

DEBILITATION OF COTTON SCHEDULE

Southerners Pleased and Leave For Home—Day in Senate Devoted to Personalities in Which Dolliver Plays Conspicuous Part.

Washington, June 5.—Senator Aldrich had three votes taken in the senate today on the cotton schedule, and won handsomely on each test. The entire schedule was practically passed, notwithstanding the concerted opposition of importers who have been fighting it. Many of the southern senators tonight are preparing to leave for their homes, not to return until the regular session next December. They say they are satisfied that the Republicans can and will put through the Aldrich bill as it is written, with few alterations, and these will be made with the consent of the Rhode Island leader.

In the early part of the week the finance committee will report out its recommendations on oil and hides and lumber. It can be said with almost absolute accuracy that hides will go on the free list, that oil will carry an ad valorem duty and that lumber instead of being 32 as now, will be fixed at 21 as the house has voted.

Day of Personalities.
Aside from taking votes on cotton the entire day in the senate was devoted to personalities, some of them bitter, reflective on the conduct of others, criticisms and recriminations.

Senator Dolliver led in a general tirade against the methods of Aldrich. For four days he has been chafing under strictures cast by the Republican stalwarts. He got a chance today, amused the galleries, irritated Aldrich and pleased the Republican "progressives." He pictured the present bill as being one framed by a lot of greenbacks men and said that the senate in charge of it were using the American public as "come-on" men.

Tillman's Remarks.
Mr. Tillman remarked that there were apparently two Dingley laws, and he wanted to know which one was the real one. "Yes," said Mr. Dolliver. "There is one on the statute books and another in the imagination of the senator from Rhode Island. I have five witnesses, the importer, the promoting manufacturer, the statistician of the government, the goods themselves and the American importer, all assenting to the fact that the duties have been raised. But my friend from Rhode Island says that the importers don't know anything about the customs house. Why, bless his innocence, they have their agents at the customs house every morning and sometimes perhaps they have them on the payroll."

Lodge's Claim.
The plea of Senator Lodge that should the tariff on cotton goods be reduced the effect would be to destroy many manufacturing plants and thus throw out of employment thousands of laborers, was vigorously disputed by Senator Dolliver. Then he turned to Aldrich and denied many of the statements given by him to the senate.

Wary of Deception.
"I want to say to your face," Dolliver went on, "that the country is weary of deceptions being played. This tariff bill is not what the people want, but it is what you want."

Later Senator Aldrich called for a vote on a paragraph in the bill which proceeded in having most of the cotton schedule adopted. He had a majority of senators. Mr. Emswiler and Foster of Louisiana voting against the Democrats. They are now regularly aligned with the Republicans.

MOTHER LOVE

village church. The girl did not cry. Her voice did not tremble. But her parched eyes and expressionless tones bespoke all too plainly the blighting effects of the horrible tragedy upon her young soul. Not once did she refer to the dead man as father. She told the story standing in the shade of the house which her father dynamited that morning. Nearly, neighbors were engaged in their ghastly search for missing portions of the bodies of her mother and sister.

That Bert Garrett had planned to murder his wife and her mother, his own life for at least three weeks is obvious. Three weeks ago he purchased some strychnine, but discovered before being able to poison any of the family. One week later he bought a revolver and some shells. He was frustrated in this second attempt by Frank Riding, a Marquam merchant, who persuaded Garrett to hand the revolver over to him.

happy home and snuffed out three lives as though they were candles. Garrett finished his existence within two miles of the spot where he first saw the light of day. Community Is Paralyzed.
Paralyzed by the awful tragedy, the people of Marquam could not realize the awful harvest of death, but they set about searching the ruins of the home for the bodies of those known to have been living there.

Glady's Found.
Then it was that Gladys was discovered imprisoned in her room upstairs, so badly shaken by the concussion that she was unable to give an arm.

