ADDITIONAL BLOCKS

Dallas, Or., June 21.—Street improvement is being carried on in Dallas this summer more extensively than ever before. Last year a total of nine blocks in the business section were paved with crushed rock and the Improvement work this year will include 15 blocks additional.

Three blocks in the newly improved district are completed and the preliminary excavation on the others is well under way. At the close of the summer, if nothing delays the work, every street of entrance into the city will have been rebuilt with crushed rock, affording an excellent avenue for an interchange of traffic with the rural communities.

globe, Dr. A. P. Graves, now the world's oldest evangelist, was born. After a life of continuous action during which he has held more than 800 series of revival services in as many cities and towns he is still ready for much active work and takes as keen an interest in his ministry and its results as he ever did.

Dr. and Mrs. Graves are delegates from the Los Angeles Baptist church to the Northern Baptist convention which begins its sessions here Friday. He will spend several weeks in Portland:

The aged evangelist began his work in New York nearly 50 years ago. "I thought I was to be a pastor of a church ali my life, but it was ruled otherwise," he said yesterday. "I wanted the life of comparative case and comfort which the pastorate implies, but after several years spent as the pastor of several churches, among which was the First Baptist church of Brooklyn, I gave this life up after a terrible struggle and resigned myself to going up and down the land, trying to do good to all the men I met and point them all toward a higher and better life."

Idiosyncracies of French Geniuses' Works Are Now on Exhibition

Two of the most extraordinary geniuses of French art in the last century are represented by canvases, in the loan exhibition at the Museum of Art, which will remain open during the summer months.

Gustave Courbet, whose portrait of himaelf is shown, was the chief instigator of the overthrow of the Vendome Column in Paris in 1871. A political radical, strongly influenced by Proudhen and his socialistic writings, Courbet took the part of the commune, and led the mob which tore down the Vendome Column. He was sentenced to six months' imprisonment and made to bear the cost of restoration. It was thus necessary for him not only to earn his living by his art, but also to use it for the restoration of the famous column. At that time he was already famous, however, and the government was glad to accept his pictures in place of it for the restoration of the famous col-umn. At that time he was already fa-mous, however, and the government was glad to accept his pictures in place of a monetary compensation.

We are told that he was a strange combination of conceit, blundering, quick apprehension, a braggart, a radi-cal, a thinker, yet possessing a great artistic instinct. He himself says in a letter written in 1850, when he was 31 years old, that he worked 10 years in solltude, privation and struggle, his tal-ent unrecognized because he refused to solftude, privation and struggle, his talent unrecognized because he refused to attach himself to traditions and to schools. And in the portrait at the Art Museum he shows himself as the radical, defiant, half fanatical realist he was in life. It is a portrait which besides teaching us the fundamental traits of Courbet's technique, is doubly interesting as a revelation of the man himself—the father of the realists, and one of the real pioneers in nineteenth

One wonders what has become of these, and if any of them were in M. Saglio's collection.

There is little doubt now that Monticelli was not on the verge of insanity a great part of the time, yet he has been called, nevertheless, by authoritative critics, the greatest colorist of the century. His pictures have been called "painted music"; he used color only for color's sake; fantasies in thickened pigment, the caprices of genius, the canvases of Monticelli are nearly always painting of pure sensation. They have to art what a poem like "Kubla."

quay of Southampton whence they sailed.

On the sixteenth day of September, 1620, 102 Pilgrims finally left Southampton in the Mayflower, which after 67 days of painful voyage brought them to the promised land. A month was spent in exploring the coast to find a suitable spot for a settlement. On the twenty-second of December, 1620, Plymouth Rock was selected, and John Alden, first of all the Filgrim Fathers, set his feet thereon. In any memorial to be erected to the Pilgrim Fathers in Southampton John Alden will claim special prominence. He was a Southampton artist, a cooper by occupation. He is notable as the hero of the charming and romantic episode in New England's history celebrated by Longfellow in his famous poem "The Courtship of Miles Standish."

All unknown to Standish John Alden, being a "hopeful and pleasing young man," was also in love with the maiden, yet he faithfully fulfilled the proxy-courtship for his friend. But Priscilla would have none of this second-hand wooing, and with her eyes she showed her preference for John Alden only. So they were married and lived together wooing, and with her eyes she showed her preference for John Alden orly. So they were married, and lived together long and happily, and left 11 children to perpetuate their memory and name John Alden died at the age of 88, and was the last of the Pilgrim Fathers to be laid to rest. In this appeal from the mayor of Southampton it is requested that all contributions to this memorial fund be sent to him—R. G. Oakley—the treasurer, at the Municipal buildings, Southampton. Other communications respecting the memorial should be addressed to the honorary secretary. Professor F. J. C. Hearnslaw, M. A. LL. D., Harriey University College, Southampton, who has requested me to circulate this appeal to the American public on this coast. Like the meteoric drops of rain which create the mighty flow of our Columbia river may the small contributions of millions of Americans who revere the memory of their Pilgrim ancestors and founders of this great republic of the west unite with those of England to raise a befitting memorial in Southampton to the Pilgrim Fathers. by Portland Hibernians for the biennial convention of the Ancient Order of Hi- Boys bernians in America, which is scheduled to meet in this city July 19 to 24 of next year. The convention committee is composed of John O'Hare, president; Mrs. E. R. Kelley, vice-president; P. E. Sullivan, treasurer, and E. H. Deery, secretary.

Engraved on the stationery used by

Engraved on the stationery used by the committee is a shamrock and a red rose—emblematic of Oregon Hibernians—underneath which is the sentiment, "The Rose Greets the Shamrock."

Local Hibernians expect that the convention will be the largest, most important and most interesting in the history of the order. Every state in the Union, all the Canadian provinces and several countries in the old world will be represented by properly accredited representatives, fully 1000 delegates being in attendance.
