THE STRANGER WITHIN OUR GATES

"I farmed 400 acres of Umatilla Indian land two years ago and made enough money off of wheat to keep us for five years in comparative luxury," said John A. Crow at the Imperial today. "I want to say that Patten and me are just alike. There is nothing to my mind so safe to deal in as wheat. I am a regular wheat crank."

Wayne McBride, Payette, Idaho: "Payette and Weiser are going to be the best towns in Idaho within the next five years. We have more industries and a better country to draw from than any other section of Idaho. Say," said he, suddenly, "Idaho is entitled to a lot of credit. I wish there were some way to get that town into our state. Even the people of that section are heartily in favor of annexation."

"Down at Los Angeles," said Walter Crowell yesterday, "I paid $2.00 for a meal and just for an experiment, I went into a Portland restaurant last evening and ordered an exact counterpart of the meal and I cost me 16 cents. The same meal at Omaha, where I live, would have cost me 50 cents."

"Too many Oregon apples? Well, I reckon not," said Arthur Traynor of Salt Lake. "Why, no one ever gets too much of a good thing, and I want to tell you that there are no better apples in the world than are grown right here in little old Oregon. I'd rather have one of 'em than a dozen oranges. I eat one every morning before breakfast. Best medicine I ever took."

J. D. Stead, Dallas: "I don't just see where Dallas is entitled to the title of 'The Cherry City.' That belongs to The Dallas and no one horse town like Salem is going to steal our advertising, either."

"Yes, sir," said Samuel Lewis of Albany. "I wouldn't try to keep house without The Journal. I contend that The Journal is the only real, truthful, conservative newspaper in Oregon; or on the entire coast, for that matter."

"Speaking of honesty," said Bryan Bryant of Dayton, Wash., who is in the city today, "I slept at a down town hotel last night and left a $200 gold watch under my pillow until noon today. Then I thought of it. I phoned the clerk and he stated that the watch was in the safe, a chambermaid having found it."

Frank Rankin, Buffalo, N. Y.: "There is the best class of people in this town of any place I ever saw. Last Sunday my wife lost her watch on the street somewhere, and as soon as we discovered the loss I went and inserted notices in the papers. Within a couple of hours a man came to the hotel and handed the watch over to us. I offered him a good sized reward, but he wouldn't touch it. 'What do you know about that?' In Buffalo the finder would have taken the reward and then stolen the watch back."

"If all those new office buildings are filled it will be a surprise to me," said J. C. Vansant of Crescent City, Cal. "Gosh, this town is a hummer."

"I'm not so sure about the walnut industry for this country. Of course, there are some sections where they are and will be a success, but the least bit of frost fixes them. Guess we won't raise many of them in Umatilla county for a while yet," says F. C. Andrews of Zabo.

D. W. Brierly, Walla Walla, Wash.: "I had to come to Portland and roll a few cigarettes. It's scandalous the way our legislature is being conducted. I thought Oregon's long-suffering politicians were worst ever, but Washington's bunch of alleged lawmakers are knocking the spots off every precedent that has ever been established. Gimme a match, will you?"

JOKE MAY END IN C. H. MILLS' DEATH

(United Press Licensed Wire.)

Chico, Cal., July 2.—A practical joke may cost the life of C. H. Mills, a laborer, 25 years of age. Mills lies in a local hospital seriously wounded by a bullet from a revolver fired accidentally by Frank Brown, a bartender. Mills entered Brown's saloon late yesterday. Brown, it is said, playfully pointed a soda bottle at him, whereupon Mills, joining in the spirit of the joke, threw up his hands and said: "I give in. What do you want?" "Buy a drink," suggested Brown. Mills replied: "That bottle won't make me buy anything." Reaching beneath the counter, Brown is alleged to have drawn a revolver, saying: "Well, perhaps this will make you change your mind." In some manner the gun was discharged. Mills receiving the bullet in the groin. He was taken, unconscious, to the hospital where the doctors said the wound might prove fatal. Brown stated today that the whole affair was but horsplay, and that he had no idea the joke was loaded.

Reflections of a Bachelor.
From the New York Press.
The more bargains the less buy. A man likes to be generous about something so he can feel what a fine fellow he is to do it. The happier a man could make his wife by taking her on a trip with him, the more she oughtn't to expect it. The first time a girl is engaged she is afraid other men will try to flirt with her; the next time that they won't. When a woman says she has nothing fit to wear it's a sign she would be madder than a hornet if somebody else said it.
