SENSATIONAL CHARGES ARE PROBABLE

Suit Filed by ex-Governor Grover Against the Hawthorne Estate May Be Interesting—Whitney Boise Repudiated.

Trial of the civil action filed in circuit court yesterday by ex-Governor Grover and his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Grover, against Mrs. Rachel L. Hawthorne and others for property valued at more than $200,000, promises developments of a startling nature.

Just as a touch of what may follow, Mrs. Hawthorne, widow of the late Dr. Hawthorne, today made sensational accusations against Whitney Boise, well known attorney of Portland, and her son-in-law, and renounced him.

"Whitney Boise has no connection with the Hawthorne estate, or with my family, other than that he is the husband of my daughter," declared Mrs. Hawthorne.

Investigation into the deeds and legal instruments over which the Grover suit is brought, has led a number to believe the plaintiffs have little standing.

Goes Into Old History.

Back into the history of 1900 goes the story of the tangle involving 46 acres of land lying in the rear of the City park. At that time ex-Governor and Elizabeth Grover owned an undivided one half of the section, then consisting of about 92 acres. Mrs. Hawthorne held title to one fourth and the remaining one fourth was owned by a man named Kineth.

"Mr. Grover, during the year 1900," said Mrs. Hawthorne today, "borrowed $30,000 on the property with which, so he said, to improve it. Later, when the times became hard and money was scarce, foreclosure was threatened, and at a meeting of Mr. Grover, Mr. Kineth and myself, I agreed to pay the debt and interest and to allow Mr. Grover an additional $5000 provided he and Mr. Kineth would transfer their right in the property to me.

"This was agreed to. Mr. Kineth gave me an absolute deed to his one fourth and Mr. Grover an absolute deed to his one half interest. Also an agreement was drawn up wherein I agreed to pay Mr. Grover the sum of $100 monthly for a period of 50 months. Also it was agreed that he should have the right to repurchase the property within a period of three years."

Deed Is Plainly Worded.

The absolute deed, on file at the office of the Hawthorne estate, 323 Worcester building, is plain in its wording. It states specifically that it shall not be construed by any court of law to mean a mortgage and, according to its own wording, is distinctly an absolute deed to the property. It is signed with the names of Lafayette Grover and Elizabeth Grover.

The agreement is clear in its meaning. According to it, Lafayette Grover and Elizabeth Grover convey their undivided one half of the property to Rachel L. Hawthorne in consideration of $5000 to be paid in 50 monthly installments, the taking up of the mortgage held by the German Savings & Loan society, by Mrs. Hawthorne. It is further agreed, according to the instrument on file, that Mr. Grover be allowed to rebuy the property, as he would any other in which he had no prior interest, within a term of three years. Receipts showing that Mr. Grover received several of the payments are on file.

"Not only did I pay ex-Governor Grover the $5000 promised," said Mrs. Hawthorne, "but because I knew he was pressed for money I continued paying him from $100 to $150 monthly for some time afterward."

Considered It Her Land.

"I have always considered that property all our own," she said, "and never feared that we might have legal trouble over it. My understanding has always been clear that it belonged to the estate without the question of a doubt. I have often been assured that the title was clear."

Mr. Grover's contention is that his understanding of the transaction of 1900 was that he was merely giving a mortgage, on the one half and not conveying an absolute deed.

The property, as explained by Mrs. Hawthorne, was formerly her own and in no way connected with the estate. Some time ago she conveyed the entire section to the estate.

"Many years ago I sold some personal property belonging to me and my daughters for $24,000," declared Mrs. Hawthorne. "My share was $12,000, and with this sum I purchased the one fourth interest in the property back of the City park. Later I turned it into the estate to be handled."

"On the face of it the suit is foolish," asserted George Black, one of those in charge of the handling of the Hawthorne estate, today. "We can easily prove that the title of the estate to the property is clear. We have every legal proof necessary."

Mrs. Hawthorne has publicly renounced her son-in-law, Whitney L. Boise. Mr. Boise was formerly attorney for Mrs. Hawthorne and sensational charges having to do with the mishandling and appropriation of property and funds are made against him by the widow and members of the family.

