

LAST DAYS OF CHAUTAUQUA ARE MAGNET DRAWING VAS THRONG

Pleasant Weather Leads Many People to Enjoy Programs at Park.

While Portland was sweltering in the heat today, those who were able to escape themselves to Gladstone Park were enjoying the cool and delicious shade of the great oaks, and were comfortably listening to delicious music, fine lectures or participating in the Bohemian society that gives the touch of good fellowship to these Chautauquas gatherings.

Every one seems to realize that the season is on its home stretch, and are accordingly taking deeper and more earnest interest in their classes, work, every one is eager to get the full measure of what is being offered to them by the various instructors, and more than once was the lament heard, "I was only beginning today instead of drawing to a close."

Comparison Hard to Make.
A comparison of the classes from the standpoint of merit could hardly be made. Some are much more largely attended than others, but this is neither a reflection upon the teacher or attendants, but on account of the particular subject touching more people, or in other words, it's more popular.

But here we discover the sophistry of our reasoning for whoever heard of Bible or bugs being popular? Yet Dr. Goben's Bible class and Professor Switzer's "bug class" are the two most largely attended on the grounds, but with music and elocution running close second.

Dr. Foulke, who was to have spoken at the Forum on "Character Crisis" this morning was not present, having had to go away on account of ill health, and his place was ably supplied by Professor Switzer, who carried his class over with him and gave his talk on the "Character Crisis" in the afternoon.

Will Change Program.
The next three lessons will be of another nature, tomorrow being on the conservation of the forest, and there is no doubt but the lecturer will show, before he gets through with it, that there is a connection between the conservation of our forests and pure and sanitary conditions of life.

Rev. Mr. Marcotte of Portland gave a fine talk, also at the Forum, on Brownings. As usual Mrs. Miller's class in domestic science was full to overflowing, and everybody with pencil and paper, to take down every little detail, for it is in these minute details, getting exact proportions, that much of the success of the dainties Mrs. Miller is demonstrating is attained. There still remain two of these demonstrations when such foods will be prepared as the class suggests or requests.

Today Is Music Day.
Today is preeminently music day, though it has not been so designated in the program. The afternoon program will be filled entirely by the Knickerbocker quartet. So far these singers have struck the popular fancy and made good on every occasion in which they have appeared.

Too much praise cannot be given the Chemawa Indian band, which has given two concerts daily since the opening of the season. The Indian boys have added much to their popularity both on and off the platform. Their "Indian Dance," which is so often the closing number of their concert, is in great demand, and if the audience is slow in collecting, they come pouring in from every direction the moment the first bar of this weird but stirring melody reaches them. It is certainly a drawing card.

The American Peasant.
Tonight Dr. Matt Hughes, of California, is to be the speaker. His subject is "The American Peasant." This is one of the greatest lectures on the program. Certainly no lecture in the course of the season is more recommended. He is called "the live wire" from his quick, sharp and brilliant powers. He is a man of an unusual command of language and uses it to effect.

Yesterday was the warmest day so far of the Chautauqua season, and while the thermometer kept climbing, more and more were the comfortable resources of Gladstone park put to the test, such as shade, shelter and water. The latter is particularly satisfactory and more so than ever before.

Bain Talks Campers.
This is due entirely to the rain in the beginning, for more space had been reserved and more tents put up the day before the opening than on any previous year.

At the Forum yesterday Dr. Fletcher Holman, of Willamette university, made a decided impression in his lecture, "The Joy of Boys."

The address of the afternoon was given by Hon. Albert McLean, president of the Washington commission for exposition. His subject, "The Village Statesman," gave him away to attack many of our government and private institutions, and he certainly handled them without gloves.

Cool Comfort in Hot Weather.
One can feel cool and well-fed, yet full of energy and "go" when the hot weather diet is selected with reason.

Flesh foods and fatty substances generate bodily heat. When one is, so to speak, "between two fires," the one inside—combustion (digestion) of food—and the other a blazing sun outside, it's small wonder humanity is uncomfortable and unhappy.

In hot weather some attention should be given to food. Try a breakfast of Grape-Nuts and Cream.

Some fruit, Soft-boiled eggs, Slice of crisp toast, Cup of well-made Postum.

Such a meal keeps the blood cool and nourishes body and brain—

Dr. Matt S. Hughes.

His conclusions were that the hope of the nation lies in the private individual, the unselfish, honest village statesman who makes use of his prerogative as an American citizen to keep things pure and upright.

Talks Like Lawyer.
Mr. McLean has a strong and powerful voice and each word came with the emphasis of a lawyer trying to impress a jury.

