

OREGON WOMAN WAS VICTIM OF JOHNSON

Mrs. M. L. Jones, former wife of Captain F. B. Jones of this city, was the Oregon woman who married Madison, or Anderson. Mrs. Jones was located after the receipt of the San Francisco dispatches published below, at 860 Cook avenue. Mrs. Jones-Madson lived with the man who deceived her only one month. She admits giving him a little money. The lady was much surprised that The Journal had been able to find her.

WOMAN TALKS OF STRANGE EXPERIENCE

Mrs. M. L. Jones, 360 Cook avenue, Albina, who Christian C. Johnson, alias John Madson, mentioned in his confession at San Quentin, confirms the truth of that part of his confession. She married him in this city in 1906 and they lived happily for about one month. Then he disappeared without leaving even a farewell note. Prior to her marriage to Madson, Mrs. Jones was the divorced wife of Captain F. B. Jones, steamboat owner and wood and coal dealer of this city.

Mrs. Jones nearly became hysterical from laughter when she heard that Madson had confessed in his Portland experiences, thinking it good that the man had landed behind the bars for his many matrimonial ventures of which she knew nothing when she promised him her heart and hand some three years ago after a rather short acquaintance.

"I don't know much about Madson, but he was really a nice man, about 25 years of age about this time, I should judge, somewhat older than anybody else in a good-looking man, with winning ways and so on.

"He was a great man for money, and I spent a great deal on him. Anyway I spent more than he was worth. Yes, I spent too much, but would not care to say how much it cost.

"I took a divorce from Madson about a year ago and since then have not bothered myself about him at all. The last I heard of him prior to this was from friends of mine about two years ago, who wrote that he was living in Kenton, Tenn. They made no mention of him having married anyone by that time, and I didn't know that he was so much of a marrying man, with winning ways and so on.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Roseburg, Or., July 13.—L. This was five days before the fourth of July, and the place for seven days and seemed to be attentive, sober and industrious. On the morning of the eighth day there was no place to be found. By William E. Mahoney.
Los Angeles, July 13.—As this promise to be the most exciting day of the convention, so far as fraternal matters are concerned, because of the fact that officers of the grand lodge are to be chosen, Oregon Elks are spending their time between their headquarters and the convention, which is in full sway at the Temple auditorium, while Harry Le Mars, Iowa. They are the only candidates for the office of grand exalted ruler.

Fred C. Robinson, of Dubuque, Iowa, is in the race alone for the post of grand secretary; Ed Lynch, of New York, for grand trustee; Perry A. Clay for grand tiler, and Warren G. Sayre, of Wabash, Ind., for grand lecturer. The Elks are spending their time between their headquarters and the convention, which is in full sway at the Temple auditorium, while Harry Le Mars, Iowa. They are the only candidates for the office of grand exalted ruler.

Those uniforms Not Yet.
There is only one thing in which the Beaver state tribe has displayed any backwardness and that is in wearing their uniforms. Only a few have dared to wear theirs, but Gus Moser broke the ice yesterday when he donned the Oregonian.

REBELS HAVE TEHRAN IN POWER

Streets Strewn With Dead and Wounded After Desperate Battle With Shah's Cossacks—Holy War Among Moslems.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Teheran, Persia, July 13.—Strewn the streets of Teheran with dead and wounded men, the Persian rebels today entered the city and storming barricade after barricade, made their way towards the palace of the shah. The loyal Cossacks were powerless to check the advance of the overwhelming force of rebels and late today it appeared certain that the unhappy monarch would fall into the hands of his enemies.

For the first time in history a holy war was declared today against members of the Moslem faith, when the priests of the sacred college of Mujtihad issued a proclamation inciting the rebels to attack the palace. Mujtihad of the college were sent to the Persian frontier from Nejer, Turkey, to proclaim the war and the rebels were prompt to respond.

Advance on City.
Fired with fanatical fury, they advanced upon the city and soon the streets were running with blood. Looting homes and burning shops, the rebels threatened to wreck the city. Foreign residents retreated from their homes in the outskirts of the city and have taken refuge in the legations and about the palace. Fears for the safety of even the legations are entertained.

Barricade Streets.
When the rebels entered the city this morning from the north and west, the small force of Persian Cossacks remaining loyal was sent out to repulse them. Barricades were hastily thrown across the streets leading to the palace in the west and the rebels were unable to be checked. The Cossacks were greatly outnumbered by the attacking army and the shah's populace, seeing all was lost, fled to the palace. The shah's forces, rapidly took sides with the rebels. The barricades were swept away, one after another, with ease and the rebels made a steady advance toward the palace of Shah Mohammed Ali.

This invitation was extended to the people of Portland this morning by the Oregon Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition commission from its headquarters in the Hamilton building for Portland day, July 20. On that day the big fair is to be visited by many people of Portland and vicinity and it is safe to say it will be one of the biggest days of the exposition.

With the invitation from the members of the commission inviting the public at large, is one from the same officials requesting prominent society women of the city to stand in the receiving line with the wives of the officials of the Seattle fair at the reception to be given in the Oregon building from 3 o'clock till 5 o'clock in the afternoon of Portland day. This reception is to be attended by the governors of the states, the officials of the exposition and the officials of Oregon and Washington cities.

The fair is in its prime today," said W. H. Wehrung, president of the Oregon commission. "The grounds are at their best and the buildings have had just enough of the new work off of them to look substantial.

GAG REMOVED, SUTTON CASE

Judge Advocate General Says All Civilian Witnesses Can and Will Be Called—Inquiry Opens Next Monday—Father of Lieutenant Talks of Case.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.)
Washington, July 13.—The judge advocate general of the navy said today that the report of the possible postponement of the Sutton inquiry was not true.

Mrs. Sutton is looking after the case and I have not heard from her for 10 days, said Mr. Sutton, when seen at the Southern Pacific freight house, where he is foreman. "Mrs. Sutton has been cast for 11 months and in that time detectives have been at work on the case with results that evidently lead her to believe that the dream she had shortly after the young man's death was more than a dream. What evidence has been gathered I cannot say beyond what I have read in the newspapers, but the fact that Mrs. Sutton is anxious for a reopening of the case leads me to believe it must point quite conclusively to something else than suicide.

SAMMIS CAMPAIGN A FORLORN HOPE

Los Angeles, July 13.—The first disappointment of J. U. Sammis of Iowa, candidate for exalted ruler of the Elks, came with the announcement of the absence of Charles E. Pickett, Sammis' chief supporter. Nearly every official of the grand lodge is against the election of Sammis and many Sammis men have expressed the conviction that the election of the Iowa man would surprise them, although they are not abandoning their work in his behalf.

Gerry Herrmann, of Cincinnati, Sammis' opponent, will draw the support of the eastern delegations and a goodly proportion of the northern and southern membership. The west, with the exception possibly of California, will go for Sammis, but it is thought probable that the western strength will pull him through. Approximately 1150 ballots will be cast and of these Herrmann's supporters are claiming 536.

The morning session began at 10 o'clock with the nominating speeches.
