and it is to carry out this agreement that he is coming to the coast at this time. There is little chance of his meeting any Harriman officials while here, as both Mr. Cotton and Mr. O'Brien will be out of the city, but, the "empire builder" has a way of dropping in on his own lieutenants now and then and of talking things over with them at first hand. Whether he will take any hand in settling the details of the agreement between the Northern Pacific, the Great Northrn, and the Union Pacific while in Portland is doubtful. It is the belvef of the Portland officials who are best informed on this agreement that its de-tails have yet to be determined and that that is one of the reasons why Mr. Cotton is in the east now-endeavoring to settle some of these details. The last time Mr. Hill was here was at the time of the formal opening of the North Bank road, when he, Howard Elliot, president Louis Hill, of the Great Northern, were here as guesps of honor of a chamber of commerce ban-quet.
