Mortgage Must Be Returned—Joseph Ellis and Frances Ellis must return to Emma Stanley $2500, a mortgage for $3550 and a deed to property in Piedmont under a decision rendered in the circuit court by Judge Morrow. This is to recompense Mrs. Stanley for a deed which the court holds was practiced upon her in the sale of the property. Mrs. Stanley is suing for $1000, alleging that it was represented to her that 140 acres out of 235 were cleared, while in fact only 10 acres were cleared and the remainder was rough and mountainous. The deed to the Piedmont land was in part made for the purchase price, and if the defendants cannot return the land they are required to account to Mrs. Stanley for the money advanced in the case was heard many months ago.

Estate Must Pay for Teeth—It is no fun to be guardian for A. G. Ryan, who was declared incompetent several years ago, and whose property is being looked after by his brother, Michael G. Ryan. The latter has just been allowed $30 to pay a dentist's bill which was incurred by Ryan in a fit of insanity. The dentist's bill is one of several items of an account given by the county clerk to the guardian. It states that the guardian suffered the loss of his teeth, number not specified, in an assault made upon him by A. G. Ryan in a fit of insane rage and violence. As the ward did the damage, Judge Webster thought it proper that the bill for the repairs should be paid from his estate. Ryan has a large amount of property.

New Map of Streets—E. T. Pittman has issued a new Portland street and street directory with a map of the city which will be of many use to the city dwellers who are unfamiliar with the city. The directions for reaching any street, section or avenue of the city are so plain as to be unimpeachable. In addition to the geographical location of each street the direction is plainly given as to whether it is a main street or a side street, and the distance from the center of the city of all suburbs. The book is of a convenient size to carry in the vest pocket.

Employers Give Banquet—Members of the Portland Manufacturers' association and other employers of labor in Portland to the number of 150 were present at a banquet in the Commercial club last night. J. W. Van Cleave of St. Louis, retiring president of the National Association of Manufacturers, J. A. Emery, general counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers, and J. P. Bird, a leading member of the same organization, Mr. Van Cleave has been known in the city for many years as an organizer of employers of labor. He delivered an address along the line of the relations between employers maintaining the open shop. Mr. Emery and Mr. Bird both spoke, following Mr. Van Cleave.

Labor Council Meeting—Central Labor Council met last night at 205 1/2 First street, and discussed the labor law securing a law for Oregon that all contracts and subcontracts let by the state, city or town must contain a clause guaranteeing an eight-hour work day. This law has just been passed by the state of New York, and has been signed by Governor Hughes. The labor law in charge are now considering the merits of the New York law, and from present indications it is probable that they may go to the legislature at the next session with the proposition.

Appraise Moul's Estate—J. H. McCarthy, Ben C. Dwyer and J. H. Moore have appraised the estate of the late Philip L. Moul at $15,173. Mrs. Alice Moul, the widow, has been granted an allowance of $150 a month by County Judge Webster.

brought suit in the federal court this morning against C. Edgar Woolfolk who lives near Roseburg. The case is being tried before a jury today. Assistant United States District Attorney J. R. Wyatt is representing the government. R. J. Johnson first cut the wood in 1902 and it is alleged that he sold only 70 cords to Woolfolk. The wood came from government land. Johnson had no right to it, nor to the money paid him, so the government declares that the 70 cords must be paid for all over again.

FINE SHOWING BY SCHOOL CHILDREN

of Rex Oregonus and his attendants; Wednesday its automobiles; Thursday its horses and its "Spirit of the Golden West" parade. All of these were good and entertaining and beautiful. The east side last night brought forth its budding men and women and the east side wins. The other parades were beautiful and wonderful and all the but the exhibition of the east side was inspiring as well as beautiful. It breathed out to the vast crowd the spirit of the crown and the crown of optimism and of youth, with all its freedom, and if there were to be a trophy for the best of the parades, the east side would have won it.

Many Entitled to Credit.
And here, incidentally, credit should be given to M. M. Ringler, who drilled the flower girls and the band and some 13 other schools; to the principals of the different schools who joined in the parade; to the little captains who led the ranks and gave the orders for the many bewildering formations and evolutions, and to all those who aided in the perfecting of the spectacle, the children participating as much as any.

It was a beautiful parade and one that will long be remembered. The children have been the crown and the crown of optimism and of youth, with all its freedom, and if there were to be a trophy for the best of the parades, the east side would have won it.

The Judges of the evening had a hard task to perform. They wanted to give prizes and trophies and cups to each and every school and individual participant. They wanted to crown or decorate or give the cross of the Legion of Honor to the crown and the crown of optimism and of youth, with all its freedom, and if there were to be a trophy for the best of the parades, the east side would have won it.

AUTO HITS POLE; DRIVER INJURED

Roy C. Wilson Unable to Participate in the Races This Afternoon.

Roy C. Wilson, who was to drive the Tourist car in the 50-mile class C race and to drive with Murray Page as mechanist in the 100 Locomobile car, the favorite of many automobilists in the big race for the Wempe trophy, was badly hurt while driving over the course yesterday. The Tourist car was wrecked and Wilson himself sustained a broken leg as a result of a collision with a telegraph pole.

Wilson was testing the car in a short sprint on the course yesterday and was hitting it up at a lively clip along the side of the road. He steered too close to the fence while making the "S" turn of the south side of the track, and bumped against the fence, losing control of the machine, and then hitting the telegraph pole. The rear wheel caught firmly against the pole, throwing Wilson and the mechanist out of the car. Wilson sustained a broken leg in the accident, and the mechanist, Jack Peterson and M. C. Dickinson were only a short distance behind Wilson and, securing a cot, which they used as a stretcher, took him to the Good Samaritan hospital. This morning he was reported doing well.

