INDIAN FIGHTER HERE TO RESIDE

William Morfitt, Old Scout and Pioneer, Moves Here From Eastern Oregon.

William Morfitt.

William Morfitt, for 40 years a Malheur county stockman and a pioneer of the Indian wars of '53 and '55 and who has recently closed out his interest in and near Ontario, Or., and purchased property in this city, where he intends making his future home. Mr. Morfitt is one of the best informed men in the Pacific northwest on the early history of the Oregon country and northern California. He remembers numerous incidents connected with the Indian wars of '53 and '55 and was a witness of many thrilling scenes in the early pioneer days of eastern Oregon. He was a scout on the staff of General Howard in the Indian wars of 1875 and was intimately acquainted with that daring old Indian fighter, Mr. Morfitt was a friend and associate of Generals Hood and Crook when they were lieutenants in the same company stationed at Fort Jones, California, in 1853. He knew many of the young army officers, who, in the early '60's, were stationed at military forts in Oregon and northern California and who afterward became famous as commanders in the Federal and Confederate armies. Mr. Morfitt is a native of England. He came to this country when very young with his parents, and crossed the plains when but a mere boy of age. Although past 72, he is still leading an active, busy life.

MOVES JULY TWENTIETH

The Bartholomew Company Leaves Corner at Tenth and Washington.

That upper Washington street in the vicinity of Tenth is gradually becoming a center for high class stores is becoming more evident day by day. The latest noteworthy change in the neighborhood by the Bartholomew company of the southwest corner of Tenth and Washington streets, at present occupied by a millinery concern and a shirt manufacturing company. The Bartholomew company though one of the younger business firms has gradually become one of the leaders among the cloak and suit houses, and the continued growth of this house as a center for distinctively designed garments for women "custom made" in appearance and "ready made" in price has made the demand for larger quarters and better facilities imperative. The new quarters will be elegantly fitted up with larger windows and two entrances, fronting both Washington and Tenth streets. The Bartholomew company opened at their present location, 252 Washington street—Hirsch-Selling building—three years ago.

COLONEL W. F. JENKINS WILL HOLD MEETINGS

Colonel W. F. Jenkins, provincial commander of the Salvation army in the north Pacific states, will deliver his finely illustrated lecture "Bethlehem to Calvary" at the Portland Bethel, M. C. A. auditorium, Fourth street between Yamhill and Morrison, Monday, July 5, 8 p. m. Over 3000 feet of Pathe's beautifully colored motion pictures is used in this lecture, which is better known perhaps as "The Passion Play." A fine soloist will sing. The Salvationists of Portland will unite for this meeting. Special meetings will be conducted by the colonel at corps No. 1, Third and Davis streets, Saturday night, July 3, 8 p. m., and at corps No. 4, 249 Madison street, Sunday, July 4, 8 p. m. and 8 p. m. The federal forest service has developed a process for making paper from scrub pine which covers extensive areas on the southern Atlantic seaboard and is little used except for fuel.

ORPHEUM BILL A VERY GOOD ONE

One of the strongest bills the Orpheum has ever offered is the attraction this week. On the entire program there is perhaps one mediocre turn and that is so near-good that you shall be left to guess which it is. Miss Charlotte Parry with her lightning changes, not only in garb and general appearance but in voice and character is one of the most remarkable offerings the Orpheum has given us in many moons. Her vehicle, "The Comstock Mystery," is palpably written merely to give her a chance and yet is interesting and consistent. A novelty in a grand opera in tabloid, as it were, is given in "The Patriot." The plot awakens a great deal of enthusiasm and Miss Frederick, the star, was pleasing. The baritone voice of the heroine's father rather outshone here. Then there was Jarow, the humorous trickster with a brogue which he insisted was Irish. His side play is extremely funny. And World and Kingston come in with a lot of nonsense that keeps you entertained exceedingly well. John Keller dubs himself the Mississippi mocking bird. His whistling is clever. Brats is a decidedly clever little juggler and almost a study in perpetual motion. Marie Russell gives dainty songs and stories and her "192" is good.
