorneys. Attorney General Wickersham, in addition to sending the original copies of the salary bills and vouchers, which he secured from the treasury department, for a period of five years, sent the original commissions to Heney from Roosevelt and has instructed United States Attorney Devlin, at San Francisco, that the government has waived the usual procedure and that the records can be turned over to the court upon its request.

RAFFLES PLANS FOR SUNDAY

THE MYSTERIOUS MR. RAFFLES WILL VISIT

East St. Johns

BETWEEN THE HOURS OF 1 AND 5 P. M., SUNDAY, MAY 23.

Hearing about the wonderful Swift Plant, Monarch Lumber Mill, North Bank Railroad, and other extensive manufacturing industries, he is curious to see the future great Industrial and Business Center of the Peninsular, which will be located at East St. Johns, the nearest point to the only railroad depot on the peninsular, and the big industries. Mr. Raffles has selected a lot at East St. Johns and deposited the number of it and the number of the block it is in with the Merchants' National Bank.

FREE Lot for Lucky Guesser

The first one guessing the number of the lot and the number of the block it is in will be given a lot in East St. Johns absolutely free. See particulars in our announcement elsewhere in this paper and in the Sunday papers.