FLYNN FACES ANOTHER ARREST

Strong Suspicion Develops Against Youth Who Was With Margaret Cuvreau When She Met Death on Bay at Tacoma Sunday.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Tacoma, Wash., July 30.—The belief of the parents of Margaret Cuvreau, that the coroner's jury which acquitted John Flynn of blame for the death of their daughter by no means sifted all the facts to get at the bottom of the story, is now shared by an increasing number of persons, who have been involved in investigation of the case.

Though Flynn is today at liberty, he is practically under arrest, for his movements are constantly reported to Captain of City Detectives John Fitzgerald, who, while asserting his belief in the innocence of Flynn, has never ceased to follow the case and is now engaged in an active inquiry, which has caused Flynn to retain counsel.

The death certificate filed by Coroner G. D. Shaver yesterday is significant of his own opinion as well as of that of others. It reads: "Death caused by drowning, whether accidental or suicidal unknown." The coroner in his official return thus ignores the verdict of the inquest. The language of the certificate he admits to be his own.

Coroner Not Satisfied.

"I think the certificate explains itself," he said today in answer to an inquiry. "I am not fully satisfied that the girl's death was accidental."

Even stronger was the statement made today by Deputy Prosecutor Ralph Woods: "The developments of the past day have caused me to regard John Flynn's story with increasing suspicion," said Mr. Woods. "The case certainly merits a mort detailed investigation than was given it by the coroner's jury."

The attitude of the family of the dead girl, which during the inquest was distinctly favorable to Flynn, has had much to do with the renewed activity of the county and city officials. The mother in particular now freely expresses her skepticism in regard to Flynn's story.

Peculiar Circumstances Recalled.

"I will not accuse John Flynn of this crime," said Mrs. Cuvreau this morning, "but I do demand that every possible measure be taken to find out how my daughter met her death.

"I do not believe that the drowning was accidental, entirely. There are too many circumstances which point to a contrary conclusion. Margaret was a girl who was practically raised on and in the water. She had handled boats of all kinds in all sorts of weather and I never knew her to lose her head in an emergency. Margaret would not have left the boat. She was not a strong swimmer, but could handle herself well enough in the water to keep afloat.

"It is not true, as Flynn states, that he asked others of the party to go out in the boat at the time. On the contrary, my nephew, W. H. Burr, was on the beach and expected to go, but Flynn did not ask him. Margaret's cousin, Irene Eggers, also came down to the boat expecting to go with them, but Flynn jumped in and pushed the boat away from the shore, leaving her standing there."

This is not the only point in which Mrs. Cuvreau today refuted the story told by Flynn.

Flynn's Story Contradicted.

When questioned last night regarding the torn condition of Margaret's underclothing the young man said: "I know nothing about that. I did, however, loosen her clothing at the waist and neck after getting her out of the water in the hope of reviving her. I wanted to testify to this at the inquest, but did not get the opportunity."

In her statement today Mrs. Cuvreau said: "Neither Margaret's collar nor her belt were disturbed. There was a slight tear in the collar, but it had not been loosened."

In regard to the torn undergarment which has played an important part in the case, the mother says: "The garment was a new one, made of heavy flannel this spring, and it could not have been torn in that manner accidentally. It had no breaks nor rips in it that morning.

"Margaret often told me that she would fight to her death for her honor. There is much to make me believe that is what she did."

Two parties of officers visited the scene of the tragedy yesterday. In the first were Deputy Prosecutor Woods, Deputy Sheriff Stenso and Coroner Shaver. In the second were Chief of Detectives Fitzgerald, Detective Wiley, Flynn himself and Frank Carroll, his attorney.

While both parties are reticent as to the result of these investigations, it is known that they asked many questions of persons living or camping near the place as to the conditions of the water and the tides.

Too Shallow to Drown.

Soundings were also taken and tide tables examined to verify the statement made, by several persons that there was not enough water at the spot where Flynn says the tragedy occurred to have drowned anyone. Several are known to have stated that the water was not rough, and that, in fact, in that sheltered cove it never is sufficiently rough to make boating hazardous.

