

THE WHEAT MARKET IS BEING OFFERED

Export Grade From 1909
Wheat Quoted at Highest Opening Price.

TODAY'S WHOLESALE MARKETS.
New flour opens high.
Wheat market is very scarce.
Butter market shows scarcity.
Cheese market may be high.
Raspberries market is down.
Oranges are very scarce.

Highest Price for New Flour.
New flour is opening at the highest prices ever recorded for first shipments. While export grade values have only been named as yet, they indicate quite clearly where the patents will stand. Some new flour for August-September delivery is being offered to the Orient at $4.25 a barrel, so far as known at this time. The price for the new wheat has been closed. The Orient has plenty of old flour remaining for export, and therefore is rather independent of millers on this side. However, they intimate that values that range from $4.25 to $4.50 would be acceptable for some liberal supplies. These, however, are not acceptable to millers because of the high price asked for new wheat.

Dollar Deliveries Being Made.
Some new wheat is coming to interior mills, according to special reports received today by The Journal. Practically all of the dollar deliveries were contracted early around $1 a bushel for wheat, and millers are taking what they can get. It is believed that the price is too high.

It is unlikely, therefore, that there will be any material business in the new wheat market until after exporters get a line on conditions abroad. The price of wheat is still a matter of speculation, and what prices shall rule in the market the present season because it will be the foreign market that will affect values everywhere.

Argentina is a Big Factor.
Argentina promises to have more influence upon the world's wheat market than ever the present season. News from the South American republic is that there are eagerly waiting to be shipped by millers, exporters and producers alike. Latest reports from there state that the drought is continued, and this works against the crop. It is an aid to the price.

New barley is being offered in small lots by interior mills at prices that are so small that quotations are scarcely obtainable.

Watermelon Fight Is On.
There promises to be a most interesting fight in this market over watermelons during the present and coming week. One southern shipper who has an offer to contract the season's crop, and who is offering $1.50 a bushel, is being opposed by another who is offering $1.25 a bushel.

The fruit, while a commission firm is endeavoring to give the contract to the latter, the former is offering $1.50 a bushel, and the latter is offering $1.25 a bushel. Prices were dropped $1.50 a bushel today in addition to a similar decline yesterday.

Loganberries Very Scarce.
Great scarcity is noted in local supplies of loganberries, and sales along Front street are being made as high as $1.50 a crate. The ordinary fruit ranges around $1.25 and $1.35.

Butter Market Shows Scarcity.
A great scarcity is noted in supplies of butter, and local makers report decreasing supplies and state that there will likely be an advance in value in the near future.

Eggs are Scarce.
Eggs are scarce, but values are unchanged between $2 and $2.50.

Chicken Market Shows Trade.
Trade in fish is very light and the scant supplies are fully liberal enough to supply all wants at present prices.

Oranges are Scarce.
Oranges are scarce, but values are unchanged between $2 and $2.50.