At the close of the regular program and under the auspices of the Visiting Nurses association Dr. Pierce gave a talk on the proper care of tubercular patients at home. Last night Mr. Flowers appeared for the last time this season in a recital. He was accompanied by the Misses Keller. This trio has done splendid work at this year's Chautauqua and has grown more popular with each appearance, and it is with deep regret its engagement is drawing to a close.

As during the entire season, the two tents maintained by the club women have been the social centers. With the exception of Dr. Chapman's literature class that convenes in the morning in the Federation tent, there are no classes in these tents, which prove to be a pleasant retreat for the women to his themselves to when programs and class work become too strenuous, and a bit of fun or gossip is to be exchanged.

A rise in temperature and a corresponding rise in enthusiasm followed the genial sunshine into the tent where the write ribboners and their friends began gathering before 6 o'clock. Mrs. Margaret Houston was among the first to arrive, bringing a bushel of red roses, and when placed among the bank of fresh greenery that is conspicuously piled in front of the headquarters harmonized with the fresh decorations.

A new motto, "Opportunity Is the Voice of God," appeared to attract the 500.

Men and women stop to read the placard, "A Mile of Pennies to Make Oregon Dry, Give!" Involuntarily out comes the pocket book and pennies, of ten the nickel is dropped in. One gentleman remarked: "I have a boy. I am glad to help."

Miss Hilda Brant, the winner of a silver and a gold medal in the W. C. T. U. contests, was invited and gave "The Rumseller's Conversion" at the opening of the forum.

Mrs. Houston, state superintendent of the department of medical contests, conducted the conference on that division of the work at 3:30. Mrs. Monroe was hostess of the day.

THE STRANGER WITHIN OUR GATES
"Apropos of nothing," said Frank Black at the Imperial. "I am going to prove some of these days that the American Indian originated from the Hebrew race. This is my chiefest ambition in life and some day I expect to surprise people with some of my disclosures." Mr. Black lives in Mt. Airy, Iowa, and is returning to his home from the A.-Y.-P. exposition.

Miss Fern Gaultrey, Macon, Ga.: "I believe that the railroad officials in the west are a great deal more courteous and ladies than they are in the south, and I have traveled a great deal in my country. Outside of your city park you have not much to brag of in the way of parks. Pueblo is smaller than Portland, but we can give you pointers. You don't know how the parks are appreciated till after you have 'em."

"Why is it that Portland is rarely ever mentioned in the east?" inquired Charles Harding of Cincinnati, at the Portland today. "Seattle is known the world over, but Portland is almost unknown. Why is it?"

"Pueblo has finer parks than Portland," is the statement of Louis DeBeque, Pueblo, Colo., at the Perkins. "Outside of your city park you have not much to brag of in the way of parks. Pueblo is smaller than Portland, but we can give you pointers. You don't know how the parks are appreciated till after you have 'em."

Ray C. Snow, Blackwell, Oklahoma: "You can't buy whiskey in Oklahoma, and if you carry a bottle of it on the train while passing through the state you will be arrested and it will cost you no end of trouble and several dollars in money. They are sure strict down our way."

"I can't live in the east," said Brann Dekker, who has returned to Oregon from Delta, Del. "After one gets a taste of the mountain he loses all respect for the eastern climate and feels

WENT TO VISIT; NOT SEEN SINCE
E. A. Harpole, a young man from eastern Oregon who has been hanging a string of race horses at the Rose City track, has disappeared since last Saturday night and as his father, J. S.

Harpole of Condon, Or., states that he had a large sum of money with him at the time of his disappearance, foul play is thought to account for the sudden dropping out of sight of the young man. J. S. Harpole states that he arrived here on Saturday night, when he was met by his son, a young man 21 years of age. The young man showed a large sum of money, several hundred dollars in all, and remarked that he was going out with a rich widow that evening and "wanted to make a flash." He left his father with the understanding that he was to meet him at the track Sunday morning but failed to appear. He had been drinking a trifle and went to a bath house with a jockey and that is the last known of him. The jockey appeared at the track on Sunday and said he did not see Harpole after they went in to the baths. He stated that the young man was not drunk.

Harpole was married but had been divorced and his father believes that he had fallen into bad company and possibly met with foul play. The young man is well to do, owning considerable property at Condon. Mr. Harpole has reported the matter to the police and asks that every effort be made to locate his son.

The missing man is described as being 32 years of age, 5 feet 10 inches tall, well built, weighing 185 pounds, well dressed and wearing a brown suit and brown hat and having hazel eyes and light hair.