Another party went to the scene this afternoon, both Flynn and his attorney again being taken along. In the party in addition were Coroner Shaver, Detectives Fitzgerald ad Wiley and Deputy Prosecutor Ralph Woods.

SWARM INTO CITY BY HARRIMAN LINES

Passenger traffic being handled locally by Harriman lines is four times greater than normal and passes all previous records, Charles W. Stinger, city ticket agent of the O. R. & N., announced this morning.

"Every outgoing or incoming train over our lines is crowded," Mr. Stinger said. "Each train carries two to four extra sleepers. I thought three weeks ago that the maximum traffic for the year had been reached, but the number of passengers we are handling has increased every day since, until now my opinion is the increase will be steady until the early autumn.

"Our passenger traffic exceeds greatly (speaking of long distance travel) that of the Lewis and Clark exposition and is far ahead of the great number that came here five years ago."

KILBURN SIGHTS HULL OF VESSEL

(United Press Leased Wire.)

San Francisco, July 30. — Reporting that the hull of a vessel floating off the coast of Washington was sighted by a coaster five days ago by the officers of the E. H. Kilburn, which arrived today, have revived speculation as to the probable fate of the British vessel Brodick Castle and of the Grayling, both of which sailed from northern ports several months ago and have not been sighted nor heard of since.

Among shipping men it is generally believed that the Washington derelict is the Grayling, which has already been despaired of. The Grayling was manned by 10 men and sailed from Puget sound.

The Brodick Castle sailed from Portland, and it is feared she was visited by the same misfortune which the Grayling and her crew are supposed to have suffered.

HEAD OF LETTUCE LOOKS LIKE CABBAGE

A head of lettuce nearly two feet across, looking like a cabbage and weighing 4¼ pounds has been placed on exhibition with Colonel Miller at the Chamber of Commerce. It was raised by E. Sexton, who lives in Sellwood. It is considered by Colonel Miller, who has charge of the agricultural exhibit of the chamber, as one of the best evidences he has ever secured of the class of gardening that may be done within the city limits.

GLAD HAND FOR VISITING JAPS

Chamber of Commerce Votes to Raise Funds to Kill the Fatted Calf.

When Japan's leading business men arrive in Portland September 8, they will find elaborate and expensive entertainment prepared by the chamber of commerce awaiting them. At a meeting of trustees of the chamber held yesterday afternoon a unanimous vote was taken to raise funds sufficient to entertain the oriental guests in the proper style.

When representatives of Pacific coast commercial organizations journeyed to Japan the people of the flowery kingdom spent $250,000 for entertainment and the trip was made a continual round of pleasure. Members of the Portland chamber of commerce feel that the courtesy should be reciprocated.

One of the principal features of entertainment accorded the Japs will be a boating trip up the Columbia. For this purpose, J. P. O'Brien, vice president of the O. R. N. has tendered the free use of the Harvest Queen for the day.

Preliminary to sending a business delegation of leading business men to the Pacific coast the Chinese government has invited representatives of coast commercial bodies to visit China next year. This invitation was read at the meeting yesterday afternoon and will probably be accepted.

The appointment of a delegate to the first National Conservation congress meeting in the auditorium of the A.-Y.-P. exposition August 26-28 was authorized.

A resolution to boom attendance at the Oregon-Idaho Irrigation congress to be held at Marshfield August 20-21 was adopted.

A request from the Argentine Republic to participate in the exhibition which that country will hold in 1910 was presented and an order entered that all exhibits from Oregon be received by the chamber of commerce and sent on to the exhibition management.

The meeting yesterday afternoon brought forth evidence of great growth in the chamber of commerce, both in numbers and influence. The names of 28 new members wer received and approved.

