SULZBERGER FUNERAL IS SET FOR FRIDAY

The funeral of J. N. Sulzberger, vice president and secretary of the Sulzberger & Schwarzschild company, who died in New York yesterday morning, will be held in New York at 8 o'clock tomorrow (Friday) morning.

PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Halberg of Los Angeles, Cal., are guests at the coast inn, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Peeler, of Portland. Mrs. Halberg is a daughter of the late J. E. Houston of Eugene. They are returning from Louisville, Ky., where Mr. Halberg attended the imperial council of the Mystic Shrine and was a leader in the Shrine band from California. Mr. Halberg and wife both are accomplished musicians. They will spend a week in Oregon visiting relatives and friends.

The feature of a new life saving apparatus for ships, the invention of a Scotchman, is a five foot gun, using compressed air, which shoots a line-carrying shot half a mile.

It was late that night before Mr. Opp retired. He sat in the open window of his bedroom and looked out upon the river. The cool night air and the quiet light of the stars calmed the turmoil in his brain. Gradually the colossal schemes and the towering ambitions gave way to an emotion to which the editor-elect was by no means a stranger. It was a little white-faced—

—these lines are from the pen of Alice Hegon Rice, the popular author of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," and will be found in her new book—her biggest success yet—

Mr. Opp 80 Cents—a delightful story, and one which will please any person—old or young.

WILD ANIMALS ARE GOOD ACTORS

Big Circus Combs the World for Features for Its Strange Exhibit.

The remarkable and complete collection of trained wild animal actors, comprising the most important specimens of zoology assembled in the wild beast performances which form an imposing part of the Hagenbeck-Wallace show, which exhibit here, has never been equaled in the history of the world.

Chief among these wonderful creatures is a hybrid lion-tiger, a magnificent animal of feline grace and terrible power, with all the peculiarities of both lion and tiger, but wearing the tiger's stripes upon the lion's skin.