This morning Murray Page, with whom Wilson was supposed to ride had not decided as to who would be his mechanist. He had several candidates in sight. The Tourist car is eliminated from the races altogether, as the car was completely wrecked. Wilson's injury is deeply regretted by every automobile man, for he is a popular young fellow and was confidently expected to make a good showing between the knee and hip. Jack Peterson and M. C. Dickinson were only a short distance behind Wilson and, securing a cot, which they used as a stretcher, took him to the Good Samaritan hospital. This morning he was reported doing well.

DEEP CHANNEL

ing piling into the stony foundation previously constructed along the location of the railway. So hard is the foundation that it is practically impossible to drive even steel piling into it, and the ordinary cedar pole will not stand the driving.

Government May Do Work.
Attempts have been made to induce the government to quarry the stone needed in the work near McGowan's quarry, where the stone is quarried. The hardest formation can be secured readily with transportation of but six miles and it is the only stone of the kind. But the delays in the delivery of the stone and the consequent damage to the construction by reason of high water, may yet compel the government to take up the task of furnishing material as well as placing it. The present project contemplates the construction of a jetty down the north bank of the Columbia out across Peacock spit, and will require immense amount of material, largely stone.

South Jetty About Completed.
About one half mile of construction on the south jetty remains to be completed, and the stone casting is being completed by the present season. The encroachment is being raised to a sufficient height to protect the jetty from the heaviest weather. Work has progressed to a point about a quarter of a mile beyond the end of the original jetty in 1907. Prior to that time work was under direction of G. B. Hegardt and the jetty was carried to a point four miles beyond Clatsop spit. The storm during the winter of 1905-6 carried away practically all of the construction, leaving nothing of value in taking up the work again.

A double track tramway has been constructed with the second prize, the netting the main land with Clatsop spit, the width of crest and slope of sides having been changed to meet the jetty force of the tides, until the work is now on a permanent basis.

PERSONAL
Mrs. Charles Scadding, wife of the Bishop of Oregon, who was operated on two weeks ago for cancer of the breast, is slowly but steadily recovering. She is still at the Good Samaritan hospital, but it is hoped she will be sufficiently strong to be brought home to Bishopcroft next week.

Dog Carts Made Big Hit.
Passing to the special features of the parade and to the reveal of the masquerade, the parade was followed by the dog carts, which were the best of the parade. The first prize for the best dog cart to the cart driven by Kenneth Soabe, 1309 Main street, Oregon city, $10 award. His cart represented a miniature prairie schooner, with the legend "Rose City or Bust" on the sides, and hauled by two proud looking and acting shagbored dogs.

The prize for the most comical dog cart went to Lawrence Nelson, 504 East Seventh street, North.
The pony prize went to F. T. Merrill, with his pony cart, being the little pony cart, Buena Vista, our baby.

Maskerade a Great Feature.
In the reveals following the parade, W. R. Thompson, 422 1/2 East Washington street, won the first prize for the best dressed man, Miss Madeline Mertz, 232 1/2 East Morrison street, won the first prize for the best dressed woman. Taylor, 102 Grand avenue, for the best sustained character, and Elmer Cantonwine, 202 1/2 Washington, for the most comical character.

Grand Marshal W. E. Finzer started the parade on time and finished it in a little more than an hour. Following the grand marshal and the police band came the flower girls drilled by Professor Ringler, 32 in number, who bore bouquets of flowers and executed difficult and beautiful maneuvers along the line of march.

Washington High school, with its winning baseball team and its marching glee club and line of students came next.
Miss Della Burns, queen of the east side, and her attendant maids, Misses Martha Jensen and Lila Bryson came next. Brooklyn school with wreathes of red and white roses, Highland with its drum corps, North Central with its drum corps, Clinton Kelly with its rose banner, Montaville its leading column forming the initial letter of the school name, Sunnyside and its Zouaves, Stephens school, Mount Tabor, Williams Avenue with its army of pupils, Holladay and its enormous wreathes of pink and white roses, Irvington, Shaver, Woodlawn, Thompson, Albina, all made most creditable showings.

Japanese Daylight Fireworks.
The east side celebration commenced yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock when the assembled throngs were shown an innovation in the display of the Japanese fireworks. It is common to see the fireworks by night, but few have seen fireworks by day, and this was what the spectators presented yesterday afternoon.

In the evening came the parade and after that the carnival. To this thought of people's "Flicked in" fantastic costume, it being estimated that more than 50,000 people were massed along Grand avenue during the time the carnival was at its flood. The crowds were orderly, however, bent on fun, and had a royal good time. At times the fun grew boisterous to a certain degree, but a word from the ever present policemen checked the overplus of merriment and restored decorum. Altogether the east side celebration was one of the biggest successes of the Festival week.

All Get Honorable Mention.
The judges of the children's parade this morning awarded the prizes for the schools having the largest marching lines and the best appearance. The following schools in the order given: Montaville with 156; Shaver third with 118; Woodlawn fourth with 112; Clinton Kelly fifth with 105; Irvington with 100. Showing of the schools had less than 60 in the marching line and all of them were given honorable mention by the judges, besides the trophy awarded to each.

After having awarded the first prize to Sunnyside for the best appearance, the judges gave Clinton Kelly second, Holladay third, Woodlawn fourth and all the rest honorary mention.

A horse census of England, conducted by the government, revealed that, while the number was not decreasing, there was an alarming lack of animals of suitable types.