NO CONSPIRACY TO ADVANCE PRICES

In a letter to The Journal the Multnomah Lumber & Box company disclaims any knowledge of or connection with the reported plan for the establishment in this city of a wholesale selling agency for lumber. Officers of the company declare that they are working independently of other concerns and do not propose to enter into any scheme for advancing prices. Said one of them:

"The report that our company is a party to this plan does us a great injustice, as it is a hard matter to tell just what effect this will have on our trade. It might lead customers to suppose that we are conspiring to advance prices, while on the contrary we are working independently and purpose doing so at all times in the future."

AGREE ON JOINT PASSENGER RATE

Astoria & Columbia River to Sell Through Tickets Via North Bank.

A joint passenger tariff between the North Bank railroad and the Astoria & Columbia River is now being prepared. The tariff will be published August 1, Ralph H. Jenkins, assistant general freight and passenger agent of the North Bank, announced this morning, and it will go into effect after having been submitted to the railway commission September 15. The joint tariff provides for the sale of through tickets on the line of the A. & C. R. to Spokane or Seattle and also for the transfer of passengers and freight between depots.

It is the first arrangement of the kind ever completed between the allied roads. Mr. Jenkins also stated that excursion tickets, both the six months limit and those run on Saturday and Sunday, would be sold through from points on the S. P. & S. L. to the sea.

OREGON'S SHARE WILL WATER VAST ACREAGE

ready on the lands in the vicinity of the irrigation projects now under way.

Don't Use the Water.

"They don't use the water when they get it," he declared. "Instead of planting crops, they hold it for future sale. Meanwhile the settlers just beyond the irrigated area are clamoring for water, and will not be silenced. The government is reclaiming these arid lands not for speculators, but for home builders. We want to do our work thoroughly as we go, make each irrigating system self-supporting before we go on to the next. We desire to cover the ground, not irrigate in spots.

"No one not connected with the service can realize the tremendous task that confronts us. We are constantly between two fires, the people and our duties.

"The people much of the time are unreasonable. They want us to spend more money than we have. During the past five years something like $52,000,000 has been spent in reclamation, yet every dollar spent invites the use of two more.

End Not in Sight.

"No one can see the end of our work. We can't see the end of it ourselves. If we had many times more money to spend than we have we could find a place for all of it. As a matter of fact, by working night and day we have done just twice as much in the past two years as we expected to.

"Our work decands a broad sympathetic tolerance and understanding of human nature. We are serving the people, not ourselves, and the people of Oregon can rest assured that the government's policy in reclamation will be for their benefit."

The work being done by Fred Dennett, head of the general land office, closely relates to the development of interior Oregon.

"My greatest concern just now is to dispose as rapidly as possible of all the Oregon land fraud cases that have been a sore spot many years both to the people of Oregon and the government," Mr. Dennett said while at the Hotel Oregon this morning.

"But I am ready," he continued, "to promise that those cases will be disposed of very soon. Such as we cannot gather conclusive evidence against will be dismissed. At the same time I want to emphasize the point that my office has nothing whatever to do with the department of justice. Special Agent Christianson has been authorized by me to proceed with those cases and wind them up. Mr. Christianson has been doing splendid work in Oregon and his reports show me that he has the situation completely in hand."

Employ all Surveyors.

Mr. Dennett conferred today with the surveyor general regarding a radical change in the plan for making government surveys.

"My plan is to take all the work of surveying out of the hands of contractors and to directly employ all our surveyors. This is in line with the general plan to complete all government surveys. The surveys that remain to be made are the most difficult of all. The plains have been finished and the ragged edges of the mountains remain.

"Under the contract system the results were most unsatisfactory. The surveys are, many of them, so inaccurate that the government is now resurveying great areas at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars. The contractors employed went into the business for the money they could make out of the job. As a matter of fact, in many cases the surveys were finished by the bondsmen of those contractors. But at the present time we face no question of fraudulent surveys. There were many of this nature before the examination system was put in force, but none since. We simply find that when we employ our surveyors direct we get this very important work permanently done, without need of revision or correction, and following my conference with the surveyor general here I shall present the matter before congress with th certain hope of having the system changed."

Will Make Biggest Sale.

