Buried Under Collapsing Platform. As a result of the collapse of a platform in a stone quarry near Rainier, Wash., three men were seriously injured and are now being cared for at the Good Samaritan hospital. The men are Harry Littlefield, 43 Hoyt street, Portland, and O. R. Snibley and Harry Berkshire of Yale, Wash. The men were engaged in raising some heavy timbers to the platform and the weight of the timbers caused the supports of the platform to give way, throwing all three to the ground 20 feet below and burying all under a mass of debris. Berkshire suffered a deep gash in his side as well as a broken ankle. Snibley's right arm was also badly injured, suffering fractures of the right wrist, possible fractures of several ribs and it is thought internal injuries. Snibley was injured about the face and head.

McCoy has a value placed on a strip of land through the defendant's tract at Hood River required for the right-of-way of a ditch. The ditch was built some time ago, but the irrigation company and McCoy have never been able to get an agreement to the value of the land covered by the ditch. McCoy declares the ditch interferes with prospects of logging on the hill.

Wheeler, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League who has been connected with the organization continuously since 1914. HOSPITAL, ALSO JAIL NEXT YEAR

Mayor Simon Believes Two Needed Buildings Can Soon Be Built.

Mayor Simon believes that the new city jail and home for the municipal court can be erected within the coming year, and that it will not be necessary to wait for funds from next year. He also hopes that this may be done without the issue of bonds for the new garbage crematory, but says that bonds will be issued if necessary.

The mayor is anxious to hasten both the crematory and the jail, which he regards as necessities too long neglected. Bonds to the amount of $250,000 have been authorized for the crematory, but the mayor thinks they may not be needed, but if the building of a city jail and purchase of site are undertaken at once, this will draw heavily from the funds which might otherwise have been used for the crematory, and may make it necessary to issue a portion of the bonds. The estimated cost of the crematory is $75,000.

Scott Brooke offers to sell to the city 100x100 feet at the southeast corner of here to California Superintendent across the street from the city hall, for $45,000, and Mayor Simon is favorably disposed to accept the offer for the city hall. He thinks the price reasonable and will take up the question with the council committee on health and police with a suggestion that the property be purchased.

There are four old frame houses on the property. The mayor likes the location because it is close to the city hall and courthouse and is also a good site for an emergency hospital. J. A. Taylor has made a supplementary offer as to the 35x25 feet he controls adjoining the present city jail, which he has offered to sell to the city for $50,000. His new proposition is to exchange this land for a 30 year lease of the city's wharf property at the foot of Stark street. He agrees to at once construct a concrete and steel dock to cost about $75,000, all permanent improvements to revert to the city at the end of the 30 years. He also agrees to handle fuel and building materials at the dock, the stock which to the consumer will not be controlled by a trust or combine.

NEW CITY ENGINEER TAKES HIS OFFICE

J. W. Morris became city engineer this morning, an acceptance of the registration of D. W. Taylor and the appointment of Mr. Morris being filed by Mayor Simon with the auditor. This was in accordance with an arrangement made at the first of the month, that J. W. Morris should stay in office until July 16. Engineer Morris is spending his first day in an inspection of the bridge on East Twenty-eighth street. He has been accompanying Mr. Taylor in the inspection of the Brooklyn sewer, and becoming familiar with the ground he must cover, for the last two weeks.

A brindle steer chase is costing a lot of money in Clatsop county.

LUMBERMEN VISIT THE ROSE CITY

Prominent Party From East Will Spend Few Hours in Portland.

Portland's prominent lumbermen will be busy tomorrow entertaining a party of lumbermen and their wives from the National Lumber Manufacturers' association convention at Seattle this week. The party numbers 44 and is composed of some of the largest lumbermen in the country.

W. B. McKay, of the North Pacific Lumber company, is chairman of the entertaining committee of the Oregon & Washington Lumber Manufacturers' association, under whose auspices the visitors will be entertained, and the party will be met at the depot at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning by this committee including L. J. Wentworth, of the Portland Lumber company; F. C. Knapp, Peninsular Lumber company; A. C. Dixon, Booth-Kelley Lumber company, and George B. Hammond of the Hammond Lumber company, and taken in automobiles to their respective hotels. At noon the party will be tendered a luncheon at the Commercial club by members of the Oregon & Washington association and in the afternoon they will be given an automobile ride through the city.

The banquet planned for the evening has been abandoned owing to the fact that many of the visitors have concluded to start for home early in the evening.

In view of the visit of these prominent delegates and the fact that a large number of lumber manufacturers intend leaving for Seattle to attend the loggers' convention to be held there beginning Monday, the regular monthly meeting of the association booked for tomorrow afternoon has been postponed a month.

It was intended to give the visiting lumbermen a steamboat ride down the river to one of the large logging camps on the Columbia and then to take them through one of the sawmills here but lack of time now prevents this and so the automobile ride and luncheon was arranged instead.

Excursion.