Baby's Body in Atoms.
The body of the little girl was gathered together, a tiny hand here, a foot there, while strong men wept and women faintly. Lavilla, part of her body cut entirely away by flying timbers, was early recovered, retaining consciousness through it all.

Silverton Physician Arrives.
Dr. F. M. Brooks arrived in his automobile from Silverton, making the nine miles in 25 minutes, including a stop for Miss Ada Simeral, a nurse. Assisted by Dr. S. D. Chapman, he had also been in charge of the work of Mrs. Garrett's lower limbs and cared for the injured daughter.

What the Blast Did.
The Garrett family resided in a two-story neat residence within a block of the postoffice, on the main thoroughfare of the town. The house faced itself with a back portion or kitchen, one story high, while back of the house a large yard was used for garden purposes. Leading from the kitchen, the back door opens onto the lawn, two steps being used to descend from the floor of the house to the ground. It was under these steps that Garrett placed the deadly bomb. The explosion tore entirely away the kitchen, and the main building, broke every window in the entire house, threw the kitchen range across the room, tore a hole five or six feet deep and as large as a wagon bed under the steps where it had been placed, and threw the body of Garrett 25 feet into the back yard, severing the head from the body by striking a tree about 20 feet from the kitchen door.

In the front of the house mirrors were shattered and the front windows were driven from the building as if forced by blows from a sledge. An immense charge of the explosive must have been used to do the work of destruction. It is known that Garrett knew nothing of the force of powder and he apparently used sufficient to be sure his plans being carried out. Coroner Holman hastened to the scene of the tragedy, accompanied by District Attorney Gilbert B. Hedger, and an inquest was held over the bodies of Mrs. Garrett, and her dead husband and baby. The jury inquired into all the facts that could be disclosed and found a verdict that the deceased came to their deaths as a result of a dynamite explosion caused by the intent and by the hand of B. B. Garrett. The jury consisted of G. W. Bentley, J. V. Drake, A. Myer, G. Nicholson, J. W. Falconer and W. A. Shaver. It was impossible to develop any new facts, as no eye witnesses to the tragedy could be found, and the first neighbors to know of the occurrence were attracted by the noise of the terrific explosion.

Mrs. Chapman's Story.
"I saw Garrett looking under his house last night," said Mrs. F. A. Chapman, who resides just across the street from the Garrett home. He was at the kitchen door, and seemed to be looking for something under the steps. I paid no attention to it until after the tragedy this morning. I have lived here but a month and there has been nothing unusual about the family. He was about the house and yard a great deal, and I do not remember of him acting differently from other men. Yet last night he seemed to be looking seriously for something under the house."

Plans the Third Attempt.
It was then that the would-be murderer went to Mount Angel and purchased the dynamite. He is said to have purchased it at the store of John Eber, a Mount Angel merchant. It is presumed that he had had the dynamite secreted under the kitchen porch for at least six days, as he had on several occasions endeavored to get the entire family gathered in the room. The wife and mother was sleeping peacefully with preparing the morning meal when Garrett went to the bedroom at Gladys and told her to hurry down for breakfast. Gathering a year-old Beulah in his arms he carried her to the kitchen, thinking Gladys was following. Then he applied the match. With an explosion that shook the little town of Marquam from one end to the other, demolished the once

COAST SHIPPING BUSINESS BETTER
Pacific Coast Company Compares April, 1909, With April, 1908.

(Heart News by Longest Leased Wire.)
New York, June 5.—April returns of the Pacific Coast company, which owns the Pacific Coast Steamship company, show a gross of $66,582, which is an increase of $6,923 over the gross for April, 1908, and a net of $102,010, which is an increase of $26,608 over the same month a year ago. March was the first month in the last 10 to show gains in both net and gross over a corresponding month in the preceding year, and the fact that April sustained the improvement makes it apparent that the change for the better is of a substantial nature. General improvement in business and traffic conditions on the western seaboard is responsible for the company's earnings.