Mr. Dennett also announced that within a year the government will make its biggest timber sale. It consists of 550,000,000 feet of yellow pine near Gass Lake in Northern Minnesota and will be sold for the benefit of the Chippewa Indians. This timber would have been sold at auction at once had the tariff been completed and the market been settled, Mr. Dennett said.

Continuing his investigation of timber matters, Mr. Dennett will go on to San Francisco, thence to Denver, Cheyenne and back to Washington.

"While in Portland last night Secretary Ballinger expressed to me his satisfaction with the trip he has just completed through eastern Oregon and Idaho," D. C. Henry, consulting engineer of the government reclamation service said this morning. "While in that country he visited the Umatilla, Malheur, Boise and Minadoka projects. He said it was one of the hardest trips he ever undertook, involving travel night and day, and life under all sorts of conditions.

Comes Back Monday.

"I think he wanted to return to Seattle for the purpose of resting up a little in his own home before he returns to Portland for Monday's apportionment meeting, when he will have the final decision as to the amounts which will be received by various agents."

Beside Monday's meeting Mr. Ballinger and other reclamation agents will be entertained at a luncheon by the Commercial club. Mr. Ballinger will make a short address immediately following the luncheon.

Delayed by an unexpected pressure of business, John D. Porter, senior member of the firm of Porter Bros., who are building a railroad in opposition to the Harriman interests up Deschutes canyon, did not leave Portland last night as was announced.

Before leaving for Deschutes this morning he declared emphatically that a statement published in a local morning paper that options on the land blocking the way of Harriman men to their camps only had been secured by the firm, to be untrue.

"We secured the land in the regular way and we have it to hold," Mr. Porter declared. "We do not intend to block Harriman from building a railroad. All that we have done is merely to protect our rights, for we are going to build a railroad, too."

HAS HERMANN GOT THE BUG ONCE MORE?

"Binger Hermann, congressional candidate." It sounds natural and it may be true.

Up from the south, out of the orchards and the fields of Douglas county, comes the rumor, more or less insistent, that Mr. Hermann is thinking of entering into the political arena once more and trying to unseat Congressman Hawley, who is now, more or less permanently, in the saddle.

According to the story, Mr. Hermann has been building his political fences for some time and has about made up his mind to get back into the political harness if it is possible for him to do so. He has confided his heart's desire to some of his very close friends, so it is said, and these friends have been out cultivating the ground for the seed of his candidacy.

These culturists, so it is said, have found evidence of a great demand that Mr. Hermann once more place himself on the altar of public duty and have been assured of much support in certain high quarters should the veteran sniff the battle smoke to such an extent that he would really get out on the field.

Mr. Hermann himself, however, as is usual, displays becoming modesty in regard to his possible candidacy.

"The rumor that I am contemplating becoming a candidate for congress" he said at Roseburg this morning, "has been incorrectly reported."

So there you are. Some of his close friends say he is. He says he isn't. Only the passage of time and the approach of election will definitely tell.

S.S.S. THE CURE FOR SCROFULA

The usual symptoms of Scrofula are enlarged glands of the neck, sores and ulcers on the body, skin affections, catarrhal troubles, weak eyes, and general poor health. The inherited poison, transmitted through the blood, pollutes and weakens this fluid, and in place of its nutritive qualities fills the circulation with scrofulous matter, which saps the vitality of the entire system. Thousands of children, born with a scrofulous taint, have spent their childhood in constant physical suffering, and grown to manhood or womanhood handicapped by ill health and stunted growth, and perhaps later some disease of the bones or joints developed. S. S. S., given in their early life, would have prevented this. It would have cleansed and purified the blood of the taint, nourished and stengthened their systems, and assisted each to grow into strong, healthful manhood or womanhood. S. S. S. is the very best remedy for Scrofula. It goes down to the bottom of the trouble, and cleanses the circulation of all scrofulous matter. It supplies the weak, diseased blood with strength and health-building qualities, and under the purifying effects of this great remedy all symptoms of Scrofula pass away. S. S. S. contains no minerals in any form, and is an absolutely safe treatment for children, even infants, or persons of any age. Literature about Scrofula and any medical advice free.
